Red Tanks Move Closer As Jeeps Cross Border; Nik Charges War Move

Exchange Protests On Berlin

Card Rule Scored, Provocation:Reds

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union traded protests today about the tense situation on the border between East and West Berlin.

When U.S. Ambassador Llewelyn Thompson delivered a verbal denunciation of the demand that U.S. officials in Berlin show identification documents to East Germans, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko countered with a protest against what he called American provocation.

According to Thompson, this amounted to each country rejecting the other's protest.

The whole incident was rather embarrassing to the Western Allies, since the British have always shown identification documents to the East Germans, while the Americans and French have refused.

This gives the Russians and the East Germans the chance to ask why the Americans and the French cannot do what the British do.

The American view is that only the four occupying powers can control the movements of each other's nationals in the divided city.

CHECKPOINT — An American automobile, escorted by American military police in Jeeps zigzags through the Russian checkpoint on the Friedrichstrasse in Berlin. The car was returning from a trip into East Berlin. At first, the car, driven by a man in civilian clothes, had been halted by Communist police. The driver had been trying to enter into the Soviet zone of the city. With the show of American forces, the vehicle was allowed to go through, uninspected by East German Vopos (Communist police). Constellation Is Joining Fleet In Festive Air

NEW YORK (AP)—The shadow that once cloaked the USS Constellation today turns to splendor.

She joins the fleet.

Born in travail, the mighty aircraft carrier comes into her own in a festival of pomp, parade and flying banners.

With her official commissioning she becomes the monarch of the Navy, the biggest warship in the line.

Dignataries to Attend

Top naval officers, and civilian dignitaries, were to be on hand for the shipboard ceremonies.

And New York City, which mourned the death and fire that raked the ship while under construction, is going all-out to salute her triumph.

Flashy Times Square has been renamed "Constellation Square," and a tootling ticker-tape parade up Broadway this morning marks the debut of the giant vessel.

The city is adopting her as its flagship.

Fire Rages 12 Hours

It was last Dec. 19, at Brooklyn Navy Yard, that with the ship nearly complete, fire erupted in a flood of spilled fuel oil on the ship's hangar deck, rampaging through the vast interior. Steel melted. Decks buckled.

The fire raged for more than 12 hours. Fifty civilian workmen, trapped in the maze of compartments, perished from flame and smoke.

But the marred ship is new again—restored, refurbished and bustling with bluejackets.

Greatest, Says Walker

"She's the world's greatest," says her proud skipper, Capt. Thomas J. Walker, 47, a Massachusetts-born descendant of whaling ship captains.

The 75,000-ton carrier, five city blocks long and 25 stories high from keel to mast, stands at her Brooklyn Navy Yard berth, an awesome mass of gray steel.

Her soaring superstructure, and sprawling winged decks tower over nearby vessels like a gigantic bird over her brood.

Her flight deck—1,047 feet long and 252 feet wide—stretches more than four acres in size. Its four powerful catapults, which boost the planes aloft, could hurl a big automobile five miles through the air.

The hangar deck below has a capacity of about 100 planes, and four elevators combined can hoist a dozen planes at a time to the flight deck in 35 seconds.

95 Miles Up in 8 Minutes

Saturn A-OK, Puts U.S. Nearer Moon

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Saturn, the world's largest known rocket, scored a not-wholly-expected success on its first flight test today and gave new impetus to the U.S. drive to land astronauts on the moon in this decade.

It was a tremendous demonstration by a rocket which prelaunch calculations had given only 30 per cent chance of complete success.

With its massive eight-engine power plant generating 1.3 million pounds of thrust, the Saturn thundered away from Cape Canaveral at 10:06 a. m. EST, spewing a tremendous tail of fire and sending an unearthly roar rolling across the test center.

Unbelieveable Precision

With almost unbelievable precision, the eight engines pushed the 162-foot rocket, which is larger than the Statue of Liberty, approximately the 95 miles high to the edge of space. Then the rocket plunged back to the Atlantic Ocean and sank as plannned more than 200 miles southeast of the launch pad.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported the entire flight covered about eight minutes and the spent booster impacted within 10 kilometers, or about 6 miles, of its intended landing point.

Only the first stage was tested today. Two dummy upper stages were filled with water for ballast.

The historic flight, although brief, signaled America's intention to race Russia to the moon, a pledge made earlier this year by President Kennedy.

Tops Soviet Thrust

The Saturn is three times more powerful than any previous rocket launched by the United States and tops the estimated one million pound thrust of the Soviet space rockets. The success of America's first heavyweight rocket will give added emphasis to this nation's goal of placing a three-man Apollo spaceship on the moon, hopefully by 1967.

Nine more Saturn research shots are scheduled. By 1964, the operational two-stage configuration is slated to be ready to hoist the manned Apollo craft into earth orbit. By 1966, an advanced three to four-million pound thrust Saturn should be geared to whirl Apollo and its three-man crew into lunar orbit.

Manned landings on the moon will be accomplished with the 12- to 20-million-pound-thrust Nova rocket, whose development depends greatly on the Saturn program.

Close to Intended Time

There were very few who expected such overwhelming success today. Dr. Kurt Debus, head of NASA's launch operations and top man in the launch control center today, said before the shot that he would consider 60 seconds of flight time "100 per cent success, with anything above that 150 per cent."

Convict Scarbeck Of Passing Data To Polish Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former U.S. diplomat Irvin C. Scarbeck was convicted today of revealing American Embassy secrets to Polish Communist agents.

Guilty on 3 Counts

The federal court jury of 11 men and one woman returned the verdict only half an hour after starting its third day of deliberations.

The jury found the 41-year-old Scarbeck guilty on the first three counts of the fourcount indictment. It found him innocent on the fourth count, which concerned the physical removal of a classified document from a public office, namely, the American Embassy in Warsaw, Poland.

Scarbeck, a stocky bespectacled man, betrayed no emotion as he stood erect to face the jury and hear the verdict.

The jury deliberated 15½ hours since receiving the case Wednesday morning. The trial took 3½ weeks, and, for the last two weeks, the jury had been locked up to prevent its being influenced by news reports of the trial.

In a signed statement for FBI agents, Scarbeck admitted giving the information to the Poles. He said he deliberately distorted the documents he was accused of orally passing on.

Could Get 33 Years

Scarbeck was pictured in testimony as having been blackmailed by the agents when they caught him in bed with a Polish woman, Ursula Discher.

10 Years Maximum

The counts on which Scarbeck was found guilty carry a maximum penalty of 30 years in jail and a fine of $30,000. In practice, however, such terms usually run concurrently, so that the maximum probable imprisonment would be 10 years.

Defense lawyer Samuel C. Klein said he would appeal the case.

Throughout the trial, defense counsel contended that Scarbeck acted only to protect Miss Discher.

Must Resume Full Tests, Rocky Warns

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The United States must resume full-scale testless of world opinion, to remain less of world opinion ,to remain powerful enough to block Soviet aggression, Gov. Rockefeller declared today.

"To assure the sufficiency of our own weapons in the face of the recent Soviet tests," he said, "we are now clearly compelled to conduct our own nuclear tests."

The tests Rockefeller proposed would be conducted in the atmosphere.

Offers Six Points

The Republican governor, whose fallout-shelter proposals have established him as a leading spokesman on the defense phase of nuclear danger, offered a six-point program for taking the offensive in global competition for military supremacy.

He proposed development of lighter warheads to make nuclear missiles more mobile without loss of power, anti-missile weapons, better nuclear weapons for localized military actions, new weapons "of greater precision and flexibility" and devices for detecting nuclear tests in other nations.

The governor also urged continuing attention to peacefull use of nuclear energy.

Another in Series

Rockefeller's remarks were in a speech prepared for delivery to the national convention of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism fraternity.

The speech was another in a series, over the past 2½ years, in which the governor, a potential candidate for the Republican nomination for president in 1964, has spoken on national and international issues.

If the United States fell behind Russia, in nuclear weapons, he said today, it would pave the way for Communist conquest of the free world.

"We must prevent any such disaster," Rockefeller said in calling for wide-scale testing by the United States, "even though the decisions and actions required of us may not be acclaimed by world opinion of the moment or by plaudits of so-called neutralist nations...

"It is one thing for America to be conscientiously concerned with the views of neutralist nations. It would be a quite different and preposterous thing for America to start behaving like one."

The United States' responsibility to all free peoples and future generations he said, "is to do, confidently and firmly, not what is popular, but what is right."

Soviet Hints Rejection of Bomb Appeal

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The General Assembly is expected to give overwhelming approval today to an appeal to the Soviet Union to call off a 50-megaton bomb test. The Soviets already indicated they will ignore it.

The assembly announced it would take up the eight-nation resolution containing the appeal as soon as it acts on a Security Council recommendation to admit Outer Mongolia and Mauritania as the U.N.'s 102nd and 103rd members.

Sponsors Map Strategy

Faced with the month-end deadline announced by Soviet Premier Khrushchev for triggering the giant bomb, the sponsors mapped out strategy to counter delaying tactics such as the Soviet bloc and some neutrals used to stall the vote in the political committee.

The committee approved the resolution Wednesday by a vote of 75-10, but only after a stormy overtime session in which a parade of Communist and neutral delegates fought it every step of the way.

The assembly vote was expected to be still stronger than that in the committee. Nigeria and El Salvador, two of the 15 members absent during the committee ballot, indicated they would cast yes votes today.

Hits India's Attitude

Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin has made plain the Kremlin would reject the appeal. He told the committee that maneuvers by the NATO nations would not prevent the Soviet Union from perfecting its defenses.

The political committee continued its nuclear test debate Thursday with the United States accusing India of trying to put it in the same boat with the Soviet Union as far as violation of the moratorium on nuclear tests was concerned.

U.S. Delegate Arthur Dean asserted that India's attitude sounded much like that of Khrushchev who has declared that American actions in Berlin forced Moscow to resume testing to build up its defenses.

Stratton Thinks Shelter Emphasis Is Plain Bunk

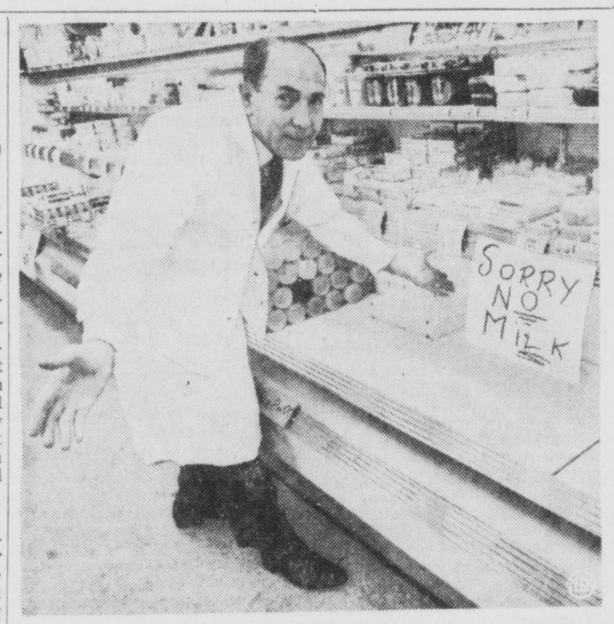

LE ROY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller is talking "plain bunk" and "doing the country a grave disservice" by overemphasizing the value of fallout shelters, a New York Democratic congressman says.

It is time "we got away from this almost neurotic preoccupation with shelters," Rep. Samuel S. Stratton of Schenectady told the Le Roy City Democratic Committee Thursday night.

Shelters are only a small part of the defense requirement in any possible future war, Stratton said.

"Any really effective system of nuclear protection will be so complex and so fantastically expensive that it can only be effective

NO MILK—Ben Cohen is typical of the many grocery and supermarket owners and managers in the New York City and Long Island areas who have no milk left. The flow of milk was cut off when two Teamster unions joined a walkout started by one local on Oct. 24 which failed to agree on a new contract with the milk industry. The strike threatened to spread to northern New Jersey and a Connecticut county. (NEA Telephoto)

Gotham Supplies About Dry

Substitutes Lessen Hardships on Milk

NEW YORK (AP) — Milk supplies for about 10 million persons in New York City and on Long Island ran nearly dry today as the strike of delivery drivers and plant workers continued.

However, a plentiful supply of powdered, condensed, and evaporated milk was on hand at food stores throughout the affected areas.

Progress Very Slow

The average flow of eight million quarts daily became a trickle Thursday as negotiations remained stalled between 10,000 members of the Teamsters Union and the milk companies. A management spokesman spoke of "progress", but added: "it is very slow."

Under an emergency plan, formulated before the strike started on Tuesday, milk continues to go to hospitals, schools, and other institutions.

To get milk Thursday, thousands lined up at dairy and processing plants on a cash-and-carry basis. Each customer was limited to four quarts.

Some New Yorkers crossed into Westchester County, where negotiations are continuing without a work stoppage.

Day's Supply for Jersey

In New Jersey, housewives were assured of milk for at least another day. Members of Local 680, representing drivers and plant employes in 10 Northern Jersey counties, Thursday extended their strike deadline another 24 hours until 4 p.m. today.

The striking Teamsters locals have cut their original demand of a $10 weekly pay hike to $8. The union also seeks adjustments which would add $1 to $1.50 a week to a package settlement.

The last employer offer was a $6.70 weekly average package in a two-year contract.

Drivers had been receiving $100.50 a week plus commissions, and plant workers $103 to $129.

Farmers May Dry Up Milkshed if Strike Prolonged

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Farmers might have to "get tough" if shipments of milk into New York City continue to be stalled by a Teamster strike, the leader of a large dairy cooperative says.

John C. York, executive secretary of the Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative, said last night that a prolonged strike would force farmers to "fight back" to demonstrate that "it is the producer, not Jimmy Hoffa, who controls the supply of milk." Hoffa is international president of the Teamsters.

Not In Good Mood

"Farmers are not in a good mood," York said. "If the farmers have to choose between getting tough, and ruin at the hands of the Teamsters union, they can get plenty tough. This milkshed could wind up as dry as the Sahara Desert."

Eastern, which claims 10,000 members, has sent telegrams to President Kennedy, Gov. Rockefeller and other officials asking them to help settle the dispute between Teamster union members and the handlers.

To Start Meetings

The cooperative will organize mass meetings if the strike continues, York said, and "will present all the facts to the producers and general public and then

100 Yards From U.S. City Line

Rules Out Long Time for Access

BERLIN (AP) — Communist tanks moved to within 100 yards of the American sector of Berlin today after U.S. military police and jeeps made an armed thrust into Red Berlin for the third successive day.

At Least Five Tanks

In fading light, it was not possible to tell how many Communist tanks moved up to the frontier, but newsmen on the spot estimated at least five were there.

A British officer said the tanks were T34s, a Russian model of which the East Germans have a considerable number.

A group of 20 to 30 Soviet tanks moved into East Berlin Thursday night from the surrounding area of East Germany. These tanks were parked at a point about a mile from the Friedrichstrasse checkpoint.

The Communist tanks moved toward the U.S. sector within an hour after three U.S. Army jeeps bearing military police escorted a small gray car carrying American civilians into the East sector. They were reasserting the rights of passage that the United States claims for its forces, civilian and military.

U.S. Sends Seven Tanks

For today's border test the U.S. Army brought up seven tanks and three jeeps filled with military police. Only the jeeps went across the border but one tank approached the border at such a speed that it went 10 feet over the white line marking the separation of the two sectors of the city. It quickly withdrew.

The Soviet tanks moved into position in East Berlin overnight.

A few hours later, Premier Khrushchev served notice the Soviet Union has no intention of guaranteeing indefinitely the Western powers' access to the city.

No West Berlin Design: K

He told a Moscow audience the West is threatening war to back up its position here. He insisted, however, that the Soviet Union has no designs on West Berlin.

The main issue in Berlin at the moment was the right of the United States and its allies to pass civilian officials into East Berlin without identifying them to the satisfaction of the East Berlin police.

Only about a mile stood between U.S. and Soviet tanks in Berlin.

Manned by Russians

People who got a glimpse of the Soviet tanks after they were brought up to within a mile of the border Thursday night said they were manned by Russians. This was something new, since the

WilsonCommends DeWitt $100,000 Offer for College

Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson today commended Macdonald DeWitt for his offer of $100,000 toward the capital cost of an Ulster County Community College.

Assemblyman Wilson, in a letter to Mr. DeWitt said:

"May I extend my sincere congratulations on your generous offer to the County of Ulster toward the capital costs of the proposed Community College.

"I do believe such a college will be of inestimable value to our County. I also believe the Board of Supervisors took the proper position in letting the people of the county decide the college issue.

"In my humble opinion, your public spirited effort will go far in assuring an affirmative vote on Nov. 7."

DeWitt earlier this week offred the $100,000 contingent upon the voters of Ulster County authorizing the establishment of an Ulster County Community College at the Nov. 7 election.

Air Stream From Red Bomb Sector May Hit Northwest

WASHINGTON (AP)—The jet air stream that may be bearing radioactive debris from the Soviet Union's superbomb explosion of last Monday appeared today to be headed into a rainy area of the U.S. Northwest.

A Weather Bureau spokesman said the amount of radioactivity wouldn't be much higher than that after other big Soviet nuclear tests.

The Weather Bureau estimated that the suspected fallout cloud would cross the coast over Washington and Oregon Saturday morning.

Depending upon wind shifts and the width of the cloud itself, the cloud might also reach Northern California and Nevada, and on the northern edge might pass over southernmost Canada.

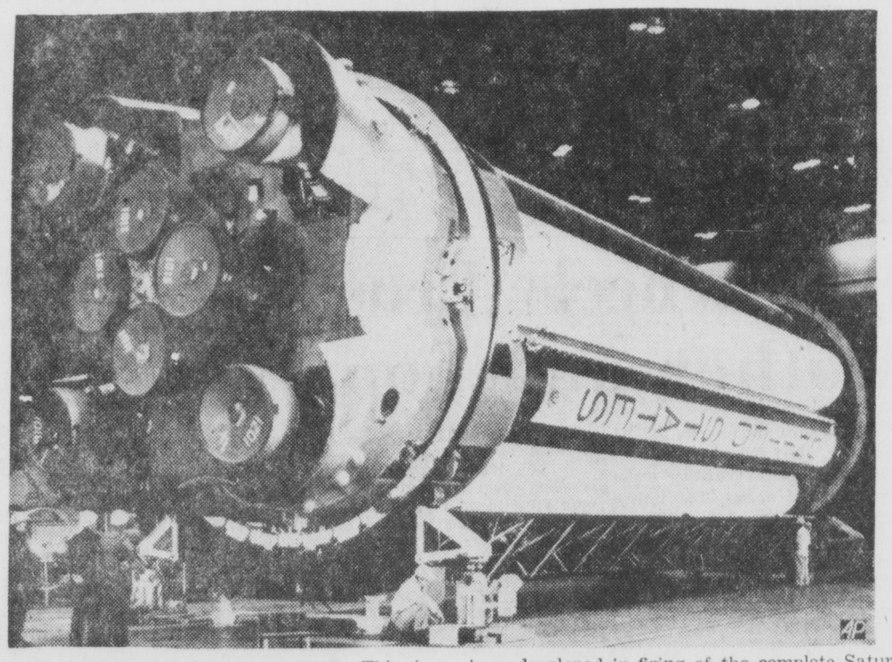

Lester Machta and Robert List, Weather Bureau fallout experts, said the forecast is for rain in Oregon and Idaho.

This would mean that some of the debris in the fallout cloud might be brought to earth in the rainy area. There was a possibility that the rain zone would be west of Washington, so that that state might experience little o no fallout.

The jet stream believed to be carrying the nuclear cloud eastward was moving at 100 to 150 miles an hour.

Although the fallout cloud caught in the stream of high altitude winds, 30,000 feet above the earth, was not traveling with the full velocity of the jet stream, it

Phone Co. Beginning Plan For All-Number Dialing

A program to begin the gradual introduction of all-numerical telephone numbers in the Kingston area was outlined today by J. J. Kohut, New York Telephone Company manager.

Kohut explained that all-numerical telephone numbers—now being used increasingly throughout the country—will be assigned to newly installed telephones here. "Customers who change their service or who move to a different location in the community will also get all-numerical numbers," he said. All-numerical numbers to be aassigned here initially will be a simple "translation" of the letters into numerals. . . . For example, FE 8- will become 338—identical pulls on the dial, he explained.

"In a few years, at this rate, the majority of telephones in the Kingston area will have all-numerical numbers. We plan then to translate the balance," he said.

Official New York Telephone Company numbers and the home phone numbers of company employes will be among the first to be changed, he said.

"Business customers and others who'd like their numbers changed to the all-numerical style now should call their telephone business office," he said. "Customers might want to consider such a change, for instance, when ordering stationery or other printed material that will display phone numbers.

Kohut said that through this gradual method the telephone company hopes to make the change with as little inconvenience as possible for its customers. "There already are nearly

Assassin Trails Two, Slays One

NEW YORK (AP)—An assassin trailed two frightened men in an auto on a zigzag course through miles of Brooklyn streets early today and shot one of them to death just as they believed they had shaken him off.

"I know you—I know that car—you're not going to get away with it," the killer cried as he opened fire in a driveway in the Flatlands section at 12:30 a.m.

The victim's companion told police he had never seen the unidentified gunman before, and detectives tentatively listed the slaying as a case of mistaken identity.

The victim, Jerry Birozy, 21, Brooklyn, was driving his car with a friend, Robert Cordice, 22, as a passenger.

Driving home after dropping off a girl acquaintance, they noticed they were being trailed by a car. Birozy drove up and down streets, and then made a quick turn into a driveway.

Birozy and Cordice thought for a moment that they had outwitted their pursuer. But he suddenly drew up at the curb, jumped out, shouted his threat and fired three shots into the ground in the driveway.

The killer then jumped back into his car, fired a shot through Birozy's head and sped away.

Fire in Dryer

A plastic pillow caught fire in a dryer at the plant of the French Dye Works, Inc. 524 Broadway shortly after noon today. A Central Station Unit answered a call at 12:03 p. m. Two quilts in the dryer were also reported damaged. Another call at 1:15 p. m. was for a grass fire in the vicinity of 161 East Chester Street.

Red Tanks Move

Russians have contended that East Berlin is primarily the responsibility of the East German regime. Postwar agreements call for Soviet responsibility.

The Friedrichstrasse crossing remained the focus of tension.

On the Communist side of the border, Vopo — people's police—patrols carrying submachine guns were posted at every corner in the immediate vicinity of the checkpoint. An armored personnel carrier and a water cannon were behind buildings, out of sight of the American checkpoint on the West.

Vopos in Ugly Mood

The Vopos and the customs guards seemed in an ugly mood. Some of them complained of "American provocations."

For the first time, they insisted on asking foreigners the purpose and destinations of their visits to East Berlin. When the visitors returned, the police demanded further information, where the foreigners had been.

Three times this week, the U.S. Army has used force to enter Communist territory to reassert the war-won right it maintains it has for free access throughout Berlin.

An East German policeman at the tense Friedrichstrasse crossing point told an Associated Press reporter: "We expect the Americans to make another attempt to use force today."

The Soviet tanks arrived in East Berlin Thursday night.

Ready to Quash Crisis

The Western Allies, throughout the crisis, have maintained that the Russians must play their role in the four-power status of Berlin.

The appearance of the Soviet tanks could, in the view of some Westerners, indicate that the Russians were not prepared to let the crisis get too hot.

The Soviet tanks moved in as the East German regime accused American troops of border provocations and warned in a note to the United States that their "sallies" were a danger to peace.

Slipping into the city quietly, the Soviet tanks halted only a few blocks from the Friedrichstrasse border checkpoint where East Germany demands that American civilians traveling into East Berlin show identification.

Witnesses counted a dozen Soviet tanks with Soviet crews parked amid the bomb ruins of the palace of Emperor Wilhelm the First. Soviet and East German guards shooed away the curious.

Tanks Readily Available

A private Western intelligence source reported that at least 30 tanks had arrived in what marked the first appearance of Soviet armor in the heart of East Berlin since they helped crush the 1953 anti-Communist revolt there.

The U.S. Patton tanks bivouacked in the midtown borough of Kreuzberg, close by the crossing point into Communist East Berlin. They were readily available to help drive home the U.S. contention that Americans have war-won rights to enter the Red sector without showing identification papers to East German police.

Three British Centurion tanks moved up today to a point about half a mile west of the Brandenburg Gate, West Berlin police reported.

The British earlier pulled up three antitank guns opposite the gate, the most direct route into the Western sector from where the Soviet tanks halted. Two British armored cars and an armored personnel carrier also arrived.

The combined armor of the Western Allies in West Berlin is believed to be far less than that of the Soviets, however, and would be hopelessly outnumbered in the event of a clash.

American and British military spokesmen said that no special general alert had been ordered for their garrisons.

Says Things Normal

"Things are normal," at the Friedrichstrasse checkpoint, the U.S. spokesman said. The British official did acknowledge that "we have reinforced our troops at the Brandenburg Gate" and said normal patrolling of that sector is continuing.

The United States refuses to recognize the East German regime and forbids its employes to defer to East German officials.

Once Wednesday and once Thursday the U.S. military command here ordered out 10 tanks and troops in armored carriers to back brief thrusts into East Berlin. The sorties were actually carried out by three jeeps with armed troops escorting a civilian who refused to show his papers to the East Germans.

The convoys motored only a few hundred yards into East Berlin to make their point, and then returned. The American tanks rolled up to the border each time but did not cross.

The repeated thrusts by troops armed with fixed bayonets clearly indicated that U.S. authorities intended to reassert their occupation rights when they felt it necessary. But the appearance of Soviet tanks obviously put the picture in a different perspective.

The Communist East German regime already has succeeded in virtually barring Americans in civilian clothes from East Berlin although it is still possible for some to enter.

East German police permit uniformed American servicemen to pass through the checkpoint unhindered. U.S. civilians must furnish identification or fall back on the armed jeep escort.

Visits by servicemen in uniform are rare, however, and confined largely to duty trips.

OPENING SCHOOL BIDS—Representatives of Kingston Board of Education and the firm of Perkins and Will, architects, opened bids Thursday covering construction of the proposed Mary's Avenue elementary school and the new 1,200-pupil junior high school at an afternoon session in the high school cafeteria. Representatives of Perkins and Will reviewed the bids and made recommendations. Awarding of contracts will be made after the Board of Education and the Architects have made a final determination. Labor Leader Charges His Blue Cross Note Ignored

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—A labor leader charged today labor's view was "ignored" at a legislative committee hearing on hospital costs.

Sen. George R. Metcalf, R-Auburn, committee chairman, said at the hearing here Wednesday labor and management weren't interested in hospital costs" because they failed to send representatives.

William Sweeney, president of the Syracuse Federation of Labor, said the committee had received a statement from him. He was unable to attend, he said, because he was at the State AFL-CIO meeting at Buffalo.

But his statement was ignored, Sweeney said, while a statement was read from the Manufacturers Association of Syracuse.

The statement Sweeney submitted to the committee said administrative costs of the Syracuse Blue Cross plan operating ir 10 Central New York counties were the second highest among plans of comparable size in the nation.

J. Campbell Butler, president of the Syracuse plan, said "Sweeney is using 1957 figures."

Sweeney also charged that labor was not represented on the plan's executive committee, which he said is "the key committee in setting plan policies."

Kiwanis Hears 3-Point Program

Smiley Urges County Planning Group on Natural Resources

Explaining a three-point program needed to meet local natural resource conditions, Daniel Smiley of Lake Mohonk, noted conservationist and naturalist, spoke before the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday on the subject "Preservation of the Natural Resources in a growing area."

The speaker introduced his subject with the observation that Ulster County was fortunate in having an abundance of natural resources, but indicated that the increase of visitors and the growing population was taxing these resources to the breaking point.

Balance Is Vital

Smiley explained that "the outdoors was composed of three parts—water, soil, and life." This three-point idea was compared to a three-legged stool which maintained its balance only when the three legs were about equal. The balance of nature was portrayed in this manner, and conservation was the means by which man endeavored to keep nature's balance.

"Private rather then public interest in selling level land for housing, roads and industry" was scored by the speaker who explained that the use of level land for these purposes was having an adverse affect upon the nature balance of water, soil, and life. In this connection he touched upon the ideas of paving influencing water drain-off, industry and increased housing bringing waste problems, and the use of land for other purposes cutting down the "two and one-half acres needed to feed a person." More water, more land, and more natural areas were becoming a current necessity.

Could Mean Sacrifice

Smiley suggested two approaches that could be made by service clubs such as Kiwanis to offset the growing problem of the conservation of natural resources. One was the "planning type of approach," and he emphasized this with the remark that "we need a county planning committee." His second point dealt with the "need of leadership by individuals" which would probably entail "a sacrifice on their part."

In conclusion, Smiley suggested a second three-legged stool type to help the three-point balance of nature—a stool that would have "nature, humans, and spiritual value" helping to hold the necessary balance.

Air Stream

was moving more rapidly than had been expected on the basis of earlier calculations. The earlier estimates had indicated that the fallout would proceed over mid-Canada and a part of southern Alaska.

The Weather Bureau emphasized that its estimates were based strictly on meteorological reports indicating the wind movement from the site of the blasts.

Would Avoid Alarm

The bureau experts were anxious to avoid arousing alarm unnecessarily in the area traversed by the jet stream.

"We don't think the levels of radioactivity will be significantly higher in the Northwest than they have been after other major Soviet bomb tests," Machta said.

"Most of the debris went into the stratosphere and will not come to earth for months. Only a little peeled off into the troposphere (air layer below the stratosphere), and it is unlikely that the radiation measurements will be frightening."

Master Plumbers Name McCardle President Again

John J. McCardle was re-elected president of the Kingston Licensed Master Plumbing and Heating Contractors Association Thursday night at its October meeting in the city hall.

Republican candidates John J. Schwenk for mayor, and Joseph D. Saccoman for city judge, addressed the plumbers after their business session.

Other officers re-elected were: Kenneth Lowe Sr., vice president and Frank J. Rafferty, secretary. Stuart Smedes was elected treasurer.

Elected for two years to the executive board were Daniel Walters, Abram Heinlein and Edward Chrisey.

Candidate Schwenk praised the plumbers for their high professional standard and urged them to continue adhering to their ethics and code. If elected, he said, he would do all in his power to guard to the utmost the health, safety and welfare of the city's citizens against illegal and unsanitary plumbing installations. It took years of training, he noted, to become a qualified master plumber.

Candidate Saccoman talked on city court procedure and cited sections of the general city law dealing with the master plumber. Such provisions, he said, would be upheld at all times, if he is elected.

Bus Wheels Crush Mother and Son

NEW YORK (AP) —A mother and her 2½-year-old son were crushed to death Thursday under the wheels of a bus. The father, who teaches at night, did not learn that his family had been wiped out until today.

The double tragedy occurred at 106th Street and Broadway where, witnesses told police, little Eliezer Weinshall darted from the side walk as a bus pulled from the curb. The mother, Rina, 25, rushed after the boy and both were run over by the vehicle's left front wheel.

The bus driver, William J. Hackett of Lincoln Park, N.J., said he was watching a truck bearing down on him through a rear view mirror. He said he did not know his vehicle had struck anyone until he felt a bump.

It was about 10:30 p.m. when the husband and father, Bezalel Weinshall, 29, an Israel exchange teacher, returned to his empty Riverside Drive apartment. After a futile search he went to a police station where he learned the sad news. The broken-hearted father then was taken to the morgue after midnight to identify the bodies.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Have you been noticing how feeble your money is lately?

It doesn't go so far.

Money is like people. As it grows older, it doesn't seem able to do as much as it did when younger. And therefore it doesn't command the same respect from those around it.

Dollar Showing Its Age

The dollar bill is showing its age. It has lost a lot of cents. As long ago as the Truman administration the 100-cent dollar had declined to 54 cents.

Today the portrait of George Washington would have to undergo a real face-lifting job to get the dollar back up even to that level.

The erosion of money continues in small almost unnoticed ways and goes on, it seems, no matter what we do or who runs the government.

Every now and then something happens, however, to call it dramatically to our personal attention.

A few weeks ago, for example, I handed the bootblack in our office a quarter for a shoeshine, as I have for many years. He shook his head.

"It's 30 cents," he said.

"Thirty cents for a shoeshine?" I asked, a bit dazed.

"Why not?" he replied. "The price of everything else has gone up. I gotta raise my price, too."

A few days ago I asked him if his 30-cent scale had cost him many customers.

Disillusioning Experience

"No," he said. 'Why should it? Business is as good as ever. What's an extra nickel to most people?"

Well, to one man at least that extra nickel was a disillusioning experience in basic economics. I can distinctly remember when, if you paid 15 cents for a shoeshine, it gave you the feeling you were a real sport and something of a patron of the fine arts. Now at 30 cents I was barely meeting the going rate.

Even as long ago as the World War I era a vice president of the United States could murmur nostalgically: "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar."

But at that time you could still get a pack of cigarettes for six cents, a five-cent glass of beer, and buy a good serviceable topcoat for less than a medium-priced pair of shoes cost now.

Remember the $2 hotel room, the two-bit haircut, the nickel cup of coffee, the 15-cent shave, the penny postcard, the two-cent letter, the nickel hot dog, and the 15-cent ham and cheese sandwich?

Old Landmarks Go

Remember the heaping five-cent ice cream cone, the five-cent trolley car ride, the big nickel candy bar?

All these landmarks of lower-priced living stand out in the memory of the average middle-aged, middleclass American. He dreams of them sometimes as he drives to work in a car that cost him four times as much as the car he drove in his youth.

The jingle of coins in his pocket used to be a satisfying sound. Now a jingle doesn't mean so much. There has to be the crisp crinkling sound of folding currency.

It makes a man a bit sad to realize that both he and money have grown older, and neither will ever quite be again what they used to be—for time invisibly wears down the value and promise of each.

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

Going back some 56 years ago to the Kingston Daily Express of Saturday, Oct. 28, 1905 I see S. E. Eighmey's Department store at 26 Broadway, in Rondout was having a fur sale. These newspapers were sent to me by a reader, no name enclosed, so I can only thank them through the column.

In those days advertisements were printed on the front page. L. B. Van Wagenen Co., had a three column item on the right side and S. Eighmeny a four column one on the left side. No doubt many Kingstonians remember our large Rondout department store. Eighmey's was on two floors and had two entrances, one on Mill Street and one on Broadway. The Rondout Savings Bank is there now.

S. E. Eighmey's fur sale consisted of fur pieces from $3.97 to $25. They show a long shawl type in the item. They also had ladies' coats, heavy cheviot, long $5. They had ladies crush plush coats, with fur collar and satin lined from $12 to $20. In this October advertisement they were also selling 'ladies' fleece underwear, 25 cents; and natural wool underwear for 97 cents."

The advertisement further read: "Our millinery department is the busiest place in town. You ought to see the pretty hats we are selling for $3.50 to $7.50. Out-of-town customers will receive prompt and careful attention, your hat trimmed while you are doing your other shopping." They all wore warm clothing in the winter, and 1905 was floor length clothes for ladies, not even the toes of the shoes showing. They say that the time to buy a fur coat is when the style is long coats, then you get most fur for your money.

Oct. 28, 1905, L. B. Van Wagenen Co. had a downtown store at 18 Strand and 37 Ferry Street in Rondout, and uptown store, at 311-313 Wall Street in Kingston. Van Wagenen's was also having a fur sale. A Mr. Stern an expert furrier from a well known fur house was in their uptown store Friday and Saturday, and downtown at their store Monday. The fur coat, boa and muff were in style at the time and he brought a handsome assortment for the fashionable ladies of Kingston and Rondout. Mr. Stern was also taking orders for repairing or remodeling of furs, and the customers were invited to consult him along these lines.

There are notices on election in this Oct. 28, 1905 Express. In 1905, Election Day, fell on Tuesday, Nov. 7, as it does this year of 1961. Morris Block was mayor; Roscoe Irwin was city judge, Oliver P. Carpenter was recorder. The alderman were James S. Winne, Frank Byer, John R. Tammany, William Roach, Thomas J. Ward, George P. Zeeh, Thomas J. Cusack and Frank Mills. Supervisors were William S. Eltinge, George Merikle, John P. Grimes, Joseph A. Costello, Charles C. Lang and Israel H. Snyder. Their term was to expire last day of December.

The "Famous Riccobono Bros." were on at the Kingston Opera House, week of Oct. 30. This include big vaudeville company with seven feature acts. The greatest trick horses of the world were to be on the show. Evening prices were 10, 20 and 30 cents, and matinees, 10 and 25 cents. I wonder how they got the horses up the steps of the Opera House. Election time was a lively one in those days with street parades, red flares and out door speeches. The Mansion House balcony was used by speakers of both parties, which always brought crowds.

DeWITT'S GENEROUS OFFER

Macdonald DeWitt, president of the DeWitt Revolving Fund, Inc., a corporation organized for educational and charitable purposes, will turn over the fund, which will reach some $200,000, toward the establishment of a two-year Community College in Ulster County.

The offer of Mr. DeWitt, a native of Ulster County and one of the country's most famous libel lawyers, is contingent upon adoption by the citizens of Ulster County of Local Question A, which will appear on the ballot at the general election November 7.

Helping Ulster County young people in their endeavor to pursue a college education is no new experience for Mr. DeWitt. The DeWitt Revolving Fund of which he is president has helped some 32 local young men gain higher education. Mr. DeWitt also has crusaded for larger and more reasonable loans for students. Carrying his fight to Governor Rockefeller, he pointed out the inadequacy of loans made by the New York State Higher Education Assistance Corporation. His efforts on behalf of those young people in the entire state who really want a higher education and need help have brought results. With this accomplished, he now offers to broaden the scope of the fund by assisting in the establishment of a two-year college for all Ulster County students who are ambitious for a higher education.

Mr. DeWitt believes the young people of our county need and should have the advantages of a Community College and he backs it up with a most generous offer.

If the citizens of Ulster County also believe that we should have a Community College, then they also should back it up by going to the polls on November 7 and voting for Local Question A.

Here's an opportunity to help our young people and our community that we cannot afford to pass up.

Khrushchev tells the comrades that capitalism is getting weaker and Communism stronger. So strong it has to build a wall to keep people from leaving East Berlin.

GRIM NUCLEAR ECHOES

The question whether or not the Soviet Union's giant explosion up near the Arctic was made by the threatened 50-megaton bomb is in a sense almost academic. Whatever the exact size of the bomb may have been—and that is not precisely known to anyone except the Russians—one thing is certain: it was a bomb of monstrous size.

The detonation will echo in several days, most of them promising evil for the human race. To begin with, the bomb has spewed into the atmosphere as much radioactive dust as would have been created by a whole series of smaller test blasts. This will settle back to earth in due course, substantially increasing the amount of above-normal radioactivity that poisons the atmosphere.

Russia's air will not escape this pollution, a fact that underscores the Kremlin's small concern for individual human beings where the interests of the state are involved. Though Americans cannot be smug about this matter of fallout, since our own tests in previous years have played a major part in atmospheric pollution, it is significant that the present Soviet blasts were touched off after the world had enjoyed a three-year moratorium on such tests in the atmosphere.

One unfortunate result of the big explosion is that it may have the affect of prodding the United States into resumption of atmospheric testing. Although this may suit those who feel that we must go on developing nuclear weapons no matter how big our present stockpile is, another test series would be sad news to most men. . .

There is, almost litterally, no future in this sort of competition between great powers. Unless testing can be halted by mutual agreement, this will go down in history as a black year for mankind.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

DEFINITIONS

The logical mind cannot use words without definitions. Most of the confusions of our time are due to the lack of definition of terms; thus we generally confuse socialism and communism, a free society and a democracy. One might say that it makes little difference because most people have an intuitive concept of what is meant.

Admiral Rickover is gifted with a logical mind which compels him to define his terms, so that when he refers to a subject, he and his hearer will know precisely what is meant and the argument, if any, need not be over words.

We speak of a free society by which we might mean anything from such an anarchistic society, as Emma Goldman advocated, to the government-dominated society which Franklin D. Roosevelt actually established in this country.

Admiral Rickover defines a free society in precise terms:

"By 'free' I mean a politically free society in which the individual possesses 'inalienable rights,' and government is instituted 'to secure these rights.' We hold it to be 'self-evident' truth that liberty is an indispensable attribute of the individual. Not absolute liberty, of course, for this is not possible unless one dwells on an uninhabited island, but the broadest liberty compatible with life in society. This is accomplished by making consent of the people indispensable to the functioning of government; in other words, by associating the individual with the business of governing. In a free society the citizen has public functions, hence public status. His government, to quote Madison, 'derives all its powers directly or indirectly from the great body of the people, and is administered by persons holding their offices during pleasure, for a limited period, or during good behavior.'"

It is interesting that Admiral Rickover bases his terminology on the Declaration of Independence which our youngsters are no longer told to memorize, as my generation did. The Declaration rather than the Constitution is the basic philosophic statement of American society. These days there is a tendency to refer to the so-called Bill of Rights, that is, the first 10 amendments to the Constitution, as the whole of American political doctrine. By no stretch of the imagination can this be so. The first 10 amendments are, it is true, a restriction upon government, but their main function is to implement the Declaration of Independence which holds certain truths to be self-evident.

Among certain truths is government by choice which was increasing during the 19th Century and has been decreasing during the 20th Century. Since the American Revolution, country after country sought to limit government, to expand the rights of the people, to destroy every form of autocracy. Since the Russian Revolution, political development has been in the opposite direction. More and more countries have been taken over in one form or another of tutelage, either by a dictatorship or by a single person, or the dictatorship of an oligarchy of a dominant political party. This trend has been justified by Karl Marx's dictatorship of the proletariat. Thus the "unfree" society has come into existence. Admiral Rickover defines the unfree society as follows:

"I use the contrasting term 'unfree' to designate any society where the people do not have effective control over their government. A great variety of political systems fall into this broad category. They range from authoritarian countries where the ruler respects the law and does not meddle with the private lives of the people except to demand political obedience, to modern totalitarian countries where rulers acknowledge no law superior to their own will and desire, where government maintains itself in power by brute force reinforced by all-pervasive propaganda, where the individual is permitted no shred of private life in which to decide matters of a personal nature."

From the standpoint of this definition, it is impossible to make a moral distinction between Hitler and Stalin, Batista and Castro. Those in our State Department, who can discover a difference between one dictator and another on a moral basis, are obviously unable to define their terms. When, for insance, the State Department makes a distinction between Trujillo of the Dominican Republic and Castro of Cuba, it cannot define its terms. If one was wicked, so was the other. If one left the people no choice, so does the other. Roosevelt's initial error was that he assumed that he could distinguish between a good dictator and a bad one. Admiral Rickover distinguishes between a free and an unfree society.

Iritis Is Usually Symptom Of Trouble Outside the Eye

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—What would cause an acute iritis? After my first attack, when I almost went blind, I was completely examined by my doctor who could find no cause.

Then I went to a surgical clinic, where they removed the left lobe of my thyroid gland. For a while I saw a little better and then I got another attack.

I can hardly see and my doctor doesn't know what to do. Have you any suggestions?

A—Iritis is usually a manifestation in the eye of a systematic disturbance that is taking place somewhere in the body other than the eye. It may be compared with the rash that appears on the skin during a generalized virus infection such as measles. Hence the search for the cause of an iritis must be conducted on a wide scale.

In my experience, the places to look, after routine surveys have been completed as in your case, are the nasal accessory sinuses that are in close proximity to the orbit (spenoid and ethnoids) and the apical regions of remaining teeth.

Whereas detection of an apical tooth abscess presents no great difficulty, and removal of the abscessed tooth is a relatively simple procedure, a difficult problem confronts even the trained nose-and-throat specialist who suspects sphenoidal and/or ethmoidal infection.

Consequently, I would suggest that, if your dentist has no solution to offer, you request your doctor to refer you to the most expert nose specialist of his acquaintance.

Be sure to alert the consultant to the difficulty of the presenting problem so that he puts aside enough time to make the type of intensive investigation that may be required to save your sight.

Q—Last October, my hearing started to go bad and now I have been told I have "nerve deafness" for which nothing can be done. Is this true? I would hate to think so and I'd be willing to act as a "guinea pig" if any one thinks there is a chance for restoration of my hearing.

A—I wouldn't give up so easily if I were you. Nor would I volunteer to act the "guinea pig." In the first place, are you sure that you're no longer exposed to whatever damaged your hearing nerve? How about drugs like arcenic, quinine or members of the streptomycin family, for example?

Secondly, your nerve deafness might not be complete. And, if this is so, you might be fitted with a hearing aid that would permit you to function reasonably well with what hearing remains.

To get more complete details about the facilities available for those who are hard of hearing, contact the American Hearing Society at its national headquarters (919—18 Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.), and/or the Deafness Research Foundation (310 Lexington Avenue, New York City 16, N. Y.).

Washington News

WASHINGTON NEWS—FRI.
By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Visiting left wing Premier Cheddi B. Jagan of British Guiana is giving the U. S. Government and its high officials the jitters.

They're not sure what to do about him.

For one thing, top administration officials are trying to get themselves off a hook.

THEY'RE TRYING TO think of some way to call Cheddi Jagan officially "not a Communist" so they can give his government U. S. aid—help in his five-year plan and in a series of agricultural and industrial ventures he is promoting.

They're embarrassed in this attempt by an official State Department ruling laid down some time ago that anyone belonging to the British Guiana People's Progressive party will not even be allowed to visit the United States because the party is Communist-dominated. Jagan is the head of the People's Progressive party.

There was no trouble letting Jagan into the U. S. As a premier, he has diplomatic privileges.

A waiver had to be issued to let in some of his aides. But it is downright difficult for officials to figure out some way to call Jagan a non-Communist.

JAGAN CALLS HIMSELF A Marxist. The British once jailed him for attempting to set up a Communist government in Guiana. His wife Janet was once a member of the Young Communist League in Chicago.

Jagan and his wife and associates have set up a series of Communist-associated youth and women's groups in Guiana.

His party paper follows the Moscow line word for word. Like Castro, he once attempted to set up "people's courts" and "people's police."

The State Department itself in an official document called Jagan a Communist earlier this year.

To get itself off the hook, the State Department is working on a new definition of "Communist." It's a man the U. S. government can prove is subject to the orders and the discipline of the international Communist movement.

THE THEORY NOW is that the U. S. cannot absolutely "prove" that Jagan takes orders and is subject to discipline. Some people hold that maybe he's just fuzzy-headed.

Therefore, the talk runs, Jagan can be officially called NOT a Communist.

If this seems a little complicated, consider the problem the U. S. government now faces vis-a-vis Jagan.

Some key government officials have about sold the administration on the idea that aid and friendship must be proffered to Jagan and his government.

These men reason that if the U. S. doesn't give aid to Jagan he assuredly will turn to the Soviet Union and absolutely take his government down the road to complete communism.

They hold that there is a possibility—a slight one to be sure, but still a possibility—that if the U. S. does proffer Jagan a little aid and friendship that maybe he will keep his country neutral and not allow Castro or Khrushchev to set up a strong base there.

THE SITUATION is much the same as it was in Yugoslavia a number of years ago. It was argued then that aid might keep the Yugoslavs out of the Moscow circle, even if they were avowed Reds.

Since then, over $2 billion have been put into Yugoslavia. The Yugoslavs come to Khrushchev's aid when the chips are down.

The men who believe the Jagan loan is worth the gamble know of this Yugoslav failure. They admit the risk is not good. They hold the U. S. has nothing to lose.

Sandburg View of Army And Eisenhower Disputed

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—Carl Sandburg, poet and biographer of Lincoln, probably will be sorry he every brought it up, and many people will differ sharply with him whe he says an Army man like Gen. Eisenhower has lived a sheltered life in a "welfare state' of his own.

Officers in the armed services will disagree vehemently. True, when they choose a military career, they are offered a certain security in their jobs but not the many benefits available in private employment today, particularly under union contracts. In training and commanding men from all walks of life, the officers actually come into contact more with individuals and deal more with human relations than do most civilians. To prepare and lead men in battle may seem to a poet a sheltered existence, but he will get little agreement on this from the soldiers who happen now, for instance, to be standing guard at the West Berlin border.

Called on Kennedy

Mr. Sandburg had just visited President Kennedy at the White House and was surrounded afterwards by reporters and television cameras at the Library of Congress when he gave vent to the following comment, as quoted by the United Press International.

"He (Eisenhower) has yet to know the people of the United States. With him the words 'socialist' and 'socialism' are dirty word—very nearly as dirty as 'welfare state.' But ever since he left the creamery at Abilene, Kan., he never bought a suit of clothes or a meal. He never was out of work for a day. All the anxieties that go with the free-enterprise system, he hasn't known them. He's lived in a welfare state ever since he left Abilene and went to West Point."

Mr. Sandburg has a strange misconception—shared by many other people—that each of the armed services provides all the needs of its men and officers. The fact is that the commissioned officer himself buys all of his clothes—his uniforms as well as the civilian clothes he wears when off duty. His "ration allowance" and "housing allowance" only partially cover the cost of meals and rental when the officer must provide a home for himself and family.

Might Ask Officers and Wives

Mr. Sandburg might ask a few officers—from the lieutenants up to the generals and admirals—what the difficulties are in raising their families on service pay as they move from post to post, and how they manage to give a college education to their children. He will find that many cannot afford this for all their children. He might also ask the wives of some officers whether they live in a "welfare state" when it comes to providing for the education of their families, for the care of sick or dependend relatively for the kind of clothes many other women wear.

Also, does Mr. Sandburg think that only a man who has had to earn money to buy his own food and clothing is eligible for the Presidency? It will surely be disputed that a man who hasn't had to earn money necessarily leads a sheltered life and doesn't know anything about the trials and tribulations of his fellow men. Certainly the affluence of Messrs. Rockefeller, Harriman and Kennedy—who have not had to work for a living—has not made a single one of them insensitive to the importance of social-welfare legislation. Incidentally, Dwight Eisenhower, while President, was criticized severely by some members of his own party when he became the champion of social-welfare projects of various kinds.

Poorly Informed

Mr. Sandburg was not well informed either in referring to Mr. Eisenhower as an "ungrammatical" President, as if fluency of speech were a criterion of a President's achievements. The truth is that there are few persons who when talking extemporaneously, always speak with grammatical precision. A look at some of the transcripts of the Kennedy press conferences will reveal more than one lip on this score.

Mr. Eisenhower does express himself well in writing. In fact, former members of his staff at the White House say that he was something of a purist. His longhand manuscripts would prove this point. Also, he often corrected what seemed to him ungrammatical English on the part of others who submitted memoranda to him. Army officers have told this writer that Dwight Eisenhower in his younger days wrote many speeches for his superiors in the Army.

New to Political Combat

It is most unfortunate that Mr. Sandburg, who probably has read a good deal of history, hasn't familiarized himself with the ways of American politics. He says Mr. Eisenhower was unfair in his criticism of the "peace corps" and that "it wasn't very good sportsmanship" for the former President to "shoot off" on this subject before the idea has "begun to have a tryout." Maybe if he will reread some of the speeches during last year's Presidential campaign about the "missile gap," he will recognize the art of political combat.

Army life isn't as easy as Mr. Sandburg has been led to believe, and, if he is interested in good sportsmanship, he will apologize to the men in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force. To say that any one of the officers in our military services has yet "to know the people of the United States" is to fail to understand the very men who devote themselves to a career in which they risk their lives so that the rest of us may continue to stay alive to watch television and even to read Mr. Sandburg's fine literary works.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Editors a little younger than the generation which was taking turns at bat in Roosevelt's reign have asked for my authority in maintaining that Henry Morgenthau actually wanted to arrange the withdrawal from Continental Europe of American troops after World War II. In that event Soviet Russia might have had little opposition in a sweep to the African mainland on the south and Gibraltar in the west. The Soviet frontier against Britain might then have been only the width of the English channel. Morgenthau wanted this done right away and it is hard to believe that a man of his intelligence and experience could not foresee the result.

The Morgenthau Plan, which Roosevelt okayed at the Quebec Conference with Churchill in 1944, but later disapproved, was set forth in typewriter script in a small volume called "Germany Is Our Problem," published by Harper and Brothers in 1945.

A note explains that the typewriter script is a reproduction of a photographic copy of the memorandum "summarizing the 'Morgenthau Plan'" which Roosevelt took with him to Quebec. It is a plan for ferocious revenge on the German people. The advantage to the Soviet Empire is clear all the way, but most obvious in the last two paragraphs. These concern the reduction of the forces of Western civilization to practically nothing.

The text of the last two paragraphs is: "Although the United States would have full military and civilian representation on whatever international commission * * * may be established for the execution of the whole German program, the primary responsibility * * * should be assumed by Germany's continental neighbors. Specifically, these should include Russian, French, Polish, Czech, Greek, Yugoslav, Norwegian, Dutch and Belgian soldiers.

"Under this program, United States troops could be withdrawn within a relatively short time."

Of course, the British would have been withdrawn too. The Communists, in our country, set up a great hullabaloo for the immediate return of American forces from both Europe and Asia. They realized that they would have hearty help from the American fighters themselves and their families and Congressmen at home. After all, they had "won a war."

Morgenthau wrote that in September, 1944, Roosevelt asked him to outline for him a program for Germany which he could take to the Quebec Conference. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, wrote in his memoirs that he knew nothing about this secret deal. He resented Morgenthau's intrusion and expressed a low opinion of Morgenthau.

Morgethau said Roosevelt knew "I had devoted a great deal of thought and study to the subject. He had observed that questions of reparations and finance could not be divorced from the broader aspects of Germany's future."

By his plan, Russia obviously would supply most of the force and control all of it. French traitor-Communists who had hidden out in Russia after they betrayed the French Army into the disaster and surrender of 1940 had now returned home and were shooting thousands of patriotic Frenchmen who had stood fast only to be smeared as "collaborators."

After the Quebec Conference, Morgenthau had the gall to write, "the basic principles of the program have represented the official position of the United States. * * * In the Potsdam Declaration signed by Truman, Atlee (Britain) and Stalin, the three principal allies were seeking to carry out the objectives of that policy. For purposes of comparison the Declaration is printed in Appendix C of this volume."

Set Tuesday Deadline For Employers' Filing

ALBANY—State Tax Commissioner Joseph H. Murphy today issued a reminder to New York State's approximately half million employers that the third quarter employer's withholding tax report (Form IT-2101) must be filed by October 31.

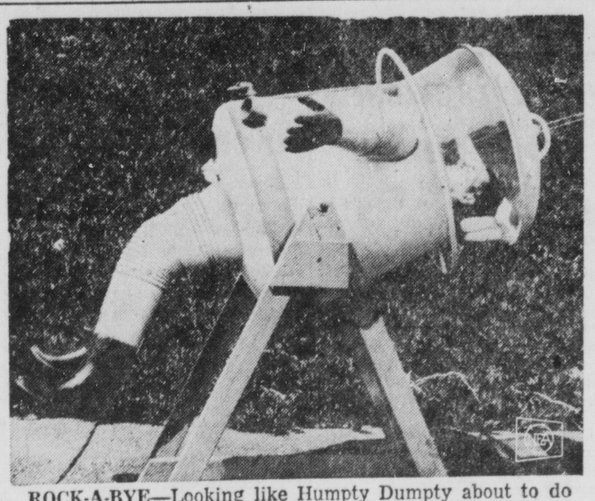

Remittance of New York State income taxes withheld from employes' wages and salaries during July, August and September must be made at the time the third quarter withholding report is filed.

To simplify record-keeping and make sure that tax payments are properly and promptly credited to employer accounts, Commissioner Murphy urged employers to use the pre-addressed forms mailed out by the State Department of Taxation and Finance, and to double check the Federal Identification Number which is used as a cross reference in Tax Department accounting.

Editor's note—Manufacturers are getting friendly with the service business. It's profitable and often promotes sales of their own goods. In this, last of three articles on the service industries, Sam Dawson, AP business news analyst, also tells how such a tie-in is good for the host communities.

NEW YORK (AP)—Many manufacturers wish you'd spend more of your income on their goods. But many others see in the service industries that are getting an ever larger share of your spending money a good market for their own wares.

And an increasing number of manufacturers and producers are getting into the service business themselves, either to share in the wealth or because of a connection between their goods and services.

Link Seems Way Out

Sometimes the connection seems way out—like Montgomery Ward and Sears, Roebuck mail order and retail chains offering package travel tours. Sometimes the connection is obvious—like General Motors and Ford subsidiaries financing dealer sales of autos on the instalment plan. Sometimes it's a wedding of convenience—like that between makers of consumer goods that sell on the instalment plan and insurers of the debtor's life.

Often manufacturers get involved in the service industries as the best way to promote use of their products.

Appliance makers have been making a good thing out of laundry and dry cleaning centers, some by furnishing the machines for independent service firms, some by setting up their own chains of coin-operated devices for the serve-yourself minded.

Standard, Inc., Little Rock, Ark., began selling dry cleaning machines nearly two years ago. Norge has several thousand in operation. ALD, Inc., distributes Westinghouse machines. Philco is starting its own chain. Whirlpool is putting dry cleaning machines in some American Oil Co. service stations.

Knee-Deep in Promotion

The fast growing recreation industry has put manufacturers of sporting equipment knee deep in the promotion of such things as bowling alleys, skiing and other resorts, company-sponsored amateur teams and leagues of all sorts.

Cosmetic makers set up their own beauty salons and chains and health ranches — some with a celebrity clientele.

Electronic companies, like International Business Machines, Remington Rand and General Electric, find the services offered smaller companies by computer centers is good business, as well as that from large companies that can buy or rent the big machines full time.

Makers of trucks and all sorts of factory equipment have found doing business with leasing companies, independent or subsidiary, to their advantage.

Rapid expansion of the school-age population, a bonanza for publishers of text books, has put some makers of school supplies in the service business. Some 32,000 vending machines now service schools in 33 states with notebooks, pens, typing paper and the like.

Leisure Time Eyed

The increase in leisure time—whether at home or on the road—is attracting more business attention. To that end, Leisure Devices, Inc., is being set up for research, development, m anufacture and distribution of labor and time saving products.

The company's aim is "To increase leisure by reducing radically the amount of time consumers as well as industry now must spend on mundane, nongratifying tasks."

Harassment Could Be Part of Soviet Aim For Talks on Berlin

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

BONN, Germany (AP)—Moscow may be expecting high-level talks on Berlin before long.

This could be an explanation of the current harassment of U.S. civilian officials at the East Berlin sector border. This has to be on Moscow's orders, since the East German Communist regime does not have sufficient independence to undertake such a perilous course on its own.

The idea of the harassment seems not to much to reheat the crisis, as to permit grabbing all the advantage possible in advance of four-power talks.

Actually, there is almost nothing to negotiate about. But from the Soviet viewpoint the talks would be a means of opening a safety valve, of letting steam out of a crisis which could explode, of providing time to digest gains already racked up since the Communists built the wall between the Berlin sectors in August.

The Western Allies, aware that Moscow is pushing for talks, appear to be trying desperately to hammer together a unified approach. But the going is slow, particularly in view of the aggressive Soviet pushing.

There are indications that the United States wants the West to go into the talks with new demands, thus providing the Westerners with something to talk about, something to negotiate.

The West could, for example, demand that any talks concern the future of all Berlin, not West Berlin alone; that the conference discuss the destruction of the Communist wall; that it discuss such things as revision of agreements covering access to West Berlin or even new corridors to Berlin.

The Russians seem to have no intention of talking about Berlin as a whole. East Berlin they now consider theirs. West Berlin they are willing to consider, for the time being, an occupied city. It is here and only there they want to eliminate, as they put it, "the remnants of World War II."

Gardner Still Serious

Edward C. Gardner, 54 of Saugerties, who was injured Wednesday afternoon when a 16-foot concrete block wall fell on him during an excavation project at a Malden Avenue gasoline station, was reported still in serious condition today at Kingston Hospital. Gardner was removing cement blocks from a wall of the old gasoline station garage in an excavation project at Brink's American Gas Service station. He was pulled out from under the debris by Joseph McGavin of Great Barrington, Mass., a foreman of the contracting firm of Coleman and Moore of Hillsdale. Village Police Chief Arthur W. Richter said Gardner suffered four fractured ribs and two fractured toes, multiple abrasions and possible internal injuries.

Phone Co.

two million telephones with all-numerical numbers in the country," he said. "The new type of telephone number will soon become familiar to everyone."

Reasons for Change

Primary reasons for the change is that the telephone company is beginning to outgrow the present two-letter five-numeral type of number. The time is in sight when demand for telephone numbers will exhaust all of the possible combinations of dial pulls that can be used to identify new central offices, Kohut declared.

"There are three main reasons why the telephone system is outgrowing its "two-five numbering plan," the manager said.

"First, an annual growth of around 3 million telephones means that more and more telephone central offices must be built—and identified.

"Second, direct customer dialing of long distance calls means that the country must be divided into numbering plan areas. With direct distance dialing, telephone numbers — particularly the part of the number that identifies the central office—cannot be repeated within the same numbering plan area.

"Third, new and improved types of service are using up telephone numbers at an increasing rate."

For More Combinations

The manager pointed out that only eight holes on the dial have letters while all of them have numerals. "This means that there are only 64 possibilities if you use letters to identify central offices.

"If you use numerals, however, you can get 80 combinations. You still can use only eight holes for the first pull—since 'one' and 'zero' must be saved for special purposes—but you can use all ten holes for the second pull."

Kohut said that many customers find dialing all-numerical numbers faster than dialing number-letter combinations "because they do not have to stop to search for letters on the dial."

Found More Accurate

He said telephone users have found that the all-numerical system is more accurate. "It gets rid of the problems in spelling names such as 'CYpress' — sometimes mis-spelled 'CIpress". It eliminates the misunderstanding of names passed along orally. It ends confusion between the letter 'O' and the numeral zero and between the letter 'I' and the numeral one.

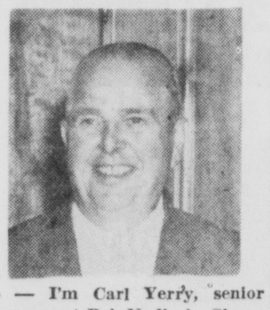

"Eventually letters won't be needed on the dial, and we'll be able to use larger, easier to read numerals. This will make it easier to dial," he declared.

Kohut pointed out that it makes no difference to the central office equipment whether you dial letters or numerals — the dial impulses are the same either way. "So, if any customer wants to have the 'new look' in telephone numbers right away, he can translate his own number."

He said that many all-numerical telephone numbers will be listed in the Kingston directory scheduled for delivery in April, 1962.

Society Chief Discusses Fallout Link to Cancer

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Is the radiation-bearing fallout from Soviet nuclear tests powerful enough to cause cancer?

If it is, it will be evident in "Mr. Khrushchev's grandchildren and all children throughout the world" in the next 10 years, the new president of the American Cancer Society said today.

"This predication is based on the assumption that the Soviet Union's present madness does not lead meanwhile to the sudden and complete annihilation of the human race," added Dr. Thomas Carlile who took office today.

"We do know that in the last 10 to 20 years there has been a sharp rise in the incidence of cancer in children and in deformed births," Dr. Carlile said in a statement released to newsmen at the close of the society's annual meeting.

"The unprecedented fallout occasioned by the Soviet Union's irresponsible testing of weapons could very well present a degree of exposure beyond critical limits for safety," he stated.

Carlile is chief of radiology at the Virginia Mason Hospital in Seattle and past president of the Society of Nuclear Medicine and of the Washington State Radiological Society. He succeeds Dr. John W. Cline of San Francisco as head of the cancer society.

Chief dangers of fallout to those persons alive now are cancer of the bone and cancer of the blood-forming and lymph tissue, more commonly called leukemia, he explained. For children as yet unborn, there is the danger of mutation.

"Mutations usually show themselves in spontaneous abortions, stillborn children, mental and physical cripples of many descriptions, and, perhaps once in a million cases, a super-human," Carlile said.

Adventists Set Sabbath Services

Sabbath school of the Kingston Seventh-day Adventist Church will start Saturday 10 a. m. with a song service led by Mrs. George Landstrom. Mrs. Carl Johnson, superintendent, will lead the opening exercises, following which, classes will separate to study and discuss the lesson for the week entitled, The Woman Who Became the Mother of Two Nations. The children will meet with Mrs. Andrew Seaman and her assistants in their Sabbath school room.

Divine worship will be at 11:30 a. m. The Rev. Eric R. Norman, pastor, has chosen as his sermon title, The Pledge of Abraham Lincoln. Saturday is World Temperance Day. Scrolls with the signatures of one million pledged to total abstinence are to be unfurled at the Temperance Rally of next year's General Conference Meeting. Adventists will have the opportunity to place their names on a scroll Saturday.

Tuesday, Halloween, the young people of the church will meet at the church at 6 p. m. ready to visit in the neighborhood for Treats for the Needy. They will call at homes for canned goods or other non-perishables to be put into Thanksgiving baskets for the poor, instead of for treats for themselves. In the past few years since the children have been doing this, the response of the people has been very good and it is hoped that this year many baskets will be filled for others.

The Dorcas Society will meet Wednesday from 2 to 4 p. m.

The fellowship hour is Wednesday from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m.

Sunday, Nov. 5, there will be a Dorcas Federation meeting in the Newburgh Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Stratton Thinks

as a part of an overall national defensive strategy," he said.

Stratton criticized Rockefeller's inclusion of the shelter question on the agenda of the Nov. 9 special session of the legislature.

"Fallout shelters will get no careful debate on Nov. 9 and the public will get no hearings," Stratton said.

The governor plans to present to the special session a program to spur construction of shelters in schools.

Stratton, a member of the House Armed Services Committee and considered a possible contender for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said Rockefeller's advocacy of individual shelters was "a dangerously haphazard approach to a subject where scattershot solutions and piecemeal programs can actually do more harm than good."

Hasbrouck Bus New Time Given

Effective Saturday Nov. 4, it was announced today, the Kingston City Transportation Corp. will operate a 40-minute schedule Saturdays on the Hasbrouck Avenue line.

Saturn A-OK

a prelaunch briefing that the rocket had a 30 per cent chance of complete success, with a 70 to 80 per cent chance of achieving principal objectives which were ignition of the eight-engine cluster and lift-off of the 462-ton vehicle.

NASA reported the four inboard engines burned today for 109 seconds. The four outboard engines, which are movable to help control flight, burned for 115 seconds. Both figures were within two seconds of the intended time.

The huge vehicle gushed torrents of flame from its eight-engine power plant as it lifted from its pad at 10:06 a.m. EST on an intended eight-minute flight to start this nation's drive to land astronauts on the moon in this decade.

Weather Delays Shot

The massive engines were designed to build up 1.3 million pounds of thrust, equal to 30 million horsepower, in 1.4 seconds. This is three times more powerful than any previous U.S. rocket and tops the estimated one-million-pound thrust of Russian space vehicles.

The launching was only a little over half an hour behind the target time, set back briefly by two brief holds while clouds cleared away to permit photographic coverage of the flight.

The Saturn sent an unearthly howl rolling over the Cape as it thundered skyward, trailing its tremendous tail of fire.

The rocket screamed on its pad for nearly four seconds as an electronic device made certain all engines ignited properly.

Then massive steel arms slipped back to release the rocket.

Hesitant at First

It rose hesitatingly, then picked up speed.

About 10 seconds after lift-off, the rocket began a gradual arc and sped toward the southeast.

Since the end of the first hold, shortly after 8:30 a.m., the great rocket had stood alone on its pad with the 310-foot service tower rolled away.

Only the first stage is on trial on the maiden flight. Two dummy upper stages are loaded with 23,000 gallons of water for ballast.

Saturn's eight engine power plant is capable of 1.5 million pounds of thrust, but scientists aren't giving the rocket its head on the initial test.

More Flights Set

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported major goals are to check performance of the eight-engine cluster; verify structural and aerodynamic design of the entire rocket, and probe workability of ground support and launch equipment.

NASA plans 10 research and development flights leading to an operational Saturn in 1964. NASA cautioned against overoptimism and said it is reasonable to expect only five successes in the 10 test launches.

Saturn's primary mission once it is operational will be to place the Apollo three-man spaceship in earth orbits lasting several weeks. An advanced Saturn, which will have 3 to 4 million pounds of thrust in the booster stage, will be used to hoist Apollo and about the moon.

Taylor Hopeful Over Viet Nam

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor lunched with the ambassadors of SEATO alliance nations today and reportedly gave them a report on the plight of Communist-menaced South Viet Nam.

An informed source said President Kennedy's special military adviser spoke with optimism about the future of South Viet Nam and its chances for surviving as a pro-Western nation. But it is believed he is privately much less hopeful.

Taylor and his party of 12 start home Saturday.

Convict Scarbeck

er, his 22-year-old Polish mistress, from the threats of the Red agents, and that he gave no information that could harm the security of the United States.

Wife Will Wait

Scarbeck's German-born wife, Karen, 37, stood by him in the court room throughout the trial. But after the case was given to the jury she left for Dusseldorf, Germany, where their three children are staying with her mother.

She said that if Scarbeck was acquitted she would return to him and if he was convicted "I will wait for him. We had many wonderful years together. I plan to stick by him."

19 Indictments Come From Jury, Seven Are Open

Seven open and 12 sealed indictments were returned today by the grand jury in a report to Supreme Court Justice William Deckelman. Jurors were excused until the opening day of the December Supreme Court term, but will not report unless summoned at the request of the district attorney.

Open indictments were:

William Maust, petit larceny.

Cleaster Hardin, second degree assault.

David T., and Betty Jane Carter, second degree forgery, eight counts.

Edward Romeo Bouthiette, third degree burglary and second degree grand larceny.

Jarrett Arnold Hart, third degree burglary and petit larceny.

John T. Figueria, illegally carrying and possessing loaded firearm.

Both the sealed and open indictments were transferred to county court on motion of Assistant District Attorney Harry Gold.

There were two dismissals. In the cases where no bill of indictment was returned, Justice Deckelman directed that bail be canceled or in the event the defendant was in jail an order of release was entered.

Grand Jury Will Hear Story of Marlboro Fatal

State police, who investigated an accident Sept. 29 in the town of Marlboro in which one man was killed and six other persons were injured, said today that evidence in the case will be presented to the next session of the grand jury.

Senior Investigator Edward Shannon said the case of Arnold Baselice, 39, of 1188 Old White Plains Road, Mamaroneck, charged with drunken driving, has been removed from justice court and evidence is now being prepared to offer it to the grand jury.

Freddie Kirby of Fishkill, a construction worker, and operator of one of three cars involved in the Route 9W mishap on Rosoff's Hill, Sept. 29, was killed. The operator of the second vehicle was Mrs. Leona Cooper, 23, of Box 375, Kingston. State Trooper James Kaljian said Baselice, heading south, crossed the double white line and first hit the northbound car of Mrs. Cooper and then the northbound automobile of Kirby.

Mrs. Cooper, Mary Cooper, 22, of Lake Katrine, Baselice, Julia Boice, 28; Carl Bois, 2, and Susan Bois, aged seven months, all suffered injuries in the accident.

Electronic Investments Need Careful Selection

ROGER E. SPEAR

Q—"It seams to me as if the electronics industry has wonderful prospects for growth. How can I pick a good electronics stock?" G. D.

A—This is no easy question. In my thirty-five years as a financial advisor, I've never seen an industry where it is more difficult to select stocks that are reasonably safe and at the same time offer good profit possibilities. That is why I have on my staff a special electronics engineering consultant. There are hundreds of small companies in this young industry which turn out scores of new products and ideas almost every day. An electronics product that seems to have a great future today can easily be outdated by a new scientific breakthrough tomorrow. The best way I can answer your question is to suggest that you check closely for four things: a capable management well-balanced between businessmen and engineers, a strong research effort backed by ample funds, a good growth curve of sales, and a good diversification of products and customers. I will mention one stock which I believe meets all these requirements—Hewlett-Packard. This stock has come down sharply in price in line with its group action and I believe it offers very good value at recent levels.

Q—"In a recent column you advised a reader to switch from Boston Edison to Virginia Electric & Power if he wanted growth. Will you please explain the difference?" J. M.

A—It boils down largely to a question of areas served. Virginia Electric serves a rapidly developing territory while Edison caters to one of the most mature parts of the nation. In the last ten years the former's share earnings have gained at a rate nearly four times that of the latter. Therefore, investors who want growth should choose Virginia Electric, but conservative accounts will be better off owning higher yielding Boston Edison.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

Farmers May Dry

let the chips fall where they may."

He said farmers were "pawns" in what he termed "a money and power game where the Teamster union, in particular, can't lose and dairymen can't win."

"The average income of dairy farmers is close to $65 for a seven-day, 80-hour week in New York and Pennsylvania," York said. "Yet if it wasn't for these farmers, Teamsters wouldn't be living off the fat of the land."

Farmers in New York and Pennsylvania now gross less than 10 cents a quart for milk shipped to New York City, he said.

He said the striking Teamsters received more than $100 a week plus commissions under their old contract and were seeking pay increases of about $10 a week.

Going to Plants

The Dairymen's League said its 17,000 members were shipping milk produced on their farms to the league's chain of manufacturing plants for use in such products as butter, cheese and ice cream.

Producers receive a lower price for milk used in manufacturing, however, than they do for fluid milk, the league pointed out.

"The full effect in dollars of the strike, as far as dairymen are concerned, cannot be evaluated as yet," the league said in a statement issued in New York City.

"Every quart of milk which must be diverted into manufacturing uses returns five cents less to producers."

Charles Braun Heads Glenford Taxpayers Group

Charles M. Braun, head of industrial engineering at Hercules Powder Company, Port Ewen was elected president of Glenford Taxpayers Association, at its second meeting Thursday night at Glenford Fire Hall.

Also elected was Mrs. Ella Elliott, secretary.

A special meeting will be held Tuesday, Nov. 14 at the fire hall to complete election of officers and appoint committees.

Arthur P. Knight, a member of Onteora Central School Board spoke of the problems confronting the school district due to growth of the area. He pointed out that the population has almost doubled in the last 10 years and showed projection charts of the anticipated growth to 1970.

Hubert A. Richter, Kingston attorney also spoke and stressed the need to remain non-political.

A question and answer period followed both addresses. Refreshments were served. Nearly 90 members attended.

State Situation Studied

U.S. Inventory Set Up To Cope With Fallout

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Public Health Service will have an inventory by late today of what each state can and can't do in coping with any fallout problems created by Soviet nuclear testing.

This is to be one result of a two-day meeting of about 100 federal, state and local health officers representing every state considering what steps might be taken on all levels of government if fallout hazards become acute.

Judson Hardy, public affairs officer of the radiological health division, said the inventory is expected to include latest information on the states' legislative, personnel and equipment capabilities. It should also bring to light what weaknesses exist, Hardy said.

All the sessions were closed to the public and newsmen.

The service, in a statement Thursday on fallout surveillance and protection, said present fallout levels from the Soviet nuclear tests do not warrant undue public concern or drastic action.

However, the statement added that the levels "do warrant continuous, intensive surveillance by federal, state and local governments and consideration of protective measures which might be taken if they should be found necessary."

The situation within each state is being considered at working sessions continuing today. Ideas are advanced by participants, discussed, then tossed out or presented as a consensus of the group at a closing general session.

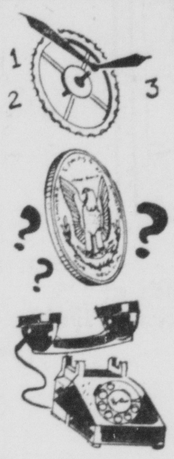

The schedule calls for adjournment in late afternoon with a news conference to summarize the meeting.

Officials who looked in on the first working sessions Thursday said it was too early to determine any conclusions.

They added that the state officials contributed heavily to discussions of states' possibilities in planning for better surveillance systems, interpretation of data, control and protective measures, and how to meet public information problems.

Man Surrenders, Sought in N. Y. Police Shooting

NEW YORK (AP) —Salvatore D'Ambrosio, who surrendered after a wide police search for him, has been charged with shooting a policeman.

D'Ambrosio, 36, was held in $25,000 bail in Kings County Court in Brooklyn. The charges were attempted murder and felonious assault.

D'Ambrosio's surrender cleared another man, Anthony Abbatemarco, 29, who had been accused in the wounding of Patrolman Melvin Blei.

Authorities said D'Ambrosio, who surrendered Thursday, was positively identified by Blei as the man who wounded him in the cheek Aug. 20 outside the Sahara Lounge, a Brooklyn tavern.

Blei was shot as he attempted to seize a man who fled from an interrupted attempt to strangle gangster Larry Gallo inside the lounge.

Buffalo to Have New Lighthouse in 1962

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The present Buffalo harbor main lighthouse, jarred from its moorings three years ago, is to be replaced next year by a new structure.

Cmdr. S. E. Taylor of the Coast Guard said Thursday the new lighthouse is scheduled to be completed by next June at the southerly end of a new west breakwater now under construction. A construction contract has been let, he told the Buffalo Courier-Express in a telephone interview from Cleveland.

The current lighthouse, at the north entrance to the harbor, was rammed by the 8,000-ton steamer Frontenac on July 26, 1958, moved 20 feet and tilted 15 degrees.

NEW YORK (AP)—Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz hit Mayor Robert F. Wagner on the crime issue again today, and Wagner pointed to his administration's achievements in public housing.

The Republican and Democratic candidates for mayor started off the day with campaign statements.

Lefkowitz accused Wagner of combating crime "with a stack of press clippings from which he can make a paper sword." He said the city has an international reputation as a lawless community and is "in the grip of fear."

Wagner, who issued the second of his series of daily "fact sheets" about his administration, said it "has done more in the field of housing built with local governmental assistance than the rest of the United States combined."

Power and Glory TV Show May Be Among the Best

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Network television has a big Sunday punch for the viewers—particularly the ones that complain there's nothing worth watching any more.

Graham Greene's novel "The Power and the Glory," adapted to a two-hour TV drama, will be hown on CBS Sunday from 9 to 11 p.m. (EDT) with a big, star-studded cast headed by Laurence Olivier and Julie Harris. And it is expected to be one of the big events of the season.

There is also NBC's "The World of Bob Hope," first of a series of documentary biographical projects using new camera techniques. This one also comes on Sunday, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Among the regularly scheduled shows during the next seven days, there are some items of passing interest:

Tonight, for instance, Lee Marvin will perform on two CBS series—"Route 66" (8:30-9:30) and "The Twilight Zone" (10-10:30). NBC's Telephone Hour (9:30-10:30) will feature the McGuire sisters, the Kingston Trio and Benny Goodman.

Saturday night's NBC movie (9-11) will be "There's no Business Like Show Business" with Marilyn Monroe, Ethel Merman and Donald O'Connor. On Monday, Gertrude Berg will visit Jackie Cooper's "Hennesey" show (CBS, 10-10:30 p.m.) and Tom Poston will star on NBC's "Thriller" (10-11).

Host Dick Powell will act in a drama of World War II on NBC's "Dick Powell Show" Tuesday night (9-10). ABC's "Close-Up" (10-11) is a study of automation called "The Awesome Servant."

Perry Como's Wednesday night (NBC, 9-10) guest is Sherley Booth. Jane Wyatt and Hans Conried star on Steel Hour's "Little Lost Sheep," a comedy (CBS, 10-11).

Thursday brings along, as usual, Miss Booth as "Hazel" (CBS, 9:30-10) and "Sing Along with Mitch" (NBC, 10-11).

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

Babson Park, Mass., Oct. 27. My column today is adressed to young people getting married, or to those in a position to advise couples starting out in life. Newlyweds should place at least a part of their joint savings, after buying essential furniture, in straight life insurance. When they are young, they can get such insurance without difficulty and at a moderate rate. Next, I recommend building up credit and establishing good will at a local bank. It is a wise move to rent a small safe-deposit box for jewelry and important papers, including wills. Don't forget to make wills, even if you haven't much capital.

Bank Accounts Valuble

It is important to keep a reasonable deposit in your local bank for emergencies—and a portion for possible later investment when conditions are less clouded and you have more funds. After you put money in the bank, don't withdraw it until the proper time comes, and then only after careful consideration. Think of your bank account as sacred, not to be disturbed except for these pre-considered contingencies.

The young may think the idea unimportant, but there is no better way of building up a reputation for thrift, honesty, and hard work than by starting a bank account and MAKING REGULAR DEPOSITS. Become acquainted with an officer of the bank and speak to him every time you go in, so that he will come to know you and will be able to give you a good reference if you need one. Getting to know bank officials can be as valuble to you as your bank-account interest payments.

Banks Today Are Safe

During the bank-closing emergency in the 1930's practically all the weaker banks were done away with, so that financial institutions today are in a safe and profitable position. This brings me to the question of bank stocks, which I recommend as an investment. . . particularly the stock of your local bank with which you do business. Practically any local bank could be liquidated for more than its published assets, so that you as a stockholder would probably get more than you paid for your shares. Five or ten shares of such stock would probably be one of the very best investments for a young married couple.

Investing In Bank Stocks

If you are going to put more than a moderate sum into bank stocks, it would be wise to get the Annual Reports from at least two or three banks and go over them carefully. Any bank will give you an Annual Report, whether you are a customer or not, and in most states these reports must be published in the papers every year. After my father's death, I recall finding a scrapbook in which were pasted all the Annual Reports of our hometown Gloucester banks, clipped from the Gloucester Daily Times.

Most people look for the bank with the largest deposits, but let me give you a hint about this. When bankers talk to me about their "large deposits," I always say, "Well, you certainly owe a good deal of money!" Because it should be realized that a bank's deposits represent money that must be paid back to the depositors sooner or later. Therefore, when appraising bank statements, be sure to subtract the deposits from the total assets to find out what would be left for the stockholders.

In considering bank stocks, always check up on the character, integrity, and ambition of the men in charge of the bank's operations. Be sure that the officials are in good health, and that their judgement is sound. It is a good sign if they are church-going men. It is, of course, an extremely bad sign if they are addicted to liquor or indulge in known excesses.

It is worth while to know the qualifications of the bank directors. Be sure, for instance, that these men have not taken their positions as a mark of distinction rather than responsibility. Of course, the bank's assets are under constant supervision of the regular examiners, so there need be little worry on this score. Hence, if a depression strikes, I feel that bank stocks may be in a stronger position than perhaps any other category of stocks.

Marbletown Body Provides Funds For Tree Project

Marbletown Community Project this week initiated a program which should provide memorial Christmas trees in nine township communities, it was announced by Kenneth E. Osterhoudt, chairman.

In a letter dated Wednesday, a starting fund of $10 was mailed to Cottekill, Atwood, Kripplebush, Lyonsville, Vly, Lomontville, Marbletown, Stone Ridge and High Falls for a memorial Christmas tree lighting project.

At a recent public meeting of the Marbletown Community Project committee it was decided to enclose a $10 contribution to each of the nine communities to encourage establishment of an outdoor community Christmas tree. Those communities who already have an outdoor community tree project may use the money for other Christmas season activities, the letter suggested.

In Stone Ridge a lighting service and program is scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 17 at 7:30 p. m. Donations for a bulb in memory of a loved one may be sent to the Marbletown Community Project, Stone Ridge.

This Sunday service will be the observance of youth day.

Breeds Confusion

CHIPLEY, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. B. Nelson says she has a terribly confused turkey gobbler, In the first place, she says, he tried to make like a turkey hen. And in the second, the egg he tried to hatch was a pumpkin. Mrs. Nelson says the male turkey adopted the small pumpkin after a larger pumpkin had been picked from the vine. He hovered over it, day and night, for two weeks.

THE FACTS ON ROAD WORK REFORM!!!

JOHN SCHWENK has promised to save $200,000 a year on road work alone by:

1. Instituting a strict program of street maintenance and repair designed to limit the need for complete street reconstruction at high cost.
2. Revitalizing the leadership of the Public Works Department to make that organization more efficient and capable of handling the city's road work without the added expense of private contractors.
3. Utilizing a new method and material for street resurfacing which will save over 75% on current Kingston resurfacing costs, and give the city safe, more weather resistant streets.

The City of Kingston Currently Pays:

$3.80 to $4.50 for street reconstruction*

$2.40 to $2.80 for street resurfacing*

*per square yard

The City of Binghamton Currently Pays:

50 Cents for street resurfacing*

The material Binghamton uses:

1. Has saved that city $500,000 a year on its street program.
2. Is a mixture of asphalt, stone, and sand.
3. Is stronger and safer at ⅜ of an inch than conventional asphalt at 1½ inches.
4. Can be made in the Kingston area by private enterprise.

Daniel Lammon Is Retiring After 58 Years Service

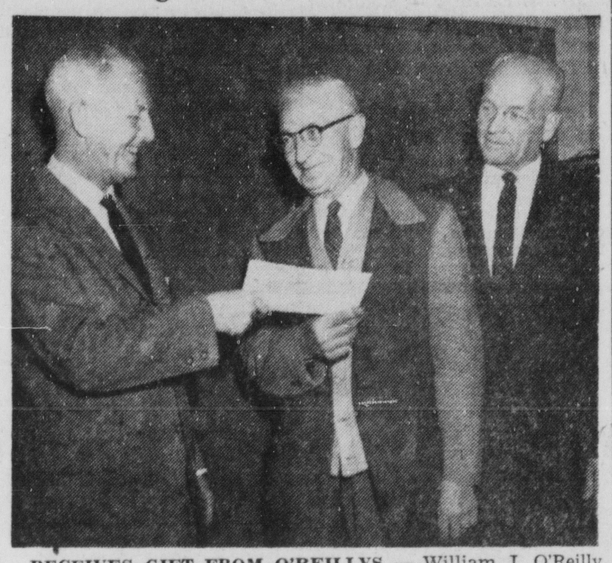

Daniel Lammon, of 31 Shufeldt Street, after 58 years of employment in an outstanding local business, retired today.

Employed first with the William O'Reilly stationery and news store when it was at 530-32 Broadway, he continued with it when it moved and became William O'Reilly, Inc., at 611 Broadway where it has expanded with the sale of office equipment as well as stationery.

Mr. Lammon began as a newsboy some 15 years after the business was started by the late William O'Reilly in a central Broadway building near what is now the east end of the railroad underpass. He was then about 16 years old. He handled newspapers for about three years.

Later he worked as a bookkeeper and through other experience gained a thorough knowledge of various phases of the business. He knew it when horse and wagons were used for trucking and he saw it develop through the years.

When the Ashokan Reservoir was being built, he recalls, he had some experience "on the road," covering some of his territory by horse and wagon and visiting such communities as Olive Bridge, Brown's Station and Shokan. Post cards were among items of sale during those tours.

The first O'Reilly store opened in 1888, that year of the big blizzard. Travel was said to be hazardous in that crippling storm, but in tribute to Mr. Lammon's persistence in getting to his job, William J. O'Reilly, president of William O'Reilly, Inc., had something to say about a big snow last winter.

Both vehicular and pedestrian traffic were slowed up or stopped in last winter's deep snow, he recalled, and it was felt that Mr. Lammon would be among those hampered in making his way through the snow. A truck was sent to get him, not knowing that he was on his way afoot, and when the truck returned its driver found Mr. Lammon in the store.

Mr. Lammon is married to Mary V. Baker Lammon. They have been married 48 years, and have three sons and seven grandchildren. Daniel Lammon Jr., of Corning, is an executive with the Corning Glass Co. Robert is employed with Western Printing, Poughkeepsie, but lives in Kingston, and Raymond, resides in Troy.

The O'Reillys, who also operate the O'Reilly Stationery Co. Inc., 38 John Street, presented Mr. Lammon with a gift as a token of his years of service with them.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)— When William Nichols, producer of next Sunday night's "The Ziegfield Touch," needed a narrator with glamor he sought out Joan Crawford.

She had never been in a Ziegfield show, she had never met the fabulous Flo. But Joan has that elusive quality, glamor, notably lacking in the current crop of starlets.

"It does seem to have disappeared," Miss Crawford admitted. "Glamor takes preparation and hard work. It has to be started with the starlets, and they can't do it alone. The studios have to help and they just don't bother today.

"In television, they have to work so fast, the hours are so long and the contracts with the players so different, that there just isn't time to prepare the attractive young performers for real stardom. Instead they just shove them into being personalities—and that's very different."

Joan, conceding that ability is certainly an important asset for an actress, insists that equally important is the way in which he —or more likely, she—is presented to the public.

"In the great days at Metro," she reflected, "they carefully developed the great, the glamorous stars, particularly the women. They protected them, they made them remote, belonging to another, more wonderful world. But today there is none of this protective quality. Why, today, there is no chance for any person to be developed like Garbo—who is still a figure of glamor, still aloof and unknown."

Joan, presumably, will treat the subject more comprehensively soon: She and writer Jane Ardmore have just finished the manuscript of a biography, "Portrait of Joan" to be published in the spring.

Recommended Sunday viewing: "The World of Bob Hope," NBC, 7:30-8:30 p.m. (Eastern Daylight Time) — Documentary biography; "The Power and the Glory" CBS, 9-11—Sir Laurence Olivier, Julie Harris and Martin Gabel in an adaptation of the Graham Greene novel.

Niagara Reservoir Has Water First Time

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—the 1,880-acre Niagara Power Project reservoir has water in it for the first time.

The water was pumped in Thursday by the New York State Power Authority through the Lewiston pump-generator station.

A total of 240,000 kilowatts of power will be produced daily when the process is in full operation, probably next year.

Water pumped into the reservoir during the night will be released back through the Lewiston generator during the day and then will flow through a 13-generator main station on the edge of the Niagara gorge.

North Muddles Into Underbid

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

North's pass of his partner's one spade bid is a splendid example of muddled thinking.

North remembered that South had dealt and passed. He forgot the fact that in spite of the pass it would be very easy for South to have enough for a game opposite North's good 14 points.

When you open in third or fourth seat, you don't have to respond to your partner's nominally forcing response. What's more, you should not respond with a minimum or sub-minimum, but North did not have a minimum hand. He had 14 high card points and while his distribution was flat he did have two honors in his partner's suit.

If North wanted to be conservative, he might have rebid one no-trump, but I would favor an immediate raise to two spades.

The no-trump call might have given South a problem. A spade raise would have made it easy to go on to game.

Of course, four spades is a lay down. All declarer has to do is to draw trumps as soon as he gets the lead. He will wind up losing one diamond and two hearts, but three tricks for the defense will not set the major suit game contract.

Paris Firefighters Trace Lineage Back to Imperial Decree of Napoleon - - -

Paris' "Silver Helmets," the only such military-firefighting unit in Europe, turn out smartly during their annual review.

Latest addition to the Paris Fire Department is this modern fireboat, equipped to fight fires on or from the Seine River.

Men of the "Regiment des Sapeurs-Pompiers" (sappers-firemen) go into action to fight a potentially dangerous Paris fire.

The Paris Fire Brigade is the only one in Europe which is a full-fledged military unit. It was created in 1811 by decree of Emperor Napoleon I after one of the most disastrous fires in the city's history. Ever since then it has been known as the "Regiment des Sapeurs-Pompiers" (sappers-firemen). Parisians usually refer to members as the "Silver Helmets." They are an integral part of the French army, and service in the unit counts the same as the military duty to which all Frenchmen are subject. Recruits must be single, between 18 and 25, and must pass a three-day series of exhaustive tests. Initial hitches are three years in length. Esprit de corps among the 4,000 officers and men of the brigade are high. They were called on to combat 34,000 fires in Paris and its suburbs during 1960.

Special Kittens Are Flown From Germany

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Four kittens with curly coats, crooked whiskers and out-sized ears arrived here after leaping East Berlin's concrete curtain —by airliner.

The rare kittens were ordered by Mrs. William O'Shea, of Vernon, N.Y., from an East Berlin breeder, Dr. Runia Scheuer-Karpin.

Mrs. O'Shea, a cat fancier and wife of a Mohawk Airlines pilot, was told by KLM the Dutch airline, that it doubted the communists would let even a cat leave East Berlin. But KLM said it would try.

Then LOT, the Polish airline, told KLM, "anything you can do, we can do," and flew the cats to Amsterdam, Holland. KLM took over from there to New York, where Mr. O'Shea cleared the two-month old kittens through customs and delivered them to his wife Thursday.

Kennedy Policies Confusing Allies, Says GOP Leader

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Kennedy administration's record in Laos, Cuba and Berlin "is enough to confuse our allies around the world," the Republican national chairman says.

On domestic issues, Democrats have done "nothing" new on agriculture, labor, civil rights or long-term foreign aid financing," said Rep. William E. Miller of Lockport Thursday night.

There will be a Republican House of Representatives and increased GOP senatorial and gubernatorial strength in 1962; and a Republican president in 1964, he told a group of local Republicans.

Robert Fulton, who had a patent on steam navigation and other boat experiments, also painted miniature portraits.

Too Detailed for Ordinary Citizen

New Brawl Building Up Over Battle of Budget

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The budget is like a black balloon. It keeps going up but you can't see through it.

Since it's what the government spends, for everything from missiles to pencils, it affects all our lives.

But no ordinary citizen can understand it. It's too big, too detailed, too complicated.

Yet, a brawl over it is building up between the politicians of both parties. It will get worse in the weeks ahead.

$7 Billion Deficit

Over this weekend the Kennedy administration will make a forecast:

That this year's spending will be near $89 billion, a peacetime record; that government income, or revenue, will be only about $82 billion; and that therefore the budget deficit will be around $7 billion.

Two good reasons make the budget opaque:

1. What goes into it—meaning what the President and his aides, and later Congress, think it is necessary to spend—is after all a matter of judgment.

That alone means disagreement.

2. The budget figures—the list of expenses the President thinks necessary and submits to Congress every year for approval—fill a volume as big as a metropolitan telephone directory.

No unitiated man could understand it all. In fact, just five days ago a congressional committee complained the whole budget procedure is 40 years out of date and should be modernized.

GOP Returns Compliments

When President Eisenhower ran deficits the Democrats quickly gave him whatfor. And he had some beauts, too.

One year it was $12.5 billion. For the fiscal year ending last June 30, President Kennedy announced in July, Eisenhower's deficit was $3.9 billion.

Now that Kennedy is running a deficit, the Republicans are returning the compliment. Eisenhower already has started banging away.

He not only recently criticized Kennedy's spending ,but added: "The state of confusion I now sense in Washington is like a tornado—on a spring day."

Democrats—but not Kennedy—promptly reminded him of that $12.5 billion deficit of his own. But after Kennedy goes into some detail in this weekend report there will be enough ammunition to keep the politicians shooting for months.

Meanwhile Kennedy has some ready explanations for his deficit: Getting the economy out of a tailspin, building up necessary defenses.

Opposition Skeptical

As if to take some of the edge off the Republican criticism he can expect after this weekend, Kennedy has done things like these:

He urged his Cabinet and agency heads to be frugal in spending and hold down the number of government workers "to the minimum consistent with getting the job done."

But his administration has promised a balanced budget next year. The Republicans will be highly skeptical, and probably will tell him so before he ever tells Congress next January what the next year's budget should be.

Would Give College PapersOwnPersonality

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) —College publications should be given a personality of their own instead of being patterned on the style of daily newspapers, says Paul Miller, president of Gannett Newspapers.

Miller made the remarks Thursday night to about 100 students at a three-day convention of the University of New York Collegiate Press Association.

He said the letters of the word "press", as related to college journalism, could stand for; P-Personality; R-Research, responsibility and readability; E-Enterprise; S-Salesmanship of new ideas, and S-Service to readers and advertisers.

"Finding new ways to present the news is often as important as getting the news," Miller said.

The delegates will participate in a series of workshops today. The convention ends Saturday.

Features of Interest To Food Shoppers

LOUISE M. KAKARGO
Asst. Home Demonstration Agent

Anyone who cooks very often realizes the importance of onions for flavor, as well as their convenience and economy.

While shopping the other day, I noticed that fresh onions proved to be the most economical, even though New York State's crop is smaller this year than it has been.

When purchasing the onions, you may notice they are often packed in three pound polyethylene bags.

I find medium size onions to be the most prevalent. Farmers prefer to raise them because they are less susceptible to bacterial damage. We consumers like them because they are used up quickly. Storage of an unused portion of onion is a problem, in the refrigerator, the strong odor of onions will be picked up by other foods unless placed in a tightly sealed container, and a medium onion fits itno our cooking needs better than the jumbo.

To prevent sprouting and decay, store onions in a cool, dark, and dry place in a loosely woven bag or container with good circulation of air.

Onions may be purchased in other forms too. Finely chopped dehydrated or instant minced onion may be used in dishes calling for much liquid or in stuffings, hamburgers, or meat loaf where steam will rehydrate the onion. Instant minced onion is an onion concentrate; use ¼ as much as you would fresh onion.

Instant sliced onion is similar to instant minced onions. They are used for sauteed onion rings. Use 3 tablespoons water to 4 tablespoons of slices.

I find convenience in canned and frozen onion products, but these are generally more expensive than fresh onions. Canned onions are ideal when making kabobs—their shape and texture make them ready to use, no need to quarter and parboil as with fresh onions.

Canned French fried onions are another natural for convenience. They combine well with green beans to make a casserole dish. Alternate layers of cooked green beans and onions in a casserole. Pour a mixture of canned condensed cream of mushroom soup, canned mushrooms, and sliced toasted nuts. Sprinkle grated cheese and bake for 30 minutes.

At the Markets

Meat—Seasonal increases in marketings of livestock are under way. Recent marketings of beef, veal, lamb, and pork have been higher than in August and early September. Larger numbers of livestock are expected in the coming weeks. The consumption pattern also shifts in the fall with shoppers choosing roasts and longer cooking cuts more often than in summer. While there may be some price declines this fall, especially for pork, retail meat prices generally are expected to be quite stable.

Dry Beans—Fall weather has favored dry bean production, and as a result another good crop is in prospect.

Fruits—All apples remain exceptionally plentiful and low in price. Market reporters say color is improving on most varieties with the pale color giving way to rosier hues, as seasonal weather aids quality. Avocadoes are still in season and are available at reasonable prices. The new cranberry crop is a good one and stocks on hand are heavy, so cranberries are a top buy.

Miss Charlotte Mary Niedzwicki, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Niedzwicki of Ruby and John Francis Stenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stenson Sr. of 5 Appletree Drive, Saugerties, were wed at St. Joseph's Church, this city 12:30 p. m. Saturday, Oct. 14.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Stephen P. Connelly, PR, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony and the nuptial Mass. The Papal Blessing was received.

Mrs. Frank Rafferty was organist and Robert Gallo, soloist. Selections included Ave Maria, Panis Angelicus, O Lord I Am Not Worthy and Mother Beloved.

White chrysanthemums decorated the main altar with baskets of mixed chrysanthemums on the side altars. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of French silk illusion lace over peau de soie styled with a Sabrina neckline and long sleeves tapered to points over the wrists. The bouffant skirt terminated in a chapel train and was trimmed at the back with a garland of silk organza roses. Her illusion veil was secured by a crown of pearls and rhinestones. She carried a lace covered missal with a cascade of white rosebuds, stephanotis and ivy streamers.

Mrs. William Nappi of Huntington, L. I., a cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Her gown of white peau de soie was fashioned with scooped neckline, bell shaped skirt and gold cummerbund. Her pillbox hat was designed with a border of gold leaves and circlet veil. She carried a colonial nosegay of gold rosebuds with clusters of frosted grapes and ivy.

Bridesmaids were the Misses Christene Luczat of Yonkers, cousin of the bride, Kathleen Gibbons of Kingston; Mary Ann and Karen Stenson, sisters of the bridegroom.

They were gowned in gold peau de soie with matching pillbox hats. Their flowers were golden rosebuds arranged with frosted grapes and tied with white satin bows.

Stephanie Black, cousin of the bridegroom was flower girl. She wore a gold peau de soie gown with very full skirt, puffed sleeves. Her headpiece was a garland of gold leaves and tulle. She carried a basket of yellow rose buds.

Thomas Stenson Jr. of Kingston was best man for his brother. Ushers were Robert C. Niedzwicki, brother of the bride; Parker Black, cousin of the bridegroom; John Ferracane and Robert Graney, cousin of the bridegroom. Thomas Stenson III, nephew of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

A reception was held at the Capri Restaurant, Port Ewen for approximately 90 guests from Long Island, Yonkers, Staten Island, and Brooklyn. Music for dancing was by Joe Vigna and his band.

The bride wore a traveling ensemble of fawn colored wool sheath dress with matching accessories and a white gardenia corsage. After a wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, the couple will reside at Fairmont Avenue, this city.

The bride is a graduate of the Academy of St. Ursula and is employed as a secretary at IBM Kingston. Mr. Stenson is a graduate of Kingston High School and a veteran of overseas service with the U. S. Army. He is employed by IBM, Kingston.

Legendary Beauty Is To Sit for Portrait On Halloween Night

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

HENNIKER, N.H. (AP) — Legend has it she was 6 feet tall with red hair and green eyes—a striking Irish beauty who set hearts aflutter in the mid-18th century.

Not many people have seen her lately, and since there are no known pictures Louis Maurice Auguste Roy is having a medium from East Weymouth, Mass. come in Halloween night to try to get a good look.

From the medium's description he'll paint her portrait and, as he slyly puts it: "Who can say she doesn't look like that?"

L. M. A. Roy (he understandably prefers initials) uses the present tense in referring to Ocean Born Mary, an original occupant of the house he has lived in more than 40 years. To him she is not just a colorful legend and sometime ghost, nor merely a source of dimes and quarters that trickle in from tourists now that the old Georgian mansion is a landmark on the New Hampshire map. She is a benign spirit keeping him from injury, because he is taking care of the house she loved.

His mother, who died at 90 in 1949, saw Mary three times, he says, but he never has. Since her death he has lived alone, "never having found the right girl to marry."

Now nearing 79 and deadset on reaching 100, Roy is a small, supple man who can still do handstands. His blue eyes sparkle as he pads about in sneakers plying visitors with tales of pirates, buried treasure, and of course, Ocean Born Mary.

She was born at sea in 1720 to the wife of the sea captain bringing a party of Scotch-Irish immigrants from Ireland to New Hampshire. Not far from Boston Harbor a pirate crew boarded, and threatened all with death. But the pirate chief, a Captain Pedro who turned out to be a sentimental sort, spared their lives when it was promised the newborn baby would be named Mary after his mother. He presented her with a bolt of greenish-blue brocaded silk, which he said he hoped would be made into her wedding gown.

It was, and she wore it at her marriage to Thomas Wallace. When she later became a widow with four sons, Captain Pedro, who had kept track of her through the years, invited her to keep house for him in a magnificent Georgian house he was building near here. She lived in it until she died at 94.

If the medium doesn't see Mary after next week, maybe some passerby will. Several are on record over the years as having seen a tall woman in white drive down the road in the fancy open coach the pirate gave Mary, descend to throw a bundle in a nearby well, and then disappear in the distance. It was probably just coincidence it usually happened on Halloween.

PLANS HAVE BEEN CHANGED

Q: My husband was recently transferred to another part of the country, and we made all preparations to move. The transfer received a front page notice in the local newspaper. My husband went on ahead in order to find a house for us to live in. After a month he found that the climate did not agree with him and he is going to return to his former position and so we will not be moving after all. Now my problem is, what to do with the going-away presents I have received from many of my friends. My daughter also received a going-away present from her scout troop. I am really terribly upset over this and would appreciate your help.

A: I am sure that neither you nor your daughter's friends expect you to return their presents. Your daughter might invite her troop to a party to celebrate the fact that she is not leaving them, and you might also follow her example by giving a party for your friends who gave you going-away presents.

Wishes to Avoid Duplicate Presents

Q: Very soon I will be giving a surprise kitchen shower for a very dear friend of mine. To avoid duplication, would it be proper to write at the bottom of each invitation what each guest should bring? I have seen this done and it has been very successful, but is it proper?

A: I am sorry, but each guest should be allowed to bring whatever she chooses to give. Your friend will be free later to exchange all duplicates for things she did not receive.

First Invitation to Dinner

Is it ever permissable for a girl to take the first step and invite a young man to her house for dinner before she has asked her for a date?

A: Only if he is the son of old friends of your parents and they invite him.

FALL EDUCATION PROGRAM—Attending a dinner prior to the fall education program meeting of District Nurses Association are (seated l-r) Miss Antoinette Mauro, program chairman; Dr. Bernice E. Anderson of Teachers College, Columbia University, guest speaker; and Kathryn Heavey of the program committee. Standing, Mrs. Marie Stewart, president of District 11 and Mrs. Gladys Andersen, secretary. Dr. Anderson spoke at the meeting on the legal aspects of nursing. (Freeman photo)

District Nurse Association Fall Program Features Talk on Legal Aspects of Career

Speaking to an audience of nurses at the auditorium of the Benedictine Nurses Home in Kingston Thursday evening, Dr. Bernice E. Anderson of Teachers College, Columbia University, made a searching examination of the actions or the omission of action which may bring the nurse into a law court.

The fall program meeting of the District Nurses Association was oepned by Mrs. Marie Stewart, president, and the speaker was introduced by Miss Antoinette Mauro, program chairman.

Dr. Anderson stressed that each person is held under law responsible for his own acts and no one can sustitute for him or her. Listing reasons for the expanding area of nurses' responsibility, she mentioned larger hospital units complicated apparatus used for tests and treatments, more workers to be supervised, more potent medicines, doctors prone to delegate more duties to nurses and new scientific knowledge with which she must be familiar.

The nurse must know what she should do and what she should not do in any situation where nursing knowledge is required, she said. Judgment of her act will be based on the legal definition of nursing practice under state law, the official "Functions, Standards and Qualifications" for each section of nursing published by the American Nurses Association, what the nurse was taught, and precedents set by previous legal decisions. Categories under which legal action may be taken include negligence, assault and battery, false imprisonment, slander or libel and breach of contract.

These terms were illustrated by specific instances involving nursing situations.

Dr. Anderson also stressed the value of having insurance protection even when a nurse is not guilty under the law. District Association members may obtain this through the American Nurses Association group plan.

Dr. Anderson was entertained at dinner at Judie's before the meeting. At the close of the program, refreshments were served by Miss Esther Schisa and Mrs. Elizabeth Korzendorfer of the public health section and Mrs. Jeannette Martino and Mrs. Anne Fuller of the Benedictine Alumnae Association.

Working with Miss Mauro on the program committee were Miss Barbara Clark of Kingston Hospital, Miss Kathryn L. Heavey of Kingston, Mrs. Maureen Seche, Benedictine Hospital, and Miss Ursula O'Sullivan, Mrs. Alice Dolan and Mrs. Theresa Notarnicola of Catskill.

'Unicorn' Comes Out Of Garden, In Salon For Spring Fashions

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—The unicorn, that favorite mythical beast of the Middle Ages, was supposed to have looked like a white horse with a long horn on his forehead.

It seems somewhat unlikely therefore that a fashion designer, who knows better than anyone how touchy women are about being equated with equines, would name her choice new silhouette after a horse's relative, however imaginary.

But Pauline Trigere boldly introduced the unicorn at her resort and spring showing Thursday night. Presumably she created no hard feelings.

It was gone at cautiously, of course. First, there was the unicorn hairdo by Michel Kazan. Each model's hair was swirled high on her head, the sides brushed forward and the top down over the forehead.

Soon they began wearing little cone-shaped unicorn hats by Miss Trigere and Mr. John, possibly inspired by the famous movie headgear of the late Chico Marx. The hats were worn precariously far back on the head, remaining secure only by the uncompromising position of the models' S-shaped spines.

Finally came the unicorn silhouette, and it seemed the high-busted, high-waisted empire all over again.

There was one startler: A unisleeve dress. One long sleeve and one bare arm protruded from a pale blue fragonard knit. It seemed just the thing to give a split personality a little chic.

Color was rampant in Miss Trigere's resort collection. Tropical flora and fauna were reproduced either in color or print on slim, easy, wearable dresses. Some had reversible capes or stoles.

Waistlines were mostly at the usual place, and skirt length seems unchanged for the new season.

Miss Carol Quick, Burton W. Berryann Wed at Chichester

Miss Carol Mae Quick, daughter of Mrs. Laura Quick of Allaben and Elijah Quick Sr. of Phoenicia exchanged marriage vows with Burton W. Berryann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Berryann Sr. of Mt. Tremper Saturday, Oct. 21, at 2 p. m. The ceremony took place in the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Chichester, with the Rev. Robert Pepper, pastor, officiating. Miss Esther Riseley of Allaben was pianist. The church was decorated with large white chrysanthemums and small mums.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a street length dress of blue nylon over blue taffeta, with matching hat and shoes and carried a white Bible with white carnations and streamers.

Mrs. Charles Berryann of Mt. Tremper, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a street length dress of pink nylon net over pink taffeta, white accessories and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Charles Berryann of Mt. Tremper was best man for his brother. Ushers were Richard Merwin of Hunter, brother-in-law of the bride, and Richard Shultis of Wittenberg.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of pink lace over taffeta with matching accessories and a corsage of white mums. The mother of the bridegroom wore a blue crepe dress with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses.

A reception was given for 60 guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Berryann Sr. of Mt. Tremper. The four tier wedding cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Herman Quick of Chichester, sister-in-law of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Berryann attended Onteora Central school. The bridegroom is employed by Jacob Krein of Phoenicia. They will live in Phoenicia.

Louis Halasz, reporter at the U. N. for the Research Institute of America, will be the first speaker for the 1961-62 Community College series. Halasz will speak on "New Directions in U. S. Foreign Policy" in Orange County Community College auditorium Sunday, Nov. 5 at 7:30 p. m.

New York Opera Quartette will present music from operas and lighter musical shows on Sunday, Dec. 3. Other programs include Elmer Rice speaking on "The World Theatre and The Social Environment" Sunday, Feb. 11, 1962; The Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra under the direction of Claude Monteux Sunday, March 11, 1962; and Pulitzer Prize winner Hodding Carter whose topic is "A New Southern Story Begins" Sunday, April 8, 1962.

Halasz is a native of Hungary where he was educated and practiced law briefly before turning to journalism for his life's work. On the staff of the Hungarian News Agency, he summarized and analyzed international military and political news until 1947. Actively opposed to the Communist domination of his homeland, he served as assistant editor-in-chief of the opposition Freedom Party's newspaper in Budapest. Escaping from Soviet harassment a year later, he spent three years in European exile before coming to the United States in 1951.

Shortly after his arrival here, Dr. Halasz joined Radio Free Europe as a writer, editor and reporter. In 1955 he was assigned to cover the United Nations, a post held until the momentous Fifteenth General Assembly session in 1960, when he resigned to accept an appointment in the Office of Public Information of the United Nations. At the end of this historic meeting, he decided to return to the field of journalism and is continuing his reporting of the United Nations for the Research Institute of America.

A limited number of series' tickets are available to the public through the Community Services Division office at Orange County Community College.

Girls Enjoy Night At Opera, Soviet Tanks There, Too

BERLIN (AP)— Two attractive young American red-haired sisters breezed into East Berlin in a little red car for a night at the opera. They got out only minutes before Soviet tanks lumbered into position near the Communist opera house.

"What a panic," giggled Mary Barber, 19, surprised at all the border fuss on their return to the U.S. checkpoint Thursday night.

Mary and her sister Nancy, 22, fromr Joliet, Ill., went into the Communist zone to catch a performance of Handel's "Ezio." They got salutes from the East Berlin police who waved them on after they showed their passports.

"Friendly, not antagonistic at all. Nice and sort of fun," Nancy recalled in describing the Communist police.

And the girls had a wonderful time at the opera, they said. The Soviet tanks didn't pull up until shortly after they left for the Western zone. Newsmen at the border gave them their first word of how close they came to getting caught in a traffic jam.

It was their second sightseeing foray into the Communist zone of the day. The first trip over was to buy tickets.

The sisters are studying French in Paris and came to Germany last weekend in a rented car.

TOKYO (AP)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker of Canada rode through the streets of Tokyo in a decorated horse-drawn carriage today for an audience with Japanese Emperor Hirohito.

The Canadian leader delighted his airport welcomers by delivering one sentence of his short arrival address in Japanese. "I have arrived today in Japan and I bring greetings from the people of Canada," he said in halting Japanese. For Japan, it was an almost unprecedented gesture by a foreign dignitary.

Assuming God Is Always With West Termed Idolatry

WASHINGTON (AP)—A prominent Protestant said today that while "we are opposed to communism as a faith and as an ideology and as a political system," it is a "covert idolatry" to assume that God is always on the West's side in the cold war.

The Rev. John C. Bennett, dean of the faculty of the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, made his comments in a speech for the 34th annual conference of the Catholic Association for International Peace.

Speaking of possible success against communism, the seminary dean said: "The fact that the United States is a status quo nation, fearful of radical change and influenced by a large body of opinion that is still committed to an uncritical capitalistic ideology is one of the greatest obstacles to the success of the Free World in upholding its own against communism.

"The utterly self-defeating character of the intransigeant forms of conservative anticommunism in this country is amazing to contemplate."

In stating that it should not be assumed that God is always on the West's side, Dr. Bennett said: "It is our temptation to assume that, because our opponents are atheists, God must be on our side, and to overlook the extent to which communism itself is a judgment upon the sins and failures of the middle class world, upon the Christian world.

"The very atheism of communism is a judgment upon the churches which for so long were unconcerned about the victims of the industrial revolution and early capitalism and which have usually been ornaments of the status quo, no matter how unjust it has been."

Dr. Bennett added: "The temptation to turn the cold war into a holy crusade is ever with us and in so far as we yield to it we make impossible the tolerable and humaneness which must yet come into international relations if there is to be a future for mankind."

Dr. Bennett differed with those who would rule out coexistence with communism. "Their view of the cold war," he said, "will almost certainly lead to hot war and to the nuclear catastrophe which will add to the victims of tyranny scores and perhaps hundreds of millions of new victims."

No Names on Ballot

KEOTA, Iowa (AP) — There won't be any names on the ballot here for the Nov. 7 election of city officers.

The reason: All the candidates for town offices forgot to have their nomination papers signed and notarized, as required by law.

City Clerk Jack McFadden said the mistake wasn't discovered until too late to remedy the situation. He said the citizens will have to elect a mayor and five councilmen by write-in ballot.

ELECTION CRY: Abraham Lincoln is credited with originally making this statement in 1864 and it has been a popular election cry for many years. It was just a casual remark of Lincoln's and he attributed no importance to it.

5 Get Maximum Terms in Murder Of Postal Worker

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Maximum prison sentences have been given to five young men who were acquitted of first-degree murder charges in the 1958 holdup-killing of a postal worker and pleaded guilty to other charges arising from the slaying.

Sentenced Thursday by Erie County Judge Burke I. Burke were:

Daniel Di Lapo, 21; Vincent Zagarrigo, 22; and Vincent A. Cliffa, 21, all to 5-15 years in Attica State Prison for attempted first-degree robbery.

The postal worker, 48-year-old George A. Simon, died a week after he was shot by intruders who entered his home in Dec. 31, 1958.

Onteora-Rondout Contest at Dietz Highlights Grid Slate

The Old Boy Himself

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
(Poet, Author, Lover)

What a week. All your learned prognosticator have been receiving are letters, asking me how I'm able to diagnose all the teams throughout the area, even more of them around the country and still manage to come up with some expert selections each week.

Let me assure you dear readers, it's no easy task. Even with Dr. Inorbit and Hannibal Wottaburp aiding my scientific selections, the job is a tremendous challenge to my ability (editor's note: as a pool player) and there have been many times when I've worked throughout the evening, adding, subtracting and digesting figures until I feel the right information is available.

This week my job is a double one. In addition to the weekend slate of games, there are also two listed for Halloween eve, one in the afternoon and one at night and I will endeavor to give you those scores.

Without any further ado, I shall give you Onteora to upset Rondout Valley tonight at Dietz Stadium. Eddie Witko, the genial athletic director of the Boiceville school, is willing to eat a ton of Polish Balogna in the middle of the stadium if the Indians lose. That's good enough for this observer. So, it shall be Onteora 13, Rondout Valley 7. Ahem!

Kingston has been a big stumbling block thus far. Despite many earth shaking calculations, the Maroon boys have left me talking to myself because they have failed by a few inches here and another few inches there. This time they will gain those extra inches and will dump Mont Pleasant, 20-13.

It's been a long time since Saugerties lost a tussle on the gridiron. Alas, dear Sawyer fans. The time has come. Methinks Albany Academy will prevail, 14-7.

Now I must give you the rest of my selections. I have an appointment to ride in a space capsule to see how the men from Mars play football. In fact, many of my readers are hoping the capsule gets lost on the way into orbit. Fear not. It won't happen. Harumph!

The record to date shows 58 right and only 22 wrong. Note the improvement after this week is finished.

Boating Offenses Cost Operators $4,725 in State

Violations of the New York State Navigation Law cost boatmen a total of $4,725 in fines during the first nine months of 1961-an increase of $748.50 over the $3,976.50 paid by boatmen for the entire year of 1960, according to James J. O'Brien, director of the Conservation Department's Division of Motor Boats.

"Reckless or negligent operation of motor boats in New York State can be a costly pastime," O'Brien said.

Nearly half the fines levied this year were for unregistered or improperly registered boats.

The reported 1960-61 fines represent those levied as a result of action by county police and sheriff agencies. They do not include those paid to city, town or village courts for violations of local navigation ordinances, for which records are not available, or those paid as a result of apprehension by the U. S. Coast Guard.

The increase in fines at the county level reflects the stepped-up program of navigation enforcement now in effect throughout the state—a program which has also played a major role in keeping boating deaths to a record low for this year. To date 54 have died in boating accidents in New York State this year, compared with 70 during the 1960 boating season.

The expanding enforcement program—45 counties now have navigation patrols on the waters of the state—and concurrent rise in fine totals should serve as a warning to boat owners who have not as yet complied with the new registration requirements in effect in New York State, O'Brien noted.

Upstate and Long Island boats with old Department of Public Works numbers above NY 150,000 are due for registration under the new system before the beginning of the 1962 boating season.

Boats bearing DPW numbers below NY 150,000 and old Coast Guard numbers were scheduled for registration under the new system in 1960 and 1961. Boat registrations bearing these obsolete numbers are no longer valid and owners of such boats should register with the Division of Motor Boats at once. Boat owners, operating improperly registered boats, are subject to fines up to $50, O'Brien cautioned.

KHS, Sawyers In Albany Area For Top Tussles

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Tonight's UCAL contest between Onteora and Rondout Valley at Dietz Stadium and eight contests on Saturday spice this week's schoolboy gridiron menu. Many of the games won't have a bearing on the league races, but they are still top contests.

The schedule:

Tonight

Onteora vs. Rondout Valley (Dietz).

Saturday

Kingston at Mont Pleasant.
Saugerties at Albany Academy.
Port Jervis at Poughkeepsie.
A. B. Davis at Middletown.
Marlboro at Liberty.
Roosevelt at Cardinal Farley.
Beacon at Newburgh.

A rundown of the key tilts:

ONTEORA VS. RONDOUT—Neither club will win the UCAL title but this one means a lot to both of them. The Ganders have the better defensive team, at least thus far. Onteora has shown flashes of a solid defense but the Indians have been inconsistent. The game is rated a tossup and it should be a crowd pleaser.

KINGSTON AT MONT PLEASANT—What could have been a 3-1 season to date for Bill Burke and company is just the opposite. The locals have not been outclassed by any club they have met. Pleasant is big and is coming off a 32-7 triumph over Troy. The KHS defense can't be faulted. It's the offense that hasn't been up to par. Burke is hoping it will jell against the Raiders.

SAUGERTIES AT ALBANY ACADEMY — A replica of last year's meeting when the Sawyers knocked the upstaters from the unbeaten ranks. Both clubs are without a loss this time. Albany shows a solid defensive record, having permitting only 12 points in four efforts. However they must put a damper on Al Hrdlica and Lou Spada, the go-go boys of the Sawyers. This figures to be an outstanding attraction.

PORT JERVIS AT POUGHKEEPSIE—The Porters are on Cloud Nine after their victory over Kingston. They are favored to beat Sam J. Kalloch's winless Pioneers but anything can happen. Poughkeepsie plays a wide open game and the visitors have to be wary of an upset.

A. B. DAVIS AT MIDDLETOWN—The home side should add another victim to its record. The Mt. Vernon club rapped Newburgh but so did Middletown. Ron Smith is better than anything the Westchester club has to offer.

Florida's 58.3 Sets Point Pace

NEW YORK (AP)—Explosive Florida A&M, aiming for its third consecutive small-college football scoring crown, is setting the point-production pace with a 58.3 per game average.

NCAA Service Bureau statistics show today that the Rattlers have scored 233 points in four games. Florida A&M posted the season's highest score, a 76-0 rout of Bethune-Cookman.

The Floridians have averaged 41.5 points per game in the last nine years over 71 regular-season outings. During that span they have won 67, tied 1 and lost 3 for a .951 winning percentage.

The perennial Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference champions also are the small-college leader in total defense, yielding only 80 yards rushing and passing per game.

Other mid-season leaders include West Chester (Pa.) in total yardage with 423.6 per game, Defiance (Ohio) in passing with 217.8, Grinnell (Iowa) in rushing with 317.8 and New Mexico Highlands in punting with 46.9.

Robinson to Meet Moyer in Rematch

NEW YOR K(AP) —Sugar Ray Robinson will meet Denny Moyer of Portland, Ore., in a rematch, matchmaker Teddy Brenner said today, but not until after he fights Canada's Wilfie Greaves for a second time.

Brenner said Robinson told him he is committed to fight Greaves in Pittsburgh Dec. 8, causing a delay in the Moyer bout at Madison Square Garden until Jan. 6. Robinson outpointed Greaves in Detroit Sept. 25 and Moyer at the Garden last Monday.

Colgate Seeks 4th Straight Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Colgate's football team has a "fresh look" as it gets set to clash with Yale at New Haven Saturday in a bid for its fourth consecutive shutout victory.

Syracuse, meanwhile, will pin its hopes on starting quarterback Dave Sarette, who had been sidelined with a bruised shoulder, when it takes on Holy Cross at Syracuse.

A revamped Cornell lineup will try to break a three-game losing streak at Princeton, but remains the underdog.

Colgate coach Alva Kelley, who dropped scrimmages after an opening-game loss to Cornell, says his Red Raiders are in good shape physically and mentally.

The no-contact rule was responsible for the team's condition, a Colgate spokesman said.

Senior Clint Rappole and junior Art Irwin, both of whom were injured three weeks ago, were ready to replace Jim Deegan and Jim Heilman in the Colgate backfield.

Defense is stressed by both Colgate and Yale. Yale shut out Cornell last week. The Elis have scored 44 points in four games, compared with Colgate's 43. Each has a 3-1 record.

Syracuse coach Ben Schwartzwalder says his club will launch an aerial attack against Holy Cross "if Sarette can stay in there." The senior quarterback suffered the shoulder injury against Nebraska and was out of action for the Penn State contest.

A crowd of 30,000 is expected at the game in Archbold Stadium.

Three Crusaders, Pat McCarthy, Bill Joern and John Wheaton, can fire the ball for holy Cross. Halfback Tom Hennessey, who outgained the entire Dartmouth team last week, is the club's main threat on the ground.

Syracuse has a 3-2 mark and Holy Cross is 3-1.

A third-stringer and three second-team men have been advanced to Cornell's starting team by Coach Tom Harp in an effort to break the Big Red's losing streak. Cornell's only win in four games was over Colgate.

Miami Hosts NC Tonight; Top Contests Set Saturday

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Miami Hurricanes, which have won only two of five games and have lost their last two hope to begin the college football season all over again tonight when they meet a strong University of North Carolina team in Miami's Orange Bowl.

But for teams like Michigan State, ranked first nationally in the current Associated Press poll, Mississippi, Texas and Alabama, the winning habit, cultivated with the opening game, should continue this weekend.

For Miami, off last week, a new start is contemplated. George Mira, the flashy sophomore quarterback who has been hobbled by injuries since the victory over Kentucky, is expected to see action. As Mira goes, so go the Hurricanes for he has not played in the last two games and saw only limited action in a 25-8 victory over Penn State.

George Washington (3-3) takes on Boston University (1-4) in the night's other major activity.

Spartans Play Indiana

Michigan State (4-0), after two clutch wins over Michigan and Notre Dame, takes on Indiana in a Big Ten game. The Spartans, in a four-way tie for the conference lead with fifth-ranked Iowa, sixth-ranked Ohio State and Minnesota, should make it with plenty to spare.

Ohio State (3-0-1) meets Wisconsin (2-2) in the day's national television game (ABC-TV, 2:30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time) while Iowa (4-0) plays Purdue (2-2) and Minnesota (3-1) takes on Michigan (3-1) in the Little Brown Jug game. Each of the four Big Ten leaders has a 2-0 conference mark.

Mississippi, looking to next week's crucial Southeastern Conference clash against Louisiana State (No. 7) has a homecoming date against Vanderbilt (2-3). Ole Miss is 5-0 so far and has not lost in 20 games.

Last Obstacle

Alabama, atop the SEC with 4-0, is out of the conference against Houston (2-2-1) while Texas (5-0) plays what may be its last obstacle for the Southwest Conference title when it meets Rice (2-2-1). The third ranked Longhorns, which easily beat tough Arkansas last week, are 2-0 in the SWC and Rice is 1-0.

Notre Dame, ranked eighth with a 3-1 mark, meets Northwestern (2-2), ninth-ranked Georgia Tech (4-1) plays Tulane (1-4) in another SEC game and Big Eight leader Colorado (4-0) plays winless Oklahoma (0-4) in a conference tilt.

Tough Schedule Ahead for Knicks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York's revamped Knickerbockers, surprisingly one of the hottest teams in the National Basketball Association, may be heading for a cooling-off period.

First of all, their next game is on the road, always a tough proposition in the NBA. Second, their Saturday match is against the mighty Boston Celtics, three-time league kingpins.

The Knicks, league doormats last season, have come up with a new coach in Eddie Donovan, a revamped lineup and three straight home victories.

The latest was a 120-117 comeback affair over Cincinnati Thursday night in the feature of a New York doubleheader. St. Louis rallied from 13 points behind in the final quarter and edged Syracuse 110-107 in the first game, the Hawks' first victory of the season.

Tonight, Syracuse is at Philadelphia, St. Louis at Chicago and Detroit at Los Angeles.

Richie Guerin struck for 35 points in sparking the Knicks to their third victory against a single loss. It gave New York a half-game lead over Boston, though the Celtics remain at the top of the Eastern Division standings with a 1-0 mark.

Bob Pettit, who scored 26 points, climaxed St. Louis' big last period rally with seven straight points. Clyde Lovellette, who scored 28, clinched it with a foul shot with three seconds left.

Carry Back Will Run Saturday At Garden State

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Carry Back mystery may be solved with the running of Saturday's $75,000-added Trenton Handicap at Garden State Park.

Carry Back is the 3-year-old colt who won the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, then missed his chance for the coveted triple crown by finishing up the track in the Belmont Stakes.

After the Belmont, early in June, it was disclosed Carry Back had injured an ankle during the race. He did not race again until Aug. 26 when he won the Neptune Purse at Atlantic City. He won the Jerome Handicap at Belmont on Sept. 2, but since then has lost three straight.

Is Carry Back lame or isn't he? Jack Price, who trains the colt for his wife, Katherine, has not been saying much this week, so it is up to Carry Back to supply the answer himself in the Trenton.

Expected to enter the mile and one-quarter race against older horses is another 3-year-old colt, Ambipoise. Sherluck, who beat Carry Back in the Belmont and Lawrence Realization, is another 3-year-old possibility.

The older horses expected to go include Intentionally and Divine Comedy, co-top weights at 124 pounds, Black Thumper, Mail Order, Nickel Boy, Talent Show and Polylad.

Fish Forecasters Like Weather Men Can't Be Certain

NEW YORK (AP)— Now don't get excited, but fish forecasting has become a science.

It's reliable only to a certain degree, however. Like listening to the weather forecasts before planning a weekend picnic.

"An inexact science," was the way Dr. L. E. Cronin, director of the National Resources Institute of the University of Maryland, described it Thursday.

He likened it to weather forecasting and told delegates of the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission that fish forecasters often will have to do as weather forecasters do—qualify predictions with "probably."

The fish forecasters, seeking to supply commercial and sports fishermen with beforehand knowledge, are scientists who are members of the commission. Dr. Cronin gave the delegates a couple of long-range forecasts for next year.

Lobsters, Maine only: "Good."

Oysters, in the North and mid-Atlantic and Chesapeake Bay: "Extremely poor."

He said the forecasts are built on a number of variable factors, including current, water temperature, water salinity content, spawning rates in known hatching areas, hatching rates, pollution and predator strength.

Still another variable which must be taken into consideration for such fish as cod and haddock, he said, was the presence of a fleet of Soviet trawlers fishing off the New England coast.

After all the variables are weighed and evaluated, he said, they are assessed against the predictions of "wise old heads" in the commercial and sport fishing industries.

Borgmann, Once Kingston Ace In Basketball Hall of Fame

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Andy Philip, a former college standout, professional star Benny Borgmann and John J. O'Brien, an executive, were named Thursday to the Basketball Hall of Fame.

Philip, a native of Granite City, Ill., was an outstanding member of the famed Illinois Whiz Kids of 1942 and 1943. He led them to the Big Ten championship in 1943 and later played for Chicago, Philadelphia, Fort Wayne and Boston of the professional National Basketball Association.

Borgmann participated in 2,500 games during a pro career that extended from 1917 to 1938. He played for the original Celtics among other clubs. He is a native of Hawthorne, N.J.

O'Brien for 25 years was president of the American League, retiring in 1953.

Borgmann was a favorite with Kingston basketball fans back in the 20's when he was a member of Frank Morgenwick's Kingston team in the Metropolitan League. A high scoring ace, he was teamed up with such other stars as the Husta brothers, Powers, Artus, Campbell.

Yankees Drop Second Farm Club

AUBURN, N.Y. (AP)—The New York Yankees have dropped their second New York State baseball farm club in two weeks.

A working agreement between the Yankees and Auburn of the Class D New York-Pennsylvania League has ended after four years, it was announced yesterday.

Last week, the Yankees abandoned their Binghamton franchise in the Class A Eastern League.

Dr. Thomas D. Stapleton, president of the Auburn club, said the Yankees chose Auburn instead of St. Petersburg, Fla., when it was decided to drop one of their two Class D farm teams.

The future of baseball in Auburn seemed assured, however, Stapleton said, because several major league clubs were interested in establishing working agreements.

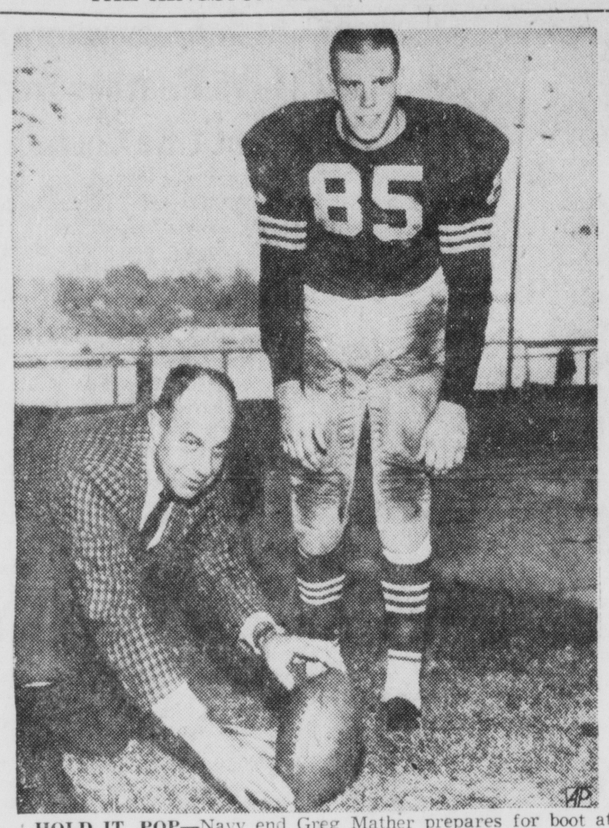

Auburn lost $5,000 this season, Stapleton said, when it finished last in the eight-team league. The club drew 33,000 spectators, 7,000 fewer than last season, when it led the league in attendance.

Owners of Syracuse Chiefs Report Profit

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) —The Syracuse Chiefs of the International Baseball League finished last this season but the community organization that owns the club has reported a profit.

The Community Baseball Club of Central New York said Thursday night it had a net profit of $6,327, which equalled $1.72 for each of the 3.672 shares of stock outstanding. The profit before federal taxes was $9,039.

The Chiefs collected $166,690 at the gate with a total attendance of 126,016.

Second-choice Spectator will be wearing spectacles—actually ambercolored goggles — when he competes for the $85,175 Dexter Cup at Roosevelt Raceway tonight.

An injured right eyeball forces him to wear the specs.

Spectator, an entry with Orbitor, was a 3-1 second choice in the event which could decide the trot championship for 3-year-olds.

Caleb is the 2-1 favorite. Also entered are Harlan Dean, Matastar, Sprite Kid and Mr. Pride.

Speedy Princess sped to a 2½-length upset victory over favored Meadow Farr in the $26,325 feature trot at Roosevelt Raceway Thursday night.

Speedy Princess' time in the Lady Suffolk Trot for 3-year-old fillies was 2:12 2-5 for the mile and 1-16. She was driven by Earle Avery and paid $8.40. Pridey Frisco, a 29-1 shot, finished third.

At Batavia Downs Thursday night, Mil Hanover won the featured $1,200 Class B-3 pace in 2:12 3-5 on a sloppy track. Mil was driven by Levi Harner and returned $16.80.

Joie Ray Still Winning His Race With Father Time

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Joie Ray still is winning his race against father time.

He did a 6:32.6 mile in the Illinois Armory Thursday. He is 67 years old.

The mile run was held under the watchful eye of Dr. Thomas K. Cureton, director of Illinois' Physical Fitness Research Laboratory.

Joie has been running most of his life.

He was the United States distance star of the roaring 20's. He matched a world record 4:12 in 1925, competed in three Olympics, carried the Illinois Athletic Club colors into 950 races and won medals, ribbons or trophies in all but one.

For the last six years, he has been running a birthday mile on April 13. His best was 5:50 in 1959. He was disappointed with his 6:32.6 special mile Thursday.

"I had been training since July," said Joie, retired Gary, Ind. steel mill worker. "I had been running two to four miles a day, rowing a boat, lifting weights, working out at a health club and following a diet made up mostly of wheat germ. I was sure I could do it in six flat or better.

"But I'll stay in training and try again on my 68th birthday."

Cureton said the undergraduates he tests average about 7 minutes for the mile.

Head's Fists Ignite Lowly Boston Bruins

BOSTON (AP) — Rookie Don Head, the fightingest goaltender in professional hockey, has ignited the lowly Boston Bruins—with his fists.

Bruins General Manager Lynn Patrick and Coach Phil Watson agree that Head's first period bout provided the spark to a 4-0 victory over Detroit Thursday night, lone triumph in nine National Hockey League starts.

Unbeaten Montreal took over the league lead by crushing Chicago 7-1.

Head, 28, the former Canadian Olympic goaltender in his second year of pro hockey, made 41 spectacular saves in his initial major league shutout.

With Boston shorthanded, Head had made five stops on the Detroit power play, two of them robbing ex-Bruin Vic Stasiuk. Defenseman Bob Armstrong sent Stasiuk sprawling near the net and moments later the Red Wing forward took a choppping swing with his stick at Head.

The Boston goalie charged out, tore off his gloves, waded in and wrestled Stasiuk to the ice. It took a minute to break up the battle.

Braves Now Will Have Young Faces And Faster Legs

WAUSAU, Wis. (AP)—The president and general manager of the Milwaukee Braves says he is planning a new look provided by "young faces and faster legs" for his National League team.

John McHale, the top boss of the Braves, said in a television interview (WSAU-TV) Thursday night that his club must be revitalized to become a contender in the 1962 baseball race.

Without mentioning names, McHale said that the Braves are entering a new era in which the great baseball players of the past "have been showing signs of wear."

"They must be replaced by young new faces and faster legs and enthusiasm that only goes with rookies," he added.

McHale said that his club had spent more than $8 million in the past eight years to sign and develop young players in the farm system.

New American League Will Open Season Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Los Angeles and San Francisco inaugurate the new American Basketball League's season tonight with some mighty familiar faces in the lineups.

The Jets of Los Angeles have former Boston Celtic star Bill Sharman as their coach and additionally, he plans to start the game at one of the guard positions.

That's brought a threat of suit from the Celtics who didn't object when he quit Boston to coach, but don't want him playing for anybody else.

George Yardley, former all-league player in the National Basketball Association, starts at forward for Los Angeles along with Dan Swartz. Former Kentucky All America Bill Spivey, at 7-feet 1-inch opens at center. Hal Lear will team with Sharman at guard.

Ken Sears and Mike Farmer, the starting forwards for the San Francisco Saints, both are former NBA players who switched affiliations.

Sears and his former club, the New York Knickerbockers, have been embroiled in a law suit over the switch. The New York NBA club sought an injunction to keep Kenny from playing in the ABL.

El Paso King's Draw Largest Attendance

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —The Sun Kings of El Paso, Tex., won the 1961 grand sweepstakes in minor league baseball's attendance derby.

George M. Trautman, president of the minors, said the Kings drew 79,115 fans, far over the 19,218 league average of a year ago. El Paso, out of baseball since 1956, was assigned the previous year's average as the mark to beat.

Trautman also cited San Diego, Chattanooga, Greenville, S.C., Salem, Ore., Twin Falls, Idaho, and Jamestown, N.Y., as champions of their classifications.

Of the 147 clubs in the minors, 55 showed a boost at the gate.

Jamestown, in the Class D New-York-Pennsylvania League, had an attendance of 65,402.

League of Women Voters Set To Meet Wednesday, Nov. 1

A general meeting of the Woodstock League of Women Voters will be held Wednesday, Nov. 1, at 8 p. m. at Deanie's upstairs.

The program includes a Town Budget report by Gloria Walker and her committee; the National Study Item for 1962-64 by Florence Hubbard and Idea for County Study, by Sara Mulligan.

Members of the League are asked to bring their copies of the town budget to the public hearing. The committee has prepared an interesting report and all members are urged to attend.

November recently welcomed into the League include Mrs. Charlotte Heller, Mrs. Helen Goodrick Butterick, Mrs. Barbara Williams, Mrs. Avis Gebart and Mrs. Judy Chase.

On Nov. 30, the Woodstock League must forward to the national headquarters its suggestions for the National Item Study for 1962-64. Five different topics have been suggested by LVW's Foreign Policy committee as suitable for such a study. Members are asked to be prepared to discuss these at the November general meeting in order that the Board of Directors may be able to reflect the membership at their Nov. 16 meeting.

The five suggested topics are: (1) The physical, political, social and conservation problems of regional planning in the areas of urban suburban expansion (2) conservation of our land, forest, water, minerals and wildlife (3) how to reconcile and absorb minority groups within the larger social, economic and cultural pattern of American society (4) The interrelation of disarmament, an international police force and the rule of the law (5) how to best marshal every physical, human and spiritual resource of our nation and translate it into a concerted national effort to win the struggle against communism.

Woodstock Children to Take Part in 'Trick or Treat'

As in the past two years, more than 250 Woodstock children will take part in the nationwide "Trick or Treat" program. The local committee in cooperation with the Woodstock P-TA, League of Women Voters, American Association for the United Nations and the Overlook Methodist Church has set the night of Oct. 31 as official "Trick or Treat" night.

More than 2,500,000 American children will devote their Halloween fun to save the lives of other children in more than 100 countries around the world which are aided by UNICEF.

Mrs. Gladys Plate, art teacher at the Woodstock elementary school, is working with the children and they are each making a "Trick or Treat" UNICEF container.

President Kennedy in an official statement has pointed out that UNICEF is a direct influence on the lives of young people of all countries and that it has helped enormously to break down the artificial barriers of nationality and ideology which so often impede government-to-government assistance. The problems of hunger, education and child welfare are as widespread as in the past and the best attack on these problems lies precisely in the kind of cooperative effort which characterizes UNICEF.

So when our little Halloweeners knock on your door with the orange "Trick or Treat" tags and containers, give generously to UNICEF, the children's friend around the world.

Reformed Church Lists Program

The Junior Christian Endeavor Halloween party of the Reformed Church, starts Friday at 7 p. m., in the church basement. Children are coming in costume. This society is for all youngsters, boys and girls, in grades four through eight.

Junior choir rehearsal is scheduled Saturday at 10:30 a. m.

Sunday school classes for all ages at 9:30 a. m., on Sunday, Oct. 29. Morning worship is at 11 a. m. As this is Reformation Sunday, the sermon title will be "Operation Reformation." Nursery facilities are provided for the children of worshippers.

There will be Autumn Vespers on Sunday at 4 p. m. For the fourth consecutive year the members of the senior and junior choirs will present a vesper service of music and inspiration. There will be anthems, solos, meditations and prayers. All residents and visitors to the Woodstock area are cordially invited to attend.

Senior Christian Endeavor is at 7:30 p. m. Pastor Olson will begin a six-weeks series of lectures of interest to teen-agers.

The congregational covered dish supper will be held Friday, Nov. 3, at 6:30 p. m., to be followed by a presentation of the 1962 church program. Irving Cousins, chairman, urges every member of the church to be present for this meeting; to have questions answered, suggestions made and criticism offered. Pledge cards for 1962 giving will be distributed at this meeting and will be collected at the morning worship on Sunday, Nov. 5.

Members of the congregation continue to rejoice in the splendid progress toward recovery of one of our members, Alma Simpkins, injured last May in an automobile accident in Albany. She is currently undergoing therapy in the Albany Medical Center and is grateful for the cards, prayers and other remembrances of her many friends in Woodstock and environs.

Miss McBride to Give Discussion On Amendment 1

One of the area's top celebrities, Mary Margaret McBride, will feature a discussion of Amendment No. 1 on Court Reform on her radio program of Nov. 1. Arrangements for this are being made by Mrs. Alvin Moscowitz of the Woodstock League of Women Voters.

This program will be part of the League's efforts to publicize Court Reform Day, Nov. 2, as proclaimed by Gov. Rockefeller. This amendment to modernize the New York State court system has the backing of Gov. Rockefeller and both the Republicans and Democrats in the state legislature, as well as many organizations throughout the state.

Mrs. Moscowitz has also announced that there will be a TV program explaining all the amendments to be voted on this year. This is scheduled for 2 p. m. Saturday, Oct. 29, on WNBC-TV, Channel 4.

Scout Campaign Now in Progress

The 1962 Boy Scout finance campaign was kicked off this week with a rousing drum and bugle corps concert on the Village Green.

This year's campaign is under the direction of Frank Benson of the National Bank of Ulster and Orange counties. In a statement to the press, Benson said he feels certain that the community will come to its calling in the same manner in which this very fine drum and bugle corps came to Woodstock's aid when asked.

The Troop 12 drum and bugle corps which meets in the Old Dutch Church in Kingston under the direction of Ralph Shapiro put on a particularly delightful concert. The group is to be congratulated for its willingness to help a worthy cause. For the Woodstock appearance, the troops was under the direction of their assistant director, Richard Scism.

Other scout officials present were Ed Quednau, present scoutmaster of Woodstock Troop 34 and William Doran, past scoutmaster of the troop. Also in attendance were Vern May, West District chairman and Henry Miller who directed the day's activities.

Woodstock Troop 34 put together a camping demonstration which remained on the Village Green for the rest of the day.

Foundation Slates Third Exhibition At Art Gallery

The Woodstock Foundation will hold its Third Annual Exhibition at the Woodstock Art Gallery, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 4-5. The exhibition will display works by past Foundation Award winners and this year's applicants. Paintings in various mediums, sculpture and literary works will be displayed by many of Woodstock's most talented residents.

The exhibition will be arranged by noted artist Ainslie (Pat) Burke, a Foundation member and executive of the Woodstock Artists Association. Working with him will be Jim Turnbull and Milton Axtel. Works will be received at the Gallery on Thursday, Nov. 2 between the hours of 1 and 4 p. m. and the Gallery will be open during the hours of 1 to 5 p. m. that Saturday and Sunday.

During the Foundation's 13 years of activity, 44 awards have been given to deserving artists, musicians, authors, sculptors and this November two more awards are planned. The only source of funds is the small community of Woodstock whose residents contribute individually or attend the annual production which provides the bulk of the funds, obtained through the allied art of theatricals.

More than $16,000 has been distributed by the Foundation in an effort to encouragge and recognize the deserving and talented.

Exhibition Still Being Continued At Post Office

The current "black and white" exhibition at the Woodstock post office, extending through November, marks the beginning of the second year of this important community innovation. Each trip for your mail can bring you to the artists' presentation for another study of linear beauty and shading in this style of pictorial art, says the Post Office exhibition group.

Robert Angeloch's lithograph, "Clearing," is sensitive and delicate in line. While the artist's subtle, earthy colors in oil painting identify him, his lithographical work is classical and provides another facet to his accomplishment as a fine painter.

Albert Heckman's lithograph, "Marine Basin", portrays stimulating harbor activity and promise of high adventure in its fine use of modified form of pointillism.

"Patterns of Spain," John McClellan's most comprehensible lithograph of the three exhibited, contains mysterious, sensuous, youthful quality with the same classical aura pervading the other two works. These pictures impress the spectator with their elusive intangibility. Perhaps McClellan's artistic value lies in this quality of his work.

Gladys Mitchell's block print, "Willows In the Moonlight," is interesting and well executed.

Other Subjects

Andrea Ruellan's range of subject matter is manifest in her tender ink drawing, "Raccoon," as well as in her lithograph, "La Place de L'Orme." The artist's rare excellence is to be found most completely in her black and white work.

Florence Webster exhibited the large charcoal drawing, "Milkweed Stalks," only upon the insistence of friends. Although Miss Webster is one of Woodstock's finest civic leaders, it can be said that her leadership in community advancement may be at the cost of her considerable art talent. The artist's use of charcoal as an art medium is powerful. One can, without too great an exercise of the imagination, almost see this drawing in color. There is rhythm of line and depth of shading which place Miss Webster's work as one of the best, in a fine show.

Earle B. Winslow's ink-wash, "Barnyard," reveals the artist's deft handling of line and deep regard for natural beauty. This pervades all of Mr. Winslow's work.

"Road To Hi-Hole," by Henry E. Winzenried, as well as his other two works in the exhibition, invite the spectator into the picture. Young or old find this artist's work, so competently presented, persuasively real in its earnestness and depth.

Next week your local papers will give short sketches of the exhibitors in this valuable Post Office exhibition.—M.E.I.

George Shirley Makes Debut at The Metropolitan

George Shirley, leading tenor with the Turnau Opera Players the past three seasons made an unexpected debut with the Metropolitan Opera Company Wednesday night when he played the leading role in "Cosi Fan Tutte," an opera made popular locally by the Turnau Players. Shirley was a replacement for Charles Anthony who was ill. The New York Times said, "Shirley giving little indication of the strain under which he must have been laboring, displayed a flexible light tenor voice of very appealing quality."

Shirley, winner of the 1960-61 Metropolitan Opera auditions is a negro and was the second of his race to take a leading role at the Metropolitan in two successive days. Leontyne Price opened the season Monday in "La Fanciulla del West."

Rosary-Altar Resumes Monthly Meetings

The regular monthly meetings of the Rosary-Altar Society of St. John's parish have been resumed. The first meeting was held recently at the rectory in Woodstock, with Mrs. Daniel Foschi presiding.

After the recitation of the Rosary, the business meeting followed and plans were announced for future activities.

Mrs. Theodore Rose has been named chairman for the Christmas dinner meeting in December. A forthcoming bus trip to New York City has been arranged for Saturday, Nov. 11. Anyone interested in making the trip may call Mrs. Vera Wilkins, Shokan, or Mrs. Daniel Fochi, West Hurley.

Mrs. Norah Donoghue of Woodstock was welcomed into the society as a new member.

The Rev. Richard Stewart, pastor, closed the meeting with a prayer. Refreshments were served by the hostesses: Mrs. Robert Finkle, Mrs. Anthony Pizzarelli, Mrs. Edmund Tomaselli and Mrs. James Smith.

An Educational service will be held on Sunday, Oct. 29, at 11 a. m. in the Willow Wesleyan Methodist Church. Don Johnson, Houghton College graduate, will be the speaker.

Crowds Are Good At Rail Show, Concludes Sunday

"Passenger business is good on the Hudson Valley Lines," said Walter W. Phillips, president of the Kingston Model Railroad Club Inc., in reference to attendance at the annual exhibition now in progress at 541 Broadway, next to the West Shore Freight depot.

The leader of the local model engineers revealed that more people have visited the annual show this year then in previous years, "and they seem to enjoy their visit," he said.

The exhibition of a quarter-inch scale model railroad system in action is open from 7 to 9 p. m. Friday and Saturday and from 2:30 until 9 p. m. Sunday, Oct. 29.

With the advent of the 1961 show, the local model club is beginning the celebration of a quarter of a century of existence. The local club operates the oldest model railroad system in the eastern section of the United States, according to Phillips, who pointed out that continuous progress on the miniature railroad has been a factor in the success of the club during the past 25 years.

what menace hides in your trash pile?

Destruction—desolation—even death!

Forest fires start often in burning trash piles. Just a light breeze can carry sparks to your neighbor's land—to set fire to woods and brushland.

Don't be a litterbug—don't let trash accumulate. Someone's carelessly flipped match or cigarette may unleash a holocaust.

Don't be a firebug, either! Before YOU burn trash, check local regulations—be sure fire can't spread—don't burn on dry or windy days—never leave a fire unattended.

Chest Receives $66,500 from IBM

A combined pledge of $66,500 from the International Business Machines Corporation and its Kingston employes to the Ulster County Community Chest was announced today by W. Henry Haltermann, (left) president of the Chest.

The initial payment of the pledge was presented to Chest officials by Alfred Majewski, (second from left) president of the IBM Club, who made the presentation on behalf of the company and its Kingston employes.

William Stall (receiving check) and James Kohut, co-chairman of the Business and Industry Division of this year's campaign, received the contribution.

Stall stated that "the contribution of $66,500 represents approximately 56 per cent of the total Business and Industry Division's goal of $119,000. As in the past, it again points up the civic awareness and responsibility of IBM toward the community of which it is part." Richard E. McNaughton, (right) is general appeal chairman.

Kremlin Charges Soviet Is Target Of U. S. Agents

MOSCOW (AP) — The chief of the Soviet security police says the United States has 72,000 agents around the world and "the Soviet Union and the Socialist countries are the main targets."

Alexander Shelepin, the security chief, told the 22nd Soviet Communist party congress Thursday the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency spends $3 billion a year and has 40,000 agents. He asserted the U.S. State Department has an additional 32,000.

Strikers Cut Power

PARIS (AP) — Electricity and gas supplies were cut in much of France today as workers in the nationalized utilities struck for the second time in nine days for higher wages.

Electricity switches were thrown about 8 a.m. and gas pressure was cut at the same time in the scheduled four-hour walkout.

Keating Desires Balanced Budget, No Tax Increases

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., said today the United States would suffer at home and abroad if President Kennedy were to submit an unbalanced budget in 1963.

"What I would like to see is a clear commitment from...the President that our budget will be balanced and there will thus be no possibility of a request for more taxes," Keating said.

Wants to Cut Taxes

"I want to cut taxes," he said in a speech prepared for the 15th annual meeting of trust officers of the New York State Bankers Association," but right now I think the major battle may be to keep them where they are."

Keating said that Kennedy, in his 1962 budget message, promised "in no uncertain terms" to submit a balanced budget in 1963.

"It is unfortunate that at a press conference earlier this month he seemed to reverse himself by saying that we may have an unbalanced budget in fiscal 1963, depending on military needs," Keating said. He added: "I admit these are times of crisis. Military needs are of critical importance but you can't separate one part of the budget from the rest. We don't spend blue dollars for defense and purple ones for domestic programs.

Concerned About Farms

In a speech at Herkimer last night, Keating called for the creation of a joint congressional study commission to chart "new directions for our nation's farms."

He told members of the Herkimer County Republican organization that the committee should include "representatives from all the major farm groups and commodity interests."

New agriculture programs were necessary, he said, because of what he called "grievous failures" of President Kennedy's administration.

Area P-TA News

Kerhonkson Meets

Kerhonkson P-TA was host to Albert Kurdt, manager of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the Citizen's Committee for the Ulster County Community College.

In an information presentation, Mr. Kurdt, explained to the well attended group how a community college is organized, its financing, the advantages it could offer to residents of Ulster County. He showed charts on each phase of his talk. An important point brought out was that although a community college is only a two year college, most four year colleges will accept and give full college credit to graduates of a community college. An example of this was cited by one of the local mothers attending the meeting. Her son is a recent graduate of Orange County Community College. He was accepted at Denver College and is entering his junior year. His two years at a community college were counted as his freshman and sophomore years.

Voters will decide on a community college referendum in the November election.

A short business meeting allowed the guest speaker with Mrs. Robinson presiding. Three new committee chairmen were named at that time: Nominating chairman, Mrs. Mildred Miller; P-TA council chairman, Mrs. Phyllis Jackson; and Youth Commission chairman, Mrs. S. Waruch. One more chairmanship is still to be filled—that of the fund raising chairman.

Mrs. Berlanga's fourth grade won the September attendance count.

Flag Display Is For Honor of TR 103rd Birthday

Flags were displayed today in Kingston by banks and public buildings in honor of the 103rd anniversary of the birth of President Theodore Roosevelt. For years, Oct. 27 was observed as Navy Day. Several years ago the observance was combined with those of Air Force and Army Days into an Armed Forces Day, celebrated the third Saturday of each May.

Theodore Roosevelt, 26th President of the United States, was born in New York City Oct. 27, 1858. He was assistant secretary of Navy under President William McKinley from April 19, 1897 to May 10, 1898. He was governor of New York State in 1899 and 1900, when he was drafted for the vice presidency. He became the United States' youngest president on Sept. 14, 1901, at the age of 42 years, 10 months and 16 days, when President McKinley died from the effects of an assassin's bullet at Buffalo.

Hits Pole Attempting To Miss Deer on Rt. 212

An employe of Lever Brothers, Syracuse was injured early today in a traffic mishap on Route 212 near Woodstock when he struck a utility pole in an attempt to avoid hitting a deer on the highway, Kingston state police reported.

David Russell Gushea, 21, of 620 Madison Avenue, Albany, is in fair condition today at Benedictine Hospital. Troopers said he suffered possible fractured hip and knee, and was taken to the hospital by H&S Ambulance of Saugerties.

Trooper W. Wiedemann said Gushea, driving a 1961 station wagon owned by his employer, Lever Brothers, was proceeding east on Route 212, about a half mile east of Woodstock. He was rounding a slight curve to the right when he swerved to avoid hitting a deer, went off the right shoulder and struck a utility pole, breaking it at the base. Getting out of the car, he crawled nearly 200 feet to the nearest house and awakened Fred Trippico who summoned help, troopers said. Gushea was treated at the scene by Dr. Kenneth Brumer of Woodstock.

This mishap occurred at 3 a. m.

A report that Standard Furniture of 267 Fair Street was acquiring the porperty formerly occupied by Union Fern, Inc. at 323 Wall Street, was branded as unfounded today by Manager Jay Melton.

He told the Freeman that rumors had been circulating that various concerns planned to tave over the site. However, he said, Standard has no such plans.

Exchange Protests On Berlin

Card Rule Scored, Provocation:Reds

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union traded protests today about the tense situation on the border between East and West Berlin.

When U.S. Ambassador Llewelyn Thompson delivered a verbal denunciation of the demand that U.S. officials in Berlin show identification documents to East Germans, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko countered with a protest against what he called American provocation.

According to Thompson, this amounted to each country rejecting the other's protest.

The whole incident was rather embarrassing to the Western Allies, since the British have always shown identification documents to the East Germans, while the Americans and French have refused.

This gives the Russians and the East Germans the chance to ask why the Americans and the French cannot do what the British do.

The American view is that only the four occupying powers can control the movements of each other's nationals in the divided city.

CHECKPOINT — An American automobile, escorted by American military police in Jeeps zigzags through the Russian checkpoint on the Friedrichstrasse in Berlin. The car was returning from a trip into East Berlin. At first, the car, driven by a man in civilian clothes, had been halted by Communist police. The driver had been trying to enter into the Soviet zone of the city. With the show of American forces, the vehicle was allowed to go through, uninspected by East German Vopos (Communist police). Constellation Is Joining Fleet In Festive Air

NEW YORK (AP)—The shadow that once cloaked the USS Constellation today turns to splendor.

She joins the fleet.

Born in travail, the mighty aircraft carrier comes into her own in a festival of pomp, parade and flying banners.

With her official commissioning she becomes the monarch of the Navy, the biggest warship in the line.

Dignataries to Attend

Top naval officers, and civilian dignitaries, were to be on hand for the shipboard ceremonies.

And New York City, which mourned the death and fire that raked the ship while under construction, is going all-out to salute her triumph.

Flashy Times Square has been renamed "Constellation Square," and a tootling ticker-tape parade up Broadway this morning marks the debut of the giant vessel.

The city is adopting her as its flagship.

Fire Rages 12 Hours

It was last Dec. 19, at Brooklyn Navy Yard, that with the ship nearly complete, fire erupted in a flood of spilled fuel oil on the ship's hangar deck, rampaging through the vast interior. Steel melted. Decks buckled.

The fire raged for more than 12 hours. Fifty civilian workmen, trapped in the maze of compartments, perished from flame and smoke.

But the marred ship is new again—restored, refurbished and bustling with bluejackets.

Greatest, Says Walker

"She's the world's greatest," says her proud skipper, Capt. Thomas J. Walker, 47, a Massachusetts-born descendant of whaling ship captains.

The 75,000-ton carrier, five city blocks long and 25 stories high from keel to mast, stands at her Brooklyn Navy Yard berth, an awesome mass of gray steel.

Her soaring superstructure, and sprawling winged decks tower over nearby vessels like a gigantic bird over her brood.

Her flight deck—1,047 feet long and 252 feet wide—stretches more than four acres in size. Its four powerful catapults, which boost the planes aloft, could hurl a big automobile five miles through the air.

The hangar deck below has a capacity of about 100 planes, and four elevators combined can hoist a dozen planes at a time to the flight deck in 35 seconds.

Saturn A-OK, Puts U.S. Nearer Moon

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Saturn, the world's largest known rocket, scored a not-wholly-expected success on its first flight test today and gave new impetus to the U.S. drive to land astronauts on the moon in this decade.

It was a tremendous demonstration by a rocket which prelaunch calculations had given only 30 per cent chance of complete success.

With its massive eight-engine power plant generating 1.3 million pounds of thrust, the Saturn thundered away from Cape Canaveral at 10:06 a. m. EST, spewing a tremendous tail of fire and sending an unearthly roar rolling across the test center.

Unbelieveable Precision

With almost unbelievable precision, the eight engines pushed the 162-foot rocket, which is larger than the Statue of Liberty, approximately the 95 miles high to the edge of space. Then the rocket plunged back to the Atlantic Ocean and sank as plannned more than 200 miles southeast of the launch pad.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported the entire flight covered about eight minutes and the spent booster impacted within 10 kilometers, or about 6 miles, of its intended landing point.

Only the first stage was tested today. Two dummy upper stages were filled with water for ballast.

The historic flight, although brief, signaled America's intention to race Russia to the moon, a pledge made earlier this year by President Kennedy.

Tops Soviet Thrust

The Saturn is three times more powerful than any previous rocket launched by the United States and tops the estimated one million pound thrust of the Soviet space rockets. The success of America's first heavyweight rocket will give added emphasis to this nation's goal of placing a three-man Apollo spaceship on the moon, hopefully by 1967.

Nine more Saturn research shots are scheduled. By 1964, the operational two-stage configuration is slated to be ready to hoist the manned Apollo craft into earth orbit. By 1966, an advanced three to four-million pound thrust Saturn should be geared to whirl Apollo and its three-man crew into lunar orbit.

Manned landings on the moon will be accomplished with the 12- to 20-million-pound-thrust Nova rocket, whose development depends greatly on the Saturn program.

Close to Intended Time

There were very few who expected such overwhelming success today. Dr. Kurt Debus, head of NASA's launch operations and top man in the launch control center today, said before the shot that he would consider 60 seconds of flight time "100 per cent success, with anything above that 150 per cent."

Richard B. Canright, a Saturn project official, told newsmen in

Convict Scarbeck Of Passing Data To Polish Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former U.S. diplomat Irvin C. Scarbeck was convicted today of revealing American Embassy secrets to Polish Communist agents.

Guilty on 3 Counts

The federal court jury of 11 men and one woman returned the verdict only half an hour after starting its third day of deliberations.

The jury found the 41-year-old Scarbeck guilty on the first three counts of the fourcount indictment. It found him innocent on the fourth count, which concerned the physical removal of a classified document from a public office, namely, the American Embassy in Warsaw, Poland.

Scarbeck, a stocky bespectacled man, betrayed no emotion as he stood erect to face the jury and hear the verdict.

The jury deliberated 15½ hours since receiving the case Wednesday morning. The trial took 3½ weeks, and, for the last two weeks, the jury had been locked up to prevent its being influenced by news reports of the trial.

In a signed statement for FBI agents, Scarbeck admitted giving the information to the Poles. He said he deliberately distorted the documents he was accused of orally passing on.

Could Get 33 Years

Scarbeck was pictured in testimony as having been blackmailed by the agents when they caught him in bed with a Polish woman, Ursula Discher.

10 Years Maximum

The counts on which Scarbeck was found guilty carry a maximum penalty of 30 years in jail and a fine of $30,000. In practice, however, such terms usually run concurrently, so that the maximum probable imprisonment would be 10 years.

Defense lawyer Samuel C. Klein said he would appeal the case.

Throughout the trial, defense counsel contended that Scarbeck acted only to protect Miss Discher.

Must Resume Full Tests, Rocky Warns

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The United States must resume full-scale testless of world opinion, to remain less of world opinion ,to remain powerful enough to block Soviet aggression, Gov. Rockefeller declared today.

"To assure the sufficiency of our own weapons in the face of the recent Soviet tests," he said, "we are now clearly compelled to conduct our own nuclear tests."

The tests Rockefeller proposed would be conducted in the atmosphere.

Offers Six Points

The Republican governor, whose fallout-shelter proposals have established him as a leading spokesman on the defense phase of nuclear danger, offered a six-point program for taking the offensive in global competition for military supremacy.

He proposed development of lighter warheads to make nuclear missiles more mobile without loss of power, anti-missile weapons, better nuclear weapons for localized military actions, new weapons "of greater precision and flexibility" and devices for detecting nuclear tests in other nations.

The governor also urged continuing attention to peacefull use of nuclear energy.

Another in Series

Rockefeller's remarks were in a speech prepared for delivery to the national convention of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism fraternity.

The speech was another in a series, over the past 2½ years, in which the governor, a potential candidate for the Republican nomination for president in 1964, has spoken on national and international issues.

If the United States fell behind Russia, in nuclear weapons, he said today, it would pave the way for Communist conquest of the free world.

"We must prevent any such disaster," Rockefeller said in calling for wide-scale testing by the United States, "even though the decisions and actions required of us may not be acclaimed by world opinion of the moment or by plaudits of so-called neutralist nations...

"It is one thing for America to be conscientiously concerned with the views of neutralist nations. It would be a quite different and preposterous thing for America to start behaving like one."

The United States' responsibility to all free peoples and future generations he said, "is to do, confidently and firmly, not what is popular, but what is right."

Soviet Hints Rejection of Bomb Appeal

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The General Assembly is expected to give overwhelming approval today to an appeal to the Soviet Union to call off a 50-megaton bomb test. The Soviets already indicated they will ignore it.

The assembly announced it would take up the eight-nation resolution containing the appeal as soon as it acts on a Security Council recommendation to admit Outer Mongolia and Mauritania as the U.N.'s 102nd and 103rd members.

Sponsors Map Strategy

Faced with the month-end deadline announced by Soviet Premier Khrushchev for triggering the giant bomb, the sponsors mapped out strategy to counter delaying tactics such as the Soviet bloc and some neutrals used to stall the vote in the political committee.

The committee approved the resolution Wednesday by a vote of 75-10, but only after a stormy overtime session in which a parade of Communist and neutral delegates fought it every step of the way.

The assembly vote was expected to be still stronger than that in the committee. Nigeria and El Salvador, two of the 15 members absent during the committee ballot, indicated they would cast yes votes today.

Hits India's Attitude

Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin has made plain the Kremlin would reject the appeal. He told the committee that maneuvers by the NATO nations would not prevent the Soviet Union from perfecting its defenses.

The political committee continued its nuclear test debate Thursday with the United States accusing India of trying to put it in the same boat with the Soviet Union as far as violation of the moratorium on nuclear tests was concerned.

U.S. Delegate Arthur Dean asserted that India's attitude sounded much like that of Khrushchev who has declared that American actions in Berlin forced Moscow to resume testing to build up its defenses.

Stratton Thinks Shelter Emphasis Is Plain Bunk

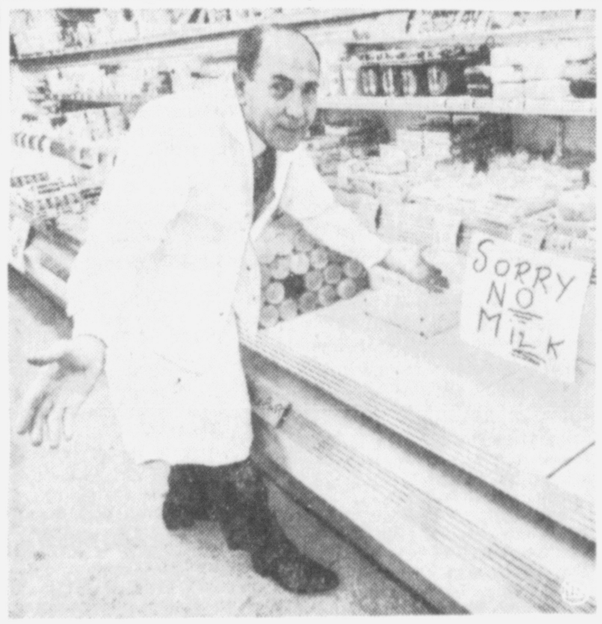

LE ROY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller is talking "plain bunk" and "doing the country a grave disservice" by overemphasizing the value of fallout shelters, a New York Democratic congressman says.

It is time "we got away from this almost neurotic preoccupation with shelters," Rep. Samuel S. Stratton of Schenectady told the Le Roy City Democratic Committee Thursday night.

Shelters are only a small part of the defense requirement in any possible future war, Stratton said.

"Any really effective system of nuclear protection will be so complex and so fantastically expensive that it can only be effective

NO MILK—Ben Cohen is typical of the many grocery and supermarket owners and managers in the New York City and Long Island areas who have no milk left. The flow of milk was cut off when two Teamster unions joined a walkout started by one local on Oct. 24 which failed to agree on a new contract with the milk industry. The strike threatened to spread to northern New Jersey and a Connecticut county. (NEA Telephoto)

Gotham Supplies About Dry

Substitutes Lessen Hardships on Milk

NEW YORK (AP) — Milk supplies for about 10 million persons in New York City and on Long Island ran nearly dry today as the strike of delivery drivers and plant workers continued.

However, a plentiful supply of powdered, condensed, and evaporated milk was on hand at food stores throughout the affected areas.

Progress Very Slow

The average flow of eight million quarts daily became a trickle Thursday as negotiations remained stalled between 10,000 members of the Teamsters Union and the milk companies. A management spokesman spoke of "progress", but added: "it is very slow."

Under an emergency plan, formulated before the strike started on Tuesday, milk continues to go to hospitals, schools, and other institutions.

To get milk Thursday, thousands lined up at dairy and processing plants on a cash-and-carry basis. Each customer was limited to four quarts.

Some New Yorkers crossed into Westchester County, where negotiations are continuing without a work stoppage.

Day's Supply for Jersey

In New Jersey, housewives were assured of milk for at least another day. Members of Local 680, representing drivers and plant employes in 10 Northern Jersey counties, Thursday extended their strike deadline another 24 hours until 4 p.m. today.

The striking Teamsters locals have cut their original demand of a $10 weekly pay hike to $8. The union also seeks adjustments which would add $1 to $1.50 a week to a package settlement.

The last employer offer was a $6.70 weekly average package in a two-year contract.

Drivers had been receiving $100.50 a week plus commissions, and plant workers $103 to $129.

Farmers May Dry Up Milkshed if Strike Prolonged

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Farmers might have to "get tough" if shipments of milk into New York City continue to be stalled by a Teamster strike, the leader of a large dairy cooperative says.

John C. York, executive secretary of the Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative, said last night that a prolonged strike would force farmers to "fight back" to demonstrate that "it is the producer, not Jimmy Hoffa, who controls the supply of milk." Hoffa is international president of the Teamsters.

Not In Good Mood

"Farmers are not in a good mood," York said. "If the farmers have to choose between getting tough, and ruin at the hands of the Teamsters union, they can get plenty tough. This milkshed could wind up as dry as the Sahara Desert."

Eastern, which claims 10,000 members, has sent telegrams to President Kennedy, Gov. Rockefeller and other officials asking them to help settle the dispute between Teamster union members and the handlers.

To Start Meetings

The cooperative will organize mass meetings if the strike continues, York said, and "will present all the facts to the producers and general public and then

100 Yards From U.S. City Line

Rules Out Long Time for Access

BERLIN (AP) — Communist tanks moved to within 100 yards of the American sector of Berlin today after U.S. military police and jeeps made an armed thrust into Red Berlin for the third successive day.

At Least Five Tanks

In fading light, it was not possible to tell how many Communist tanks moved up to the frontier, but newsmen on the spot estimated at least five were there.

A British officer said the tanks were T34s, a Russian model of which the East Germans have a considerable number.

A group of 20 to 30 Soviet tanks moved into East Berlin Thursday night from the surrounding area of East Germany. These tanks were parked at a point about a mile from the Friedrichstrasse checkpoint.

The Communist tanks moved toward the U.S. sector within an hour after three U.S. Army jeeps bearing military police escorted a small gray car carrying American civilians into the East sector. They were reasserting the rights of passage that the United States claims for its forces, civilian and military.

U.S. Sends Seven Tanks

For today's border test the U.S. Army brought up seven tanks and three jeeps filled with military police. Only the jeeps went across the border but one tank approached the border at such a speed that it went 10 feet over the white line marking the separation of the two sectors of the city. It quickly withdrew.

The Soviet tanks moved into position in East Berlin overnight.

A few hours later, Premier Khrushchev served notice the Soviet Union has no intention of guaranteeing indefinitely the Western powers' access to the city.

No West Berlin Design: K

He told a Moscow audience the West is threatening war to back up its position here. He insisted, however, that the Soviet Union has no designs on West Berlin.

The main issue in Berlin at the moment was the right of the United States and its allies to pass civilian officials into East Berlin without identifying them to the satisfaction of the East Berlin police.

Only about a mile stood between U.S. and Soviet tanks in Berlin.

Manned by Russians

People who got a glimpse of the Soviet tanks after they were brought up to within a mile of the border Thursday night said they were manned by Russians. This was something new, since the

WilsonCommends DeWitt $100,000 Offer for College

Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson today commended Macdonald DeWitt for his offer of $100,000 toward the capital cost of an Ulster County Community College.

Assemblyman Wilson, in a letter to Mr. DeWitt said:

"May I extend my sincere congratulations on your generous offer to the County of Ulster toward the capital costs of the proposed Community College.

"I do believe such a college will be of inestimable value to our County. I also believe the Board of Supervisors took the proper position in letting the people of the county decide the college issue.

"In my humble opinion, your public spirited effort will go far in assuring an affirmative vote on Nov. 7."

DeWitt earlier this week offred the $100,000 contingent upon the voters of Ulster County authorizing the establishment of an Ulster County Community College at the Nov. 7 election.

Air Stream From Red Bomb Sector May Hit Northwest

WASHINGTON (AP)—The jet air stream that may be bearing radioactive debris from the Soviet Union's superbomb explosion of last Monday appeared today to be headed into a rainy area of the U.S. Northwest.

A Weather Bureau spokesman said the amount of radioactivity wouldn't be much higher than that after other big Soviet nuclear tests.

The Weather Bureau estimated that the suspected fallout cloud would cross the coast over Washington and Oregon Saturday morning.

Depending upon wind shifts and the width of the cloud itself, the cloud might also reach Northern California and Nevada, and on the northern edge might pass over southernmost Canada.

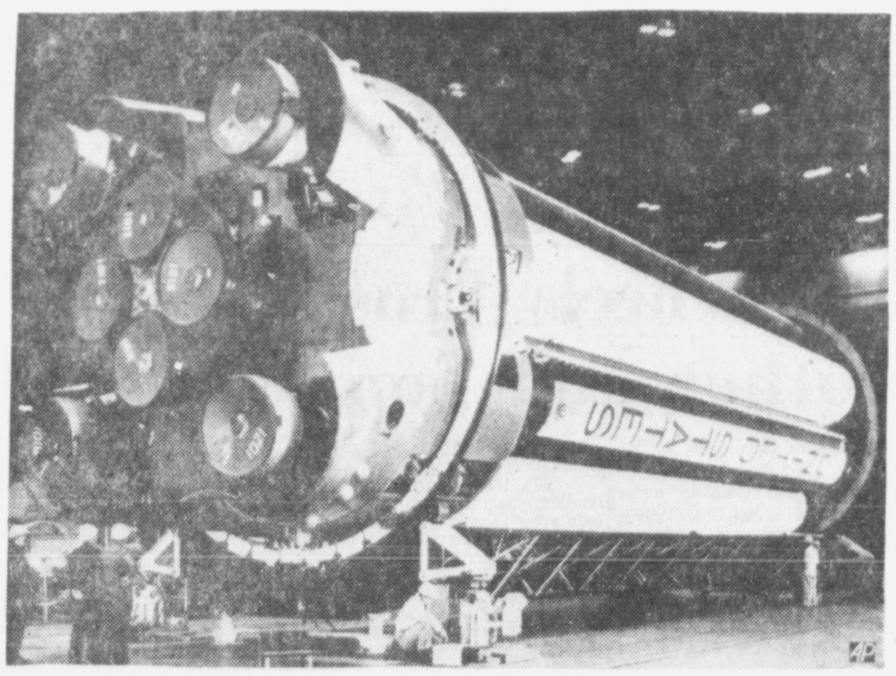

Lester Machta and Robert List, Weather Bureau fallout experts, said the forecast is for rain in Oregon and Idaho.

This would mean that some of the debris in the fallout cloud might be brought to earth in the rainy area. There was a possibility that the rain zone would be west of Washington, so that that state might experience little o no fallout.

The jet stream believed to be carrying the nuclear cloud eastward was moving at 100 to 150 miles an hour.

Although the fallout cloud caught in the stream of high altitude winds, 30,000 feet above the earth, was not traveling with the full velocity of the jet stream, it

Phone Co. Beginning Plan For All-Number Dialing

A program to begin the gradual introduction of all-numerical telephone numbers in the Kingston area was outlined today by J. J. Kohut, New York Telephone Company manager.

Kohut explained that all-numerical telephone numbers—now being used increasingly throughout the country—will be assigned to newly installed telephones here. "Customers who change their service or who move to a different location in the community will also get all-numerical numbers," he said. All-numerical numbers to be aassigned here initially will be a simple "translation" of the letters into numerals. . . . For example, FE 8- will become 338—identical pulls on the dial, he explained.

"In a few years, at this rate, the majority of telephones in the Kingston area will have all-numerical numbers. We plan then to translate the balance," he said.

Official New York Telephone Company numbers and the home phone numbers of company employes will be among the first to be changed, he said.

"Business customers and others who'd like their numbers changed to the all-numerical style now should call their telephone business office," he said. "Customers might want to consider such a change, for instance, when ordering stationery or other printed material that will display phone numbers.

Kohut said that through this gradual method the telephone company hopes to make the change with as little inconvenience as possible for its customers. "There already are nearly

Assassin Trails Two, Slays One

NEW YORK (AP)—An assassin trailed two frightened men in an auto on a zigzag course through miles of Brooklyn streets early today and shot one of them to death just as they believed they had shaken him off.

"I know you—I know that car—you're not going to get away with it," the killer cried as he opened fire in a driveway in the Flatlands section at 12:30 a.m.

The victim's companion told police he had never seen the unidentified gunman before, and detectives tentatively listed the slaying as a case of mistaken identity.

The victim, Jerry Birozy, 21, Brooklyn, was driving his car with a friend, Robert Cordice, 22, as a passenger.

Driving home after dropping off a girl acquaintance, they noticed they were being trailed by a car. Birozy drove up and down streets, and then made a quick turn into a driveway.

Birozy and Cordice thought for a moment that they had outwitted their pursuer. But he suddenly drew up at the curb, jumped out, shouted his threat and fired three shots into the ground in the driveway.

The killer then jumped back into his car, fired a shot through Birozy's head and sped away.

Fire in Dryer

A plastic pillow caught fire in a dryer at the plant of the French Dye Works, Inc. 524 Broadway shortly after noon today. A Central Station Unit answered a call at 12:03 p. m. Two quilts in the dryer were also reported damaged. Another call at 1:15 p. m. was for a grass fire in the vicinity of 161 East Chester Street.

Red Tanks Move

Russians have contended that East Berlin is primarily the responsibility of the East German regime. Postwar agreements call for Soviet responsibility.

The Friedrichstrasse crossing remained the focus of tension.

On the Communist side of the border, Vopo — people's police—patrols carrying submachine guns were posted at every corner in the immediate vicinity of the checkpoint. An armored personnel carrier and a water cannon were behind buildings, out of sight of the American checkpoint on the West.

Vopos in Ugly Mood

The Vopos and the customs guards seemed in an ugly mood. Some of them complained of "American provocations."

For the first time, they insisted on asking foreigners the purpose and destinations of their visits to East Berlin. When the visitors returned, the police demanded further information, where the foreigners had been.

Three times this week, the U.S. Army has used force to enter Communist territory to reassert the war-won right it maintains it has for free access throughout Berlin.

An East German policeman at the tense Friedrichstrasse crossing point told an Associated Press reporter: "We expect the Americans to make another attempt to use force today."

The Soviet tanks arrived in East Berlin Thursday night.

Ready to Quash Crisis

The Western Allies, throughout the crisis, have maintained that the Russians must play their role in the four-power status of Berlin.

The appearance of the Soviet tanks could, in the view of some Westerners, indicate that the Russians were not prepared to let the crisis get too hot.

The Soviet tanks moved in as the East German regime accused American troops of border provocations and warned in a note to the United States that their "sallies" were a danger to peace.

Slipping into the city quietly, the Soviet tanks halted only a few blocks from the Friedrichstrasse border checkpoint where East Germany demands that American civilians traveling into East Berlin show identification.

Witnesses counted a dozen Soviet tanks with Soviet crews parked amid the bomb ruins of the palace of Emperor Wilhelm the First. Soviet and East German guards shooed away the curious.

Tanks Readily Available

A private Western intelligence source reported that at least 30 tanks had arrived in what marked the first appearance of Soviet armor in the heart of East Berlin since they helped crush the 1953 anti-Communist revolt there.

The U.S. Patton tanks bivouacked in the midtown borough of Kreuzberg, close by the crossing point into Communist East Berlin. They were readily available to help drive home the U.S. contention that Americans have war-won rights to enter the Red sector without showing identification papers to East German police.

Three British Centurion tanks moved up today to a point about half a mile west of the Brandenburg Gate, West Berlin police reported.

The British earlier pulled up three antitank guns opposite the gate, the most direct route into the Western sector from where the Soviet tanks halted. Two British armored cars and an armored personnel carrier also arrived.

The combined armor of the Western Allies in West Berlin is believed to be far less than that of the Soviets, however, and would be hopelessly outnumbered in the event of a clash.

American and British military spokesmen said that no special general alert had been ordered for their garrisons.

Says Things Normal

"Things are normal," at the Friedrichstrasse checkpoint, the U.S. spokesman said. The British official did acknowledge that "we have reinforced our troops at the Brandenburg Gate" and said normal patrolling of that sector is continuing.

The United States refuses to recognize the East German regime and forbids its employes to defer to East German officials.

Once Wednesday and once Thursday the U.S. military command here ordered out 10 tanks and troops in armored carriers to back brief thrusts into East Berlin. The sorties were actually carried out by three jeeps with armed troops escorting a civilian who refused to show his papers to the East Germans.

The convoys motored only a few hundred yards into East Berlin to make their point, and then returned. The American tanks rolled up to the border each time but did not cross.

The repeated thrusts by troops armed with fixed bayonets clearly indicated that U.S. authorities intended to reassert their occupation rights when they felt it necessary. But the appearance of Soviet tanks obviously put the picture in a different perspective.

The Communist East German regime already has succeeded in virtually barring Americans in civilian clothes from East Berlin although it is still possible for some to enter.

East German police permit uniformed American servicemen to pass through the checkpoint unhindered. U.S. civilians must furnish identification or fall back on the armed jeep escort.

Visits by servicemen in uniform are rare, however, and confined largely to duty trips.

Labor Leader Charges His Blue Cross Note Ignored

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—A labor leader charged today labor's view was "ignored" at a legislative committee hearing on hospital costs.

Sen. George R. Metcalf, R-Auburn, committee chairman, said at the hearing here Wednesday labor and management weren't interested in hospital costs" because they failed to send representatives.

William Sweeney, president of the Syracuse Federation of Labor, said the committee had received a statement from him. He was unable to attend, he said, because he was at the State AFL-CIO meeting at Buffalo.

But his statement was ignored, Sweeney said, while a statement was read from the Manufacturers Association of Syracuse.

The statement Sweeney submitted to the committee said administrative costs of the Syracuse Blue Cross plan operating in 10 Central New York counties were the second highest among plans of comparable size in the nation.

J. Campbell Butler, president of the Syracuse plan, said "Sweeney is using 1957 figures."

Sweeney also charged that labor was not represented on the plan's executive committee, which he said is "the key committee in setting plan policies."

Air Stream

was moving more rapidly than had been expected on the basis of earlier calculations. The earlier estimates had indicated that the fallout would proceed over mid-Canada and a part of southern Alaska.

The Weather Bureau emphasized that its estimates were based strictly on meteorological reports indicating the wind movement from the site of the blasts.

Would Avoid Alarm

The bureau experts were anxious to avoid arousing alarm unnecessarily in the area traversed by the jet stream.

"We don't think the levels of radioactivity will be significantly higher in the Northwest than they have been after other major Soviet bomb tests," Machta said.

"Most of the debris went into the stratosphere and will not come to earth for months. Only a little peeled off into the troposphere (air layer below the stratosphere), and it is unlikely that the radiation measurements will be frightening."

John J. McCardle was re-elected president of the Kingston Licensed Master Plumbing and Heating Contractors Association Thursday night at its October meeting in the city hall.

If elected, he said, he would do all in his power to guard to the utmost the health, safety and welfare of the city's citizens against illegal and unsanitary plumbing installations. It took years of training, he noted, to become a qualified master plumber.

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Teams of 10 to 12 Cathedral High School boys worked in shifts Thursday, pouring over lists of 250,000 vehicle licenses in an effort to find a truck that may have been driven by a murderer.

The students volunteered to help the Madison County sheriff investigate Saturday's fatal slayings of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Peter.

Authorities reported a red truck was seen near the Peter home about the time of the slayings. The students heard about the big registration checking job and offered their services.

Kiwanis Hears 3-Point Program

Smiley Urges County Planning Group on Natural Resources

Explaining a three-point program needed to meet local natural resource conditions, Daniel Smiley of Lake Mohonk, noted conservationist and naturalist, spoke before the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday on the subject "Preservation of the Natural Resources in a growing area."

The speaker introduced his subject with the observation that Ulster County was fortunate in having an abundance of natural resources, but indicated that the increase of visitors and the growing population was taxing these resources to the breaking point.

Balance Is Vital

Smiley explained that "the outdoors was composed of three parts—water, soil, and life." This three-point idea was compared to a three-legged stool which maintained its balance only when the three legs were about equal. The balance of nature was portrayed in this manner, and conservation was the means by which man endeavored to keep nature's balance.

"Private rather then public interest in selling level land for housing, roads and industry" was scored by the speaker who explained that the use of level land for these purposes was having an adverse affect upon the nature balance of water, soil, and life. In this connection he touched upon the ideas of paving influencing water drain-off, industry and increased housing bringing waste problems, and the use of land for other purposes cutting down the "two and one-half acres needed to feed a person." More water, more land, and more natural areas were becoming a current necessity.

Could Mean Sacrifice

Smiley suggested two approaches that could be made by service clubs such as Kiwanis to offset the growing problem of the conservation of natural resources. One was the "planning type of approach," and he emphasized this with the remark that "we need a county planning committee." His second point dealt with the "need of leadership by individuals" which would probably entail "a sacrifice on their part."

In conclusion, Smiley suggested a second three-legged stool type to help the three-point balance of nature—a stool that would have "nature, humans, and spiritual value" helping to hold the necessary balance.

Bus Wheels Crush Mother and Son

NEW YORK (AP) —A mother and her 2½-year-old son were crushed to death Thursday under the wheels of a bus. The father, who teaches at night, did not learn that his family had been wiped out until today.

The double tragedy occurred at 106th Street and Broadway where, witnesses told police, little Eliezer Weinshall darted from the side walk as a bus pulled from the curb. The mother, Rina, 25, rushed after the boy and both were run over by the vehicle's left front wheel.

The bus driver, William J. Hackett of Lincoln Park, N.J., said he was watching a truck bearing down on him through a rear view mirror. He said he did not know his vehicle had struck anyone until he felt a bump.

It was about 10:30 p.m. when the husband and father, Bezalel Weinshall, 29, an Israel exchange teacher, returned to his empty Riverside Drive apartment. After a futile search he went to a police station where he learned the sad news. The broken-hearted father then was taken to the morgue after midnight to identify the bodies.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Have you been noticing how feeble your money is lately?

It doesn't go so far.

Money is like people. As it grows older, it doesn't seem able to do as much as it did when younger. And therefore it doesn't command the same respect from those around it.

Dollar Showing Its Age

The dollar bill is showing its age. It has lost a lot of cents. As long ago as the Truman administration the 100-cent dollar had declined to 54 cents.

Today the portrait of George Washington would have to undergo a real face-lifting job to get the dollar back up even to that level.

The erosion of money continues in small almost unnoticed ways and goes on, it seems, no matter what we do or who runs the government.

Every now and then something happens, however, to call it dramatically to our personal attention.

A few weeks ago, for example, I handed the bootblack in our office a quarter for a shoeshine, as I have for many years. He shook his head.

"It's 30 cents," he said.

"Thirty cents for a shoeshine?" I asked, a bit dazed.

"Why not?" he replied. "The price of everything else has gone up. I gotta raise my price, too."

A few days ago I asked him if his 30-cent scale had cost him many customers.

Disillusioning Experience

"No," he said. "Why should it? Business is as good as ever. What's an extra nickel to most people?"

Well, to one man at least that extra nickel was a disillusioning experience in basic economics. I can distinctly remember when, if you paid 15 cents for a shoeshine, it gave you the feeling you were a real sport and something of a patron of the fine arts. Now at 30 cents I was barely meeting the going rate.

Even as long ago as the World War I era a vice president of the United States could murmur nostalgically: "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar."

But at that time you could still get a pack of cigarettes for six cents, a five-cent glass of beer, and buy a good serviceable topcoat for less than a medium-priced pair of shoes cost now.

Remember the $2 hotel room, the two-bit haircut, the nickel cup of coffee, the 15-cent shave, the penny postcard, the two-cent letter, the nickel hot dog, and the 15-cent ham and cheese sandwich?

Old Landmarks Go

Remember the heaping five-cent ice cream cone, the five-cent trolley car ride, the big nickel candy bar?

All these landmarks of lower-priced living stand out in the memory of the average middle-aged, middleclass American. He dreams of them sometimes as he drives to work in a car that cost him four times as much as the car he drove in his youth.

The jingle of coins in his pocket used to be a satisfying sound. Now a jingle doesn't mean so much. There has to be the crisp crinkling sound of folding currency.

It makes a man a bit sad to realize that both he and money have grown older, and neither will ever quite be again what they used to be—for time invisibly wears down the value and promise of each.

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

Going back some 56 years ago to the Kingston Daily Express of Saturday, Oct. 28, 1905 I see S. E. Eighmey's Department store at 26 Broadway, in Rondout was having a fur sale. These newspapers were sent to me by a reader, no name enclosed, so I can only thank them through the column.

In those days advertisements were printed on the front page. L. B. Van Wagenen Co., had a three column item on the right side and S. Eighmeny a four column one on the left side. No doubt many Kingstonians remember our large Rondout department store. Eighmey's was on two floors and had two entrances, one on Mill Street and one on Broadway. The Rondout Savings Bank is there now.

S. E. Eighmey's fur sale consisted of fur pieces from $3.97 to $25. They show a long shawl type in the item. They also had ladies' coats, heavy cheviot, long $5. They had ladies crush plush coats, with fur collar and satin lined from $12 to $20. In this October advertisement they were also selling 'ladies' fleece underwear, 25 cents; and natural wool underwear for 97 cents."

The advertisement further read: "Our millinery department is the busiest place in town. You ought to see the pretty hats we are selling for $3.50 to $7.50. Out-of-town customers will receive prompt and careful attention, your hat trimmed while you are doing your other shopping." They all wore warm clothing in the winter, and 1905 was floor length clothes for ladies, not even the toes of the shoes showing. They say that the time to buy a fur coat is when the style is long coats, then you get most fur for your money.

Oct. 28, 1905, L. B. Van Wagenen Co. had a downtown store at 18 Strand and 37 Ferry Street in Rondout, and uptown store, at 311-313 Wall Street in Kingston. Van Wagenen's was also having a fur sale. A Mr. Stern an expert furrier from a well known fur house was in their uptown store Friday and Saturday, and downtown at their store Monday. The fur coat, boa and muff were in style at the time and he brought a handsome assortment for the fashionable ladies of Kingston and Rondout. Mr. Stern was also taking orders for repairing or remodeling of furs, and the customers were invited to consult him along these lines.

There are notices on election in this Oct. 28, 1905 Express. In 1905, Election Day, fell on Tuesday, Nov. 7, as it does this year of 1961. Morris Block was mayor; Roscoe Irwin was city judge, Oliver P. Carpenter was recorder. The alderman were James S. Winne, Frank Byer, John R. Tammany, William Roach, Thomas J. Ward, George P. Zeeh, Thomas J. Cusack and Frank Mills. Supervisors were William S. Eltinge, George Merikle, John P. Grimes, Joseph A. Costello, Charles C. Lang and Israel H. Snyder. Their term was to expire last day of December.

The "Famous Riccobono Bros." were on at the Kingston Opera House, week of Oct. 30. This include big vaudeville company with seven feature acts. The greatest trick horses of the world were to be on the show. Evening prices were 10, 20 and 30 cents, and matinees, 10 and 25 cents. I wonder how they got the horses up the steps of the Opera House. Election time was a lively one in those days with street parades, red flares and out door speeches. The Mansion House balcony was used by speakers of both parties, which always brought crowds.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, OCTOBER 27, 1961

DeWITT'S GENEROUS OFFER

Macdonald DeWitt, president of the DeWitt Revolving Fund, Inc., a corporation organized for educational and charitable purposes, will turn over the fund, which will reach some $200,000, toward the establishment of a two-year Community College in Ulster County.

The offer of Mr. DeWitt, a native of Ulster County and one of the country's most famous libel lawyers, is contingent upon adoption by the citizens of Ulster County of Local Question A, which will appear on the ballot at the general election November 7.

Helping Ulster County young people in their endeavor to pursue a college education is no new experience for Mr. DeWitt. The DeWitt Revolving Fund of which he is president has helped some 32 local young men gain higher education. Mr. DeWitt also has crusaded for larger and more reasonable loans for students. Carrying his fight to Governor Rockefeller, he pointed out the inadequacy of loans made by the New York State Higher Education Assistance Corporation. His efforts on behalf of those young people in the entire state who really want a higher education and need help have brought results. With this accomplished, he now offers to broaden the scope of the fund by assisting in the establishment of a two-year college for all Ulster County students who are ambitious for a higher education.

Mr. DeWitt believes the young people of our county need and should have the advantages of a Community College and he backs it up with a most generous offer.

If the citizens of Ulster County also believe that we should have a Community College, then they also should back it up by going to the polls on November 7 and voting for Local Question A.

Here's an opportunity to help our young people and our community that we cannot afford to pass up.

Khrushchev tells the comrades that capitalism is getting weaker and Communism stronger. So strong it has to build a wall to keep people from leaving East Berlin.

GRIM NUCLEAR ECHOES

The question whether or not the Soviet Union's giant explosion up near the Arctic was made by the threatened 50-megaton bomb is in a sense almost academic. Whatever the exact size of the bomb may have been—and that is not precisely known to anyone except the Russians—one thing is certain: it was a bomb of monstrous size.

The detonation will echo in several days, most of them promising evil for the human race. To begin with, the bomb has spewed into the atmosphere as much radioactive dust as would have been created by a whole series of smaller test blasts. This will settle back to earth in due course, substantially increasing the amount of above-normal radioactivity that poisons the atmosphere.

Russia's air will not escape this pollution, a fact that underscores the Kremlin's small concern for individual human beings where the interests of the state are involved. Though Americans cannot be smug about this matter of fallout, since our own tests in previous years have played a major part in atmospheric pollution, it is significant that the present Soviet blasts were touched off after the world had enjoyed a three-year moratorium on such tests in the atmosphere.

One unfortunate result of the big explosion is that it may have the affect of prodding the United States into resumption of atmospheric testing. Although this may suit those who feel that we must go on developing nuclear weapons no matter how big our present stockpile is, another test series would be sad news to most men. . .

There is, almost litterally, no future in this sort of competition between great powers. Unless testing can be halted by mutual agreement, this will go down in history as a black year for mankind.

'These Days'

DEFINITIONS

The logical mind cannot use words without definitions. Most of the confusions of our time are due to the lack of definition of terms; thus we generally confuse socialism and communism, a free society and a democracy. One might say that it makes little difference because most people have an intuitive concept of what is meant.

Admiral Rickover is gifted with a logical mind which compels him to define his terms, so that when he refers to a subject, he and his hearer will know precisely what is meant and the argument, if any, need not be over words.

We speak of a free society by which we might mean anything from such an anarchistic society, as Emma Goldman advocated, to the government-dominated society which Franklin D. Roosevelt actually established in this country.

Admiral Rickover defines a free society in precise terms:

"By 'free' I mean a politically free society in which the individual possesses 'inalienable rights,' and government is instituted 'to secure these rights.' We hold it to be 'self-evident' truth that liberty is an indispensable attribute of the individual. Not absolute liberty, of course, for this is not possible unless one dwells on an uninhabited island, but the broadest liberty compatible with life in society. This is accomplished by making consent of the people indispensable to the functioning of government; in other words, by associating the individual with the business of governing. In a free society the citizen has public functions, hence public status. His government, to quote Madison, 'derives all its powers directly or indirectly from the great body of the people, and is administered by persons holding their offices during pleasure, for a limited period, or during good behavior.'"

It is interesting that Admiral Rickover bases his terminology on the Declaration of Independence which our youngsters are no longer told to memorize, as my generation did. The Declaration rather than the Constitution is the basic philosophic statement of American society. These days there is a tendency to refer to the so-called Bill of Rights, that is, the first 10 amendments to the Constitution, as the whole of American political doctrine. By no stretch of the imagination can this be so. The first 10 amendments are, it is true, a restriction upon government, but their main function is to implement the Declaration of Independence which holds certain truths to be self-evident.

Among certain truths is government by choice which was increasing during the 19th Century and has been decreasing during the 20th Century. Since the American Revolution, country after country sought to limit government, to expand the rights of the people, to destroy every form of autocracy. Since the Russian Revolution, political development has been in the opposite direction. More and more countries have been taken over in one form or another of tutelage, either by a dictatorship or by a single person, or the dictatorship of an oligarchy of a dominant political party. This trend has been justified by Karl Marx's dictatorship of the proletariat. Thus the "unfree" society has come into existence. Admiral Rickover defines the unfree society as follows:

"I use the contrasting term 'unfree' to designate any society where the people do not have effective control over their government. A great variety of political systems fall into this broad category. They range from authoritarian countries where the ruler respects the law and does not meddle with the private lives of the people except to demand political obedience, to modern totalitarian countries where rulers acknowledge no law superior to their own will and desire, where government maintains itself in power by brute force reinforced by all-pervasive propaganda, where the individual is permitted no shred of private life in which to decide matters of a personal nature."

From the standpoint of this definition, it is impossible to make a moral distinction between Hitler and Stalin, Batista and Castro. Those in our State Department, who can discover a difference between one dictator and another on a moral basis, are obviously unable to define their terms. When, for insance, the State Department makes a distinction between Trujillo of the Dominican Republic and Castro of Cuba, it cannot define its terms. If one was wicked, so was the other. If one left the people no choice, so does the other. Roosevelt's initial error was that he assumed that he could distinguish between a good dictator and a bad one. Admiral Rickover, distinguishes between a free and an unfree society.

Iritis Is Usually Symptom Of Trouble Outside the Eye

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—What would cause an acute iritis? After my first attack, when I almost went blind, I was completely examined by my doctor who could find no cause.

Then I went to a surgical clinic, where they removed the left lobe of my thyroid gland. For a while I saw a little better and then I got another attack.

I can hardly see and my doctor doesn't know what to do. Have you any suggestions?

A—Iritis is usually a manifestation in the eye of a systematic disturbance that is taking place somewhere in the body other than the eye. It may be compared with the rash that appears on the skin during a generalized virus infection such as measles. Hence the search for the cause of an iritis must be conducted on a wide scale.

In my experience, the places to look, after routine surveys have been completed as in your case, are the nasal accessory sinuses that are in close proximity to the orbit (spenoid and ethnoids) and the apical regions of remaining teeth.

Whereas detection of an apical tooth abscess presents no great difficulty, and removal of the abscessed tooth is a relatively simple procedure, a difficult problem confronts even the trained nose-and-throat specialist who suspects sphenoidal and/or ethmoidal infection.

Consequently, I would suggest that, if your dentist has no solution to offer, you request your doctor to refer you to the most expert nose specialist of his acquaintance.

Be sure to alert the consultant to the difficulty of the presenting problem so that he puts aside enough time to make the type of intensive investigation that may be required to save your sight.

Q—Last October, my hearing started to go bad and now I have been told I have "nerve deafness" for which nothing can be done. Is this true? I would hate to think so and I'd be willing to act as a "guinea pig" if any one thinks there is a chance for restoration of my hearing.

A—I wouldn't give up so easily if I were you. Nor would I volunteer to act the "guinea pig." In the first place, are you sure that you're no longer exposed to whatever damaged your hearing nerve? How about drugs like arcenic, quinine or members of the streptomycin family, for example?

Secondly, your nerve deafness might not be complete. And, if this is so, you might be fitted with a hearing aid that would permit you to function reasonably well with what hearing remains.

To get more complete details about the facilities available for those who are hard of hearing, contact the American Hearing Society at its national headquarters (919—18 Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.), and/or the Deafness Research Foundation (310 Lexington Avenue, New York City 16, N. Y.).

Washington News

WASHINGTON NEWS—FRI.
By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Visiting left wing Premier Cheddi B. Jagan of British Guiana is giving the U. S. Government and its high officials the jitters.

They're not sure what to do about him.

For one thing, top administration officials are trying to get themselves off a hook.

THEY'RE TRYING TO think of some way to call Cheddi Jagan officially "not a Communist" so they can give his government U. S. aid—help in his five-year plan and in a series of agricultural and industrial ventures he is promoting.

They're embarrassed in this attempt by an official State Department ruling laid down some time ago that anyone belonging to the British Guiana People's Progressive party will not even be allowed to visit the United States because the party is Communist-dominated. Jagan is the head of the People's Progressive party.

There was no trouble letting Jagan into the U. S. As a premier, he has diplomatic privileges.

A waiver had to be issued to let in some of his aides. But it is downright difficult for officials to figure out some way to call Jagan a non-Communist.

JAGAN CALLS HIMSELF A Marxist. The British once jailed him for attempting to set up a Communist government in Guiana. His wife Janet was once a member of the Young Communist League in Chicago.

Jagan and his wife and associates have set up a series of Communist-associated youth and women's groups in Guiana.

His party paper follows the Moscow line word for word. Like Castro, he once attempted to set up "people's courts" and "people's police."

The State Department itself in an official document called Jagan a Communist earlier this year.

To get itself off the hook, the State Department is working on a new definition of "Communist." It's a man the U. S. government can prove is subject to the orders and the discipline of the international Communist movement.

THE THEORY NOW is that the U. S. cannot absolutely "prove" that Jagan takes orders and is subject to discipline. Some people hold that maybe he's just fuzzy-headed.

Therefore, the talk runs, Jagan can be officially called NOT a Communist.

If this seems a little complicated, consider the problem the U. S. government now faces vis-a-vis Jagan.

Some key government officials have about sold the administration on the idea that aid and friendship must be proffered to Jagan and his government.

These men reason that if the U. S. doesn't give aid to Jagan he assuredly will turn to the Soviet Union and absolutely take his government down the road to complete communism.

They hold that there is a possibility—a slight one to be sure, but still a possibility—that if the U. S. does proffer Jagan a little aid and friendship that maybe he will keep his country neutral and not allow Castro or Khrushchev to set up a strong base there.

THE SITUATION is much the same as it was in Yugoslavia a number of years ago. It was argued then that aid might keep the Yugoslavs out of the Moscow circle, even if they were avowed Reds.

Since then, over $2 billion have been put into Yugoslavia. The Yugoslavs come to Khrushchev's aid when the chips are down.

The men who believe the Jagan loan is worth the gamble know of this Yugoslav failure. They admit the risk is not good. They hold the U. S. has nothing to lose.

Sandburg View of Army And Eisenhower Disputed

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—Carl Sandburg, poet and biographer of Lincoln, probably will be sorry he every brought it up, and many people will differ sharply with him whe he says an Army man like Gen. Eisenhower has lived a sheltered life in a "welfare state' of his own.

Officers in the armed services will disagree vehemently. True, when they choose a military career, they are offered a certain security in their jobs but not the many benefits available in private employment today, particularly under union contracts. In training and commanding men from all walks of life, the officers actually come into contact more with individuals and deal more with human relations than do most civilians. To prepare and lead men in battle may seem to a poet a sheltered existence, but he will get little agreement on this from the soldiers who happen now, for instance, to be standing guard at the West Berlin border.

Called on Kennedy

Mr. Sandburg had just visited President Kennedy at the White House and was surrounded afterwards by reporters and television cameras at the Library of Congress when he gave vent to the following comment, as quoted by the United Press International.

"He (Eisenhower) has yet to know the people of the United States. With him the words 'socialist' and 'socialism' are dirty word—very nearly as dirty as 'welfare state.' But ever since he left the creamery at Abilene, Kan., he never bought a suit of clothes or a meal. He never was out of work for a day. All the anxieties that go with the free-enterprise system, he hasn't known them. He's lived in a welfare state ever since he left Abilene and went to West Point."

Mr. Sandburg has a strange misconception—shared by many other people—that each of the armed services provides all the needs of its men and officers. The fact is that the commissioned officer himself buys all of his clothes—his uniforms as well as the civilian clothes he wears when off duty. His "ration allowance" and "housing allowance" only partially cover the cost of meals and rental when the officer must provide a home for himself and family.

Might Ask Officers and Wives

Mr. Sandburg might ask a few officers—from the lieutenants up to the generals and admirals—what the difficulties are in raising their families on service pay as they move from post to post, and how they manage to give a college education to their children. He will find that many cannot afford this for all their children. He might also ask the wives of some officers whether they live in a "welfare state" when it comes to providing for the education of their families, for the care of sick or dependend relatively for the kind of clothes many other women wear.

Also, does Mr. Sandburg think that only a man who has had to earn money to buy his own food and clothing is eligible for the Presidency? It will surely be disputed that a man who hasn't had to earn money necessarily leads a sheltered life and doesn't know anything about the trials and tribulations of his fellow men. Certainly the affluence of Messrs. Rockefeller, Harriman and Kennedy—who have not had to work for a living—has not made a single one of them insensitive to the importance of social-welfare legislation. Incidentally, Dwight Eisenhower, while President, was criticized severely by some members of his own party when he became the champion of social-welfare projects of various kinds.

Poorly Informed

Mr. Sandburg was not well informed either in referring to Mr. Eisenhower as an "ungrammatical" President, as if fluency of speech were a criterion of a President's achievements. The truth is that there are few persons who when talking extemporaneously, always speak with grammatical precision. A look at some of the transcripts of the Kennedy press conferences will reveal more than one lip on this score.

Mr. Eisenhower does express himself well in writing. In fact, former members of his staff at the White House say that he was something of a purist. His longhand manuscripts would prove this point. Also, he often corrected what seemed to him ungrammatical English on the part of others who submitted memoranda to him. Army officers have told this writer that Dwight Eisenhower in his younger days wrote many speeches for his superiors in the Army.

New to Political Combat

It is most unfortunate that Mr. Sandburg, who probably has read a good deal of history, hasn't familiarized himself with the ways of American politics. He says Mr. Eisenhower was unfair in his criticism of the "peace corps" and that "it wasn't very good sportsmanship" for the former President to "shoot off" on this subject before the idea has "begun to have a tryout." Maybe if he will reread some of the speeches during last year's Presidential campaign about the "missile gap," he will recognize the art of political combat.

Army life isn't as easy as Mr. Sandburg has been led to believe, and, if he is interested in good sportsmanship, he will apologize to the men in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force. To say that any one of the officers in our military services has yet "to know the people of the United States" is to fail to understand the very men who devote themselves to a career in which they risk their lives so that the rest of us may continue to stay alive to watch television and even to read Mr. Sandburg's fine literary works.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Editors a little younger than the generation which was taking turns at bat in Roosevelt's reign have asked for my authority in maintaining that Henry Morgenthau actually wanted to arrange the withdrawal from Continental Europe of American troops after World War II. In that event Soviet Russia might have had little opposition in a sweep to the African mainland on the south and Gibraltar in the west. The Soviet frontier against Britain might then have been only the width of the English channel. Morgenthau wanted this done right away and it is hard to believe that a man of his intelligence and experience could not foresee the result.

The Morgenthau Plan, which Roosevelt okayed at the Quebec Conference with Churchill in 1944, but later disapproved, was set forth in typewriter script in a small volume called "Germany Is Our Problem," published by Harper and Brothers in 1945.

A note explains that the typewriter script is a reproduction of a photographic copy of the memorandum "summarizing the 'Morgenthau Plan'" which Roosevelt took with him to Quebec. It is a plan for ferocious revenge on the German people. The advantage to the Soviet Empire is clear all the way, but most obvious in the last two paragraphs. These concern the reduction of the forces of Western civilization to practically nothing.

The text of the last two paragraphs is: "Although the United States would have full military and civilian representation on whatever international commission * * * may be established for the execution of the whole German program, the primary responsibility * * * should be assumed by Germany's continental neighbors. Specifically, these should include Russian, French, Polish, Czech, Greek, Yugoslav, Norwegian, Dutch and Belgian soldiers.

"Under this program, United States troops could be withdrawn within a relatively short time."

Of course, the British would have been withdrawn too. The Communists, in our country, set up a great hullabaloo for the immediate return of American forces from both Europe and Asia. They realized that they would have hearty help from the American fighters themselves and their families and Congressmen at home. After all, they had "won a war."

Morgenthau wrote that in September, 1944, Roosevelt asked him to outline for him a program for Germany which he could take to the Quebec Conference. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, wrote in his memoirs that he knew nothing about this secret deal. He resented Morgenthau's intrusion and expressed a low opinion of Morgenthau.

Morgethau said Roosevelt knew "I had devoted a great deal of thought and study to the subject. He had observed that questions of reparations and finance could not be divorced from the broader aspects of Germany's future."

By his plan, Russia obviously would supply most of the force and control all of it. French traitor-Communists who had hidden out in Russia after they betrayed the French Army into the disaster and surrender of 1940 had now returned home and were shooting thousands of patriotic Frenchmen who had stood fast only to be smeared as "collaborators."

After the Quebec Conference, Morgenthau had the gall to write, "the basic principles of the program have represented the official position of the United States. * * * In the Potsdam Declaration signed by Truman, Atlee (Britain) and Stalin, the three principal allies were seeking to carry out the objectives of that policy. For purposes of comparison the Declaration is printed in Appendix C of this volume."

Set Tuesday Deadline For Employers' Filing

ALBANY—State Tax Commissioner Joseph H. Murphy today issued a reminder to New York State's approximately half million employers that the third quarter employer's withholding tax report (Form IT-2101) must be filed by October 31.

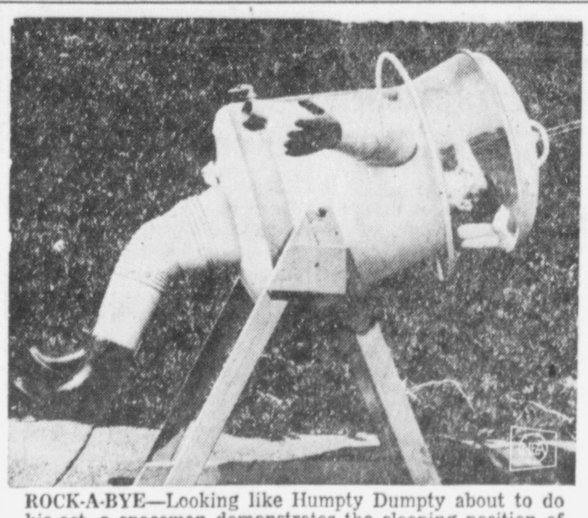

Remittance of New York State income taxes withheld from employes' wages and salaries during July, August and September must be made at the time the third quarter withholding report is filed.

To simplify record-keeping and make sure that tax payments are properly and promptly credited to employer accounts, Commissioner Murphy urged employers to use the pre-addressed forms mailed out by the State Department of Taxation and Finance, and to double check the Federal Identification Number which is used as a cross reference in Tax Department accounting.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

Editor's note—Manufacturers are getting friendly with the service business. It's profitable and often promotes sales of their own goods. In this, last of three articles on the service industries, Sam Dawson, AP business news analyst, also tells how such a tie-in is good for the host communities.

NEW YORK (AP)—Many manufacturers wish you'd spend more of your income on their goods. But many others see in the service industries that are getting an ever larger share of your spending money a good market for their own wares.

And an increasing number of manufacturers and producers are getting into the service business themselves, either to share in the wealth or because of a connection between their goods and services.

Link Seems Way Out

Sometimes the connection seems way out—like Montgomery Ward and Sears, Roebuck mail order and retail chains offering package travel tours. Sometimes the connection is obvious—like General Motors and Ford subsidiaries financing dealer sales of autos on the instalment plan. Sometimes it's a wedding of convenience—like that between makers of consumer goods that sell on the instalment plan and insurers of the debtor's life.

Often manufacturers get involved in the service industries as the best way to promote use of their products.

Appliance makers have been making a good thing out of laundry and dry cleaning centers, some by furnishing the machines for independent service firms, some by setting up their own chains of coin-operated devices for the serve-yourself minded.

Standard, Inc., Little Rock, Ark., began selling dry cleaning machines nearly two years ago. Norge has several thousand in operation. ALD, Inc., distributes Westinghouse machines. Philco is starting its own chain. Whirlpool is putting dry cleaning machines in some American Oil Co. service stations.

Knee-Deep in Promotion

The fast growing recreation industry has put manufacturers of sporting equipment knee deep in the promotion of such things as bowling alleys, skiing and other resorts, company-sponsored amateur teams and leagues of all sorts.

Cosmetic makers set up their own beauty salons and chains and health ranches — some with a celebrity clientele.

Electronic companies, like International Business Machines, Remington Rand and General Electric, find the services offered smaller companies by computer centers is good business, as well as that from large companies that can buy or rent the big machines full time.

Makers of trucks and all sorts of factory equipment have found doing business with leasing companies, independent or subsidiary, to their advantage.

Rapid expansion of the school-age population, a bonanza for publishers of text books, has put some makers of school supplies in the service business. Some 32,000 vending machines now service schools in 33 states with notebooks, pens, typing paper and the like.

Leisure Time Eyed

The increase in leisure time—whether at home or on the road—is attracting more business attention. To that end, Leisure Devices, Inc., is being set up for research, development, manufacture and distribution of labor and time saving products.

The company's aim is "To increase leisure by reducing radically the amount of time consumers as well as industry now must spend on mundane, nongratifying tasks."

Harassment Could Be Part of Soviet Aim For Talks on Berlin

BONN, Germany (AP)—Moscow may be expecting high-level talks on Berlin before long.

This could be an explanation of the current harassment of U.S. civilian officials at the East Berlin sector border. This has to be on Moscow's orders, since the East German Communist regime does not have sufficient independence to undertake such a perilous course on its own.

The idea of the harassment seems not to much to reheat the crisis, as to permit grabbing all the advantage possible in advance of four-power talks.

Actually, there is almost nothing to negotiate about. But from the Soviet viewpoint the talks would be a means of opening a safety valve, of letting steam out of a crisis which could explode, of providing time to digest gains already racked up since the Communists built the wall between the Berlin sectors in August.

The Western Allies, aware that Moscow is pushing for talks, appear to be trying desperately to hammer together a unified approach. But the going is slow, particularly in view of the aggressive Soviet pushing.

There are indications that the United States wants the West to go into the talks with new demands, thus providing the Westerners with something to talk about, something to negotiate.

The West could, for example, demand that any talks concern the future of all Berlin, not West Berlin alone; that the conference discuss the destruction of the Communist wall; that it discuss such things as revision of agreements covering access to West Berlin or even new corridors to Berlin.

The Russians seem to have no intention of talking about Berlin as a whole. East Berlin they now consider theirs. West Berlin they are willing to consider, for the time being, an occupied city. It is here and only there they want to eliminate, as they put it, "the remnants of World War II."

Gardner Still Serious

Edward C. Gardner, 54 of Saugerties, who was injured Wednesday afternoon when a 16-foot concrete block wall fell on him during an excavation project at a Malden Avenue gasoline station, was reported still in serious condition today at Kingston Hospital. Gardner was removing cement blocks from a wall of the old gasoline station garage in an excavation project at Brink's American Gas Service station. He was pulled out from under the debris by Joseph McGavin of Great Barrington, Mass., a foreman of the contracting firm of Coleman and Moore of Hillsdale. Village Police Chief Arthur W. Richter said Gardner suffered four fractured ribs and two fractured toes, multiple abrasions and possible internal injuries.

Phone Co.

two million telephones with all-numerical numbers in the country," he said. "The new type of telephone number will soon become familiar to everyone."

Reasons for Change

Primary reasons for the change is that the telephone company is beginning to outgrow the present two-letter five-numeral type of number. The time is in sight when demand for telephone numbers will exhaust all of the possible combinations of dial pulls that can be used to identify new central offices, Kohut declared.

"There are three main reasons why the telephone system is outgrowing its "two-five numbering plan," the manager said.

"First, an annual growth of around 3 million telephones means that more and more telephone central offices must be built—and identified.

"Second, direct customer dialing of long distance calls means that the country must be divided into numbering plan areas. With direct distance dialing, telephone numbers — particularly the part of the number that identifies the central office—cannot be repeated within the same numbering plan area.

"Third, new and improved types of service are using up telephone numbers at an increasing rate."

For More Combinations

The manager pointed out that only eight holes on the dial have letters while all of them have numerals. "This means that there are only 64 possibilities if you use letters to identify central offices.

"If you use numerals, however, you can get 80 combinations. You still can use only eight holes for the first pull—since 'one' and 'zero' must be saved for special purposes—but you can use all ten holes for the second pull."

Kohut said that many customers find dialing all-numerical numbers faster than dialing number-letter combinations "because they do not have to stop to search for letters on the dial."

Found More Accurate

He said telephone users have found that the all-numerical system is more accurate. "It gets rid of the problems in spelling names such as 'CYpress' — sometimes mis-spelled 'CIpress'. It eliminates the misunderstanding of names passed along orally. It ends confusion between the letter 'O' and the numeral zero and between the letter 'I' and the numeral one.

"Eventually letters won't be needed on the dial, and we'll be able to use larger, easier to read numerals. This will make it easier to dial," he declared.

Kohut pointed out that it makes no difference to the central office equipment whether you dial letters or numerals — the dial impulses are the same either way. "So, if any customer wants to have the 'new look' in telephone numbers right away, he can translate his own number."

He said that many all-numerical telephone numbers will be listed in the Kingston directory scheduled for delivery in April, 1962.

Society Chief Discusses Fallout Link to Cancer

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Is the radiation-bearing fallout from Soviet nuclear tests powerful enough to cause cancer?

If it is, it will be evident in "Mr. Khrushchev's grandchildren and all children throughout the world" in the next 10 years, the new president of the American Cancer Society said today.

"This predication is based on the assumption that the Soviet Union's present madness does not lead meanwhile to the sudden and complete annihilation of the human race," added Dr. Thomas Carlile who took office today.

"We do know that in the last 10 to 20 years there has been a sharp rise in the incidence of cancer in children and in deformed births," Dr. Carlile said in a statement released to newsmen at the close of the society's annual meeting.

"The unprecedented fallout occasioned by the Soviet Union's irresponsible testing of weapons could very well present a degree of exposure beyond critical limits for safety," he stated.

Carlile is chief of radiology at the Virginia Mason Hospital in Seattle and past president of the Society of Nuclear Medicine and of the Washington State Radiological Society. He succeeds Dr. John W. Cline of San Francisco as head of the cancer society.

Chief dangers of fallout to those persons alive now are cancer of the bone and cancer of the blood-forming and lymph tissue, more commonly called leukemia, he explained. For children as yet unborn, there is the danger of mutation.

"Mutations usually show themselves in spontaneous abortions, stillborn children, mental and physical cripples of many descriptions, and, perhaps once in a million cases, a super-human," Carlile said.

Adventists Set Sabbath Services

Sabbath school of the Kingston Seventh-day Adventist Church will start Saturday 10 a. m. with a song service led by Mrs. George Landstrom. Mrs. Carl Johnson, superintendent, will lead the opening exercises, following which, classes will separate to study and discuss the lesson for the week entitled, The Woman Who Became the Mother of Two Nations. The children will meet with Mrs. Andrew Seaman and her assistants in their Sabbath school room.

Divine worship will be at 11:30 a. m. The Rev. Eric R. Norman, pastor, has chosen as his sermon title, The Pledge of Abraham Lincoln. Saturday is World Temperance Day. Scrolls with the signatures of one million pledged to total abstinence are to be unfurled at the Temperance Rally of next year's General Conference Meeting. Adventists will have the opportunity to place their names on a scroll Saturday.

Tuesday, Halloween, the young people of the church will meet at the church at 6 p. m. ready to visit in the neighborhood for Treats for the Needy. They will call at homes for canned goods or other nonperishables to be put into Thanksgiving baskets for the poor, instead of for treats for themselves. In the past few years since the children have been doing this, the response of the people has been very good and it is hoped that this year many baskets will be filled for others.

The Dorcas Society will meet Wednesday from 2 to 4 p. m.

The fellowship hour is Wednesday from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m.

Sunday, Nov. 5, there will be a Dorcas Federation meeting in the Newburgh Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Stratton Thinks

as a part of an overall national defensive strategy," he said.

Stratton criticized Rockefeller's inclusion of the shelter question on the agenda of the Nov. 9 special session of the legislature.

"Fallout shelters will get no careful debate on Nov. 9 and the public will get no hearings," Stratton said.

The governor plans to present to the special session a program to spur construction of shelters in schools.

Stratton, a member of the House Armed Services Committee and considered a possible contender for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said Rockefeller's advocacy of individual shelters was "a dangerously haphazard approach to a subject where scattershot solutions and piecemeal programs can actually do more harm than good."

Saturn A-OK

a prelaunch briefing that the rocket had a 30 per cent chance of complete success, with a 70 to 80 per cent chance of achieving principal objectives which were ignition of the eight-engine cluster and lift-off of the 462-ton vehicle.

NASA reported the four inboard engines burned today for 109 seconds. The four outboard engines, which are movable to help control flight, burned for 115 seconds. Both figures were within two seconds of the intended time.

The huge vehicle gushed torrents of flame from its eight-engine power plant as it lifted from its pad at 10:06 a.m. EST on an intended eight-minute flight to start this nation's drive to land astronauts on the moon in this decade.

Weather Delays Shot

The massive engines were designed to build up 1.3 million pounds of thrust, equal to 30 million horsepower, in 1.4 seconds. This is three times more powerful than any previous U.S. rocket and tops the estimated one-million-pound thrust of Russian space vehicles.

The launching was only a little over half an hour behind the target time, set back briefly by two brief holds while clouds cleared away to permit photographic coverage of the flight.

The Saturn sent an unearthly howl rolling over the Cape as it thundered skyward, trailing its tremendous tail of fire.

The rocket screamed on its pad for nearly four seconds as an electronic device made certain all engines ignited properly.

Then massive steel arms slipped back to release the rocket.

Hesitant at First

It rose hesitatingly, then picked up speed.

About 10 seconds after lift-off, the rocket began a gradual arc and sped toward the southeast.

Since the end of the first hold, shortly after 8:30 a.m., the great rocket had stood alone on its pad with the 310-foot service tower rolled away.

Only the first stage is on trial on the maiden flight. Two dummy upper stages are loaded with 23,000 gallons of water for ballast.

Saturn's eight engine power plant is capable of 1.5 million pounds of thrust, but scientists aren't giving the rocket its head on the initial test.

More Flights Set

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported major goals are to check performance of the eight-engine cluster; verify structural and aerodynamic design of the entire rocket, and probe workability of ground support and launch equipment.

NASA plans 10 research and development flights leading to an operational Saturn in 1964. NASA cautioned against overoptimism and said it is reasonable to expect only five successes in the 10 test launches.

Saturn's primary mission once it is operational will be to place the Apollo three-man spaceship in earth orbits lasting several weeks. An advanced Saturn, which will have 3 to 4 million pounds of thrust in the booster stage, will be used to hoist Apollo and its three-man crew into orbit around the moon.

Taylor Hopeful Over Viet Nam

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor lunched with the ambassadors of SEATO alliance nations today and reportedly gave them a report on the plight of Communist-menaced South Viet Nam.

An informed source said President Kennedy's special military adviser spoke with optimism about the future of South Viet Nam and its chances for surviving as a pro-Western nation. But it is believed he is privately much less hopeful.

Taylor and his party of 12 start home Saturday.

19 Indictments Come From Jury, Seven Are Open

Seven open and 12 sealed indictments were returned today by the grand jury in a report to Supreme Court Justice William Deckelman. Jurors were excused until the opening day of the December Supreme Court term, but will not report unless summoned at the request of the district attorney.

Open indictments were:

William Maust, petit larceny.

Cleaster Hardin, second degree assault.

David T., and Betty Jane Carter, second degree forgery, eight counts.

Edward Romeo Bouthiette, third degree burglary and second degree grand larceny.

Jarrett Arnold Hart, third degree burglary and petit larceny.

John T. Figueria, illegally carrying and possessing loaded firearm.

Both the sealed and open indictments were transferred to county court on motion of Assistant District Attorney Harry Gold.

There were two dismissals. In the cases where no bill of indictment was returned, Justice Deckelman directed that bail be canceled or in the event the defendant was in jail an order of release was entered.

Grand Jury Will Hear Story of Marlboro Fatal

State police, who investigated an accident Sept. 29 in the town of Marlboro in which one man was killed and six other persons were injured, said today that evidence in the case will be presented to the next session of the grand jury.

Senior Investigator Edward Shannon said the case of Arnold Baselice, 39, of 1188 Old White Plains Road, Mamaroneck, charged with drunken driving, has been removed from justice court and evidence is now being prepared to offer it to the grand jury.

Freddie Kirby of Fishkill, a construction worker, and operator of one of three cars involved in the Route 9W mishap on Rosoff's Hill, Sept. 29, was killed. The operator of the second vehicle was Mrs. Leona Cooper, 23, of Box 375, Kingston. State Trooper James Kaljian said Baselice, heading south, crossed the double white line and first hit the northbound car of Mrs. Cooper and then the northbound automobile of Kirby.

Mrs. Cooper, Mary Cooper, 22, of Lake Katrine, Baselice, Julia Boice, 28; Carl Bois, 2, and Susan Bois, aged seven months, all suffered injuries in the accident.

Electronic Investments Need Careful Selection

Q—"It seams to me as if the electronics industry has wonderful prospects for growth. How can I pick a good electronics stock?" G. D.

A—This is no easy question. In my thirty-five years as a financial advisor, I've never seen an industry where it is more difficult to select stocks that are reasonably safe and at the same time offer good profit possibilities. That is why I have on my staff a special electronics engineering consultant. There are hundreds of small companies in this young industry which turn out scores of new products and ideas almost every day. An electronics product that seems to have a great future today can easily be outdated by a new scientific breakthrough tomorrow. The best way I can answer your question is to suggest that you check closely for four things: a capable management well-balanced between businessmen and engineers, a strong research effort backed by ample funds, a good growth curve of sales, and a good diversification of products and customers. I will mention one stock which I believe meets all these requirements—Hewlett-Packard. This stock has come down sharply in price in line with its group action and I believe it offers very good value at recent levels.

Q—"In a recent column you advised a reader to switch from Boston Edison to Virginia Electric & Power if he wanted growth. Will you please explain the difference?" J. M.

A—It boils down largely to a question of areas served. Virginia Electric serves a rapidly developing territory while Edison caters to one of the most mature parts of the nation. In the last ten years the former's share earnings have gained at a rate nearly four times that of the latter. Therefore, investors who want growth should choose Virginia Electric, but conservative accounts will be better off owning higher yielding Boston Edison.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

Farmers May Dry

let the chips fall where they may."

He said farmers were "pawns" in what he termed "a money and power game where the Teamster union, in particular, can't lose and dairymen can't win."

"The average income of dairy farmers is close to $65 for a seven-day, 80-hour week in New York and Pennsylvania," York said. "Yet if it wasn't for these farmers, Teamsters wouldn't be living off the fat of the land."

Farmers in New York and Pennsylvania now gross less than 10 cents a quart for milk shipped to New York City, he said.

He said the striking Teamsters received more than $100 a week plus commissions under their old contract and were seeking pay increases of about $10 a week.

Going to Plants

The Dairymen's League said its 17,000 members were shipping milk produced on their farms to the league's chain of manufacturing plants for use in such products as butter, cheese and ice cream.

Producers receive a lower price for milk used in manufacturing, however, than they do for fluid milk, the league pointed out.

"The full effect in dollars of the strike, as far as dairymen are concerned, cannot be evaluated as yet," the league said in a statement issued in New York City. "Every quart of milk which must be diverted into manufacturing uses returns five cents less to producers."

Charles Braun Heads Glenford Taxpayers Group

Charles M. Braun, head of industrial engineering at Hercules Powder Company, Port Ewen was elected president of Glenford Taxpayers Association, at its second meeting Thursday night at Glenford Fire Hall.

Also elected was Mrs. Ella Elliott, secretary.

A special meeting will be held Tuesday, Nov. 14 at the fire hall to complete election of officers and appoint committees.

Arthur P. Knight, a member of Onteora Central School Board spoke of the problems confronting the school district due to growth of the area. He pointed out that the population has almost doubled in the last 10 years and showed projection charts of the anticipated growth to 1970.

Hubert A. Richter, Kingston attorney also spoke and stressed the need to remain non-political.

A question and answer period followed both addresses. Refreshments were served. Nearly 90 members attended.

U.S. Inventory Set Up To Cope With Fallout

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Public Health Service will have an inventory by late today of what each state can and can't do in coping with any fallout problems created by Soviet nuclear testing.

This is to be one result of a two-day meeting of about 100 federal, state and local health officers representing every state considering what steps might be taken on all levels of government if fallout hazards become acute.

Judson Hardy, public affairs officer of the radiological health division, said the inventory is expected to include latest information on the states' legislative, personnel and equipment capabilities. It should also bring to light what weaknesses exist, Hardy said.

All the sessions were closed to the public and newsmen.

The service, in a statement Thursday on fallout surveillance and protection, said present fallout levels from the Soviet nuclear tests do not warrant undue public concern or drastic action.

However, the statement added that the levels "do warrant continuous, intensive surveillance by federal, state and local governments and consideration of protective measures which might be taken if they should be found necessary."

The situation within each state is being considered at working sessions continuing today. Ideas are advanced by participants, discussed, then tossed out or presented as a consensus of the group at a closing general session.

The schedule calls for adjournment in late afternoon with a news conference to summarize the meeting.

Officials who looked in on the first working sessions Thursday said it was too early to determine any conclusions.

They added that the state officials contributed heavily to discussions of states' possibilities in planning for better surveillance systems, interpretation of data, control and protective measures, and how to meet public information problems.

Man Surrenders, Sought in N. Y. Police Shooting

NEW YORK (AP) —Salvatore D'Ambrosio, who surrendered after a wide police search for him, has been charged with shooting a policeman.

D'Ambrosio, 36, was held in $25,000 bail in Kings County Court in Brooklyn. The charges were attempted murder and felonious assault.

D'Ambrosio's surrender cleared another man, Anthony Abbatemarco, 29, who had been accused in the wounding of Patrolman Melvin Blei.

Authorities said D'Ambrosio, who surrendered Thursday, was positively identified by Blei as the man who wounded him in the cheek Aug. 20 outside the Sahara Lounge, a Brooklyn tavern.

Blei was shot as he attempted to seize a man who fled from an interrupted attempt to strangle gangster Larry Gallo inside the lounge.

Buffalo to Have New Lighthouse in 1962

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The present Buffalo harbor main lighthouse, jarred from its moorings three years ago, is to be replaced next year by a new structure.

Cmdr. S. E. Taylor of the Coast Guard said Thursday the new lighthouse is scheduled to be completed by next June at the southerly end of a new west breakwater now under construction. A construction contract has been let, he told the Buffalo Courier-Express in a telephone interview from Cleveland.

The current lighthouse, at the north entrance to the harbor, was rammed by the 8,000-ton steamer Frontenac on July 26, 1958, moved 20 feet and tilted 15 degrees.

NEW YORK (AP)—Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz hit Mayor Robert F. Wagner on the crime issue again today, and Wagner pointed to his administration's achievements in public housing.

The Republican and Democratic candidates for mayor started off the day with campaign statements.

Lefkowitz accused Wagner of combating crime "with a stack of press clippings from which he can make a paper sword." He said the city has an international reputation as a lawless community and is "in the grip of fear."

Wagner, who issued the second of his series of daily "fact sheets" about his administration, said it "has done more in the field of housing built with local governmental assistance than the rest of the United States combined."

Power and Glory TV Show May Be Among the Best

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Network television has a big Sunday punch for the viewers—particularly the ones that complain there's nothing worth watching any more.

Graham Greene's novel "The Power and the Glory," adapted to a two-hour TV drama, will be hown on CBS Sunday from 9 to 11 p.m. (EDT) with a big, star-studded cast headed by Laurence Olivier and Julie Harris. And it is expected to be one of the big events of the season.

There is also NBC's "The World of Bob Hope," first of a series of documentary biographical projects using new camera techniques. This one also comes on Sunday, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Among the regularly scheduled shows during the next seven days, there are some items of passing interest:

Tonight, for instance, Lee Marvin will perform on two CBS series—"Route 66" (8:30-9:30) and "The Twilight Zone" (10-10:30). NBC's Telephone Hour (9:30-10:30) will feature the McGuire sisters, the Kingston Trio and Benny Goodman.

Saturday night's NBC movie (9-11) will be "There's no Business Like Show Business" with Marilyn Monroe, Ethel Merman and Donald O'Connor. On Monday, Gertrude Berg will visit Jackie Cooper's "Hennesey" show (CBS, 10-10:30 p.m.) and Tom Poston will star on NBC's "Thriller" (10-11).

Host Dick Powell will act in a drama of World War II on NBC's "Dick Powell Show" Tuesday night (9-10). ABC's "Close-Up" (10-11) is a study of automation called "The Awesome Servant."

Perry Como's Wednesday night (NBC, 9-10) guest is Sherley Booth. Jane Wyatt and Hans Conried star on Steel Hour's "Little Lost Sheep," a comedy (CBS, 10-11).

Thursday brings along, as usual, Miss Booth as "Hazel" (CBS, 9:30-10) and "Sing Along with Mitch" (NBC, 10-11).

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

Babson Park, Mass., Oct. 27. My column today is adressed to young people getting married, or to those in a position to advise couples starting out in life. Newlyweds should place at least a part of their joint savings, after buying essential furniture, in straight life insurance. When they are young, they can get such insurance without difficulty and at a moderate rate. Next, I recommend building up credit and establishing good will at a local bank. It is a wise move to rent a small safe-deposit box for jewelry and important papers, including wills. Don't forget to make wills, even if you haven't much capital.

Bank Accounts Valuble

It is important to keep a reasonable deposit in your local bank for emergencies—and a portion for possible later investment when conditions are less clouded and you have more funds. After you put money in the bank, don't withdraw it until the proper time comes, and then only after careful consideration. Think of your bank account as sacred, not to be disturbed except for these pre-considered contingencies.

The young may think the idea unimportant, but there is no better way of building up a reputation for thrift, honesty, and hard work than by starting a bank account and MAKING REGULAR DEPOSITS. Become acquainted with an officer of the bank and speak to him every time you go in, so that he will come to know you and will be able to give you a good reference if you need one. Getting to know bank officials can be as valuble to you as your bank-account interest payments.

Banks Today Are Safe

During the bank-closing emergency in the 1930's practically all the weaker banks were done away with, so that financial institutions today are in a safe and profitable position. This brings me to the question of bank stocks, which I recommend as an investment, . . particularly the stock of your local bank with which you do business. Practically any local bank could be liquidated for more than its published assets, so that you as a stockholder would probably get more than you paid for your shares. Five or ten shares of such stock would probably be one of the very best investments for a young married couple.

Investing In Bank Stocks

If you are going to put more than a moderate sum into bank stocks, it would be wise to get the Annual Reports from at least two or three banks and go over them carefully. Any bank will give you an Annual Report, whether you are a customer or not, and in most states these reports must be published in the papers every year. After my father's death, I recall finding a scrapbook in which were pasted all the Annual Reports of our hometown Gloucester banks, clipped from the Gloucester Daily Times.

Most people look for the bank with the largest deposits, but let me give you a hint about this. When bankers talk to me about their "large deposits," I always say, "Well, you certainly owe a good deal of money!" Because it should be realized that a bank's deposits represent money that must be paid back to the depositors sooner or later. Therefore, when appraising bank statements, be sure to subtract the deposits from the total assets to find out what would be left for the stockholders.

In considering bank stocks, always check up on the character, integrity, and ambition of the men in charge of the bank's operations. Be sure that the officials are in good health, and that their judgement is sound. It is a good sign if they are church-going men. It is, of course, an extremely bad sign if they are addicted to liquor or indulge in known excesses.

It is worth while to know the qualifications of the bank directors. Be sure, for instance, that these men have not taken their positions as a mark of distinction rather than responsibility. Of course, the bank's assets are under constant supervision of the regular examiners, so there need be little worry on this score. Hence, if a depression strikes, I feel that bank stocks may be in a stronger position than perhaps any other category of stocks.

Marbletown Body Provides Funds For Tree Project

Marbletown Community Project this week initiated a program which should provide memorial Christmas trees in nine township communities, it was announced by Kenneth E. Osterhoudt, chairman.

In a letter dated Wednesday, a starting fund of $10 was mailed to Cottekill, Atwood, Kripplebush, Lyonsville, Vly, Lomontville, Marbletown, Stone Ridge and High Falls for a memorial Christmas tree lighting project.

At a recent public meeting of the Marbletown Community Project committee it was decided to enclose a $10 contribution to each of the nine communities to encourage establishment of an outdoor community Christmas tree. Those communities who already have an outdoor community tree project may use the money for other Christmas season activities, the letter suggested.

In Stone Ridge a lighting service and program is scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 17 at 7:30 p. m. Donations for a bulb in memory of a loved one may be sent to the Marbletown Community Project, Stone Ridge.

Breeds Confusion

CHIPLEY, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. B. Nelson says she has a terribly confused turkey gobbler, In the first place, she says, he tried to make like a turkey hen. And in the second, the egg he tried to hatch was a pumpkin. Mrs. Nelson says the male turkey adopted the small pumpkin after a larger pumpkin had been picked from the vine. He hovered over it, day and night, for two weeks.

Daniel Lammon Is Retiring After 58 Years Service

Daniel Lammon, of 31 Shufeldt Street, after 58 years of employment in an outstanding local business, retired today.

Employed first with the William O'Reilly stationery and news store when it was at 530-32 Broadway, he continued with it when it moved and became William O'Reilly, Inc., at 611 Broadway where it has expanded with the sale of office equipment as well as stationery.

Mr. Lammon began as a newsboy some 15 years after the business was started by the late William O'Reilly in a central Broadway building near what is now the east end of the railroad underpass. He was then about 16 years old. He handled newspapers for about three years.

Later he worked as a bookkeeper and through other experience gained a thorough knowledge of various phases of the business. He knew it when horse and wagons were used for trucking and he saw it develop through the years.

When the Ashokan Reservoir was being built, he recalls, he had some experience "on the road," covering some of his territory by horse and wagon and visiting such communities as Olive Bridge, Brown's Station and Shokan. Post cards were among items of sale during those tours.

O'Reilly, president of William O'Reilly, Inc., 611 Broadway (left) makes a presentation to Daniel Lammon in token of his completion of 58 years of service with the firm, as Leonard T. O'Reilly, vice-president, looks on. Mr. Lammon retired at the completion of his working hours today. (Freeman photo).

The first O'Reilly store opened in 1888, that year of the big blizzard. Travel was said to be hazardous in that crippling storm, but in tribute to Mr. Lammon's persistence in getting to his job, William J. O'Reilly, president of William O'Reilly, Inc., had something to say about a big snow last winter.

Both vehicular and pedestrian traffic were slowed up or stopped in last winter's deep snow, he recalled, and it was felt that Mr. Lammon would be among those hampered in making his way through the snow. A truck was sent to get him, not knowing that he was on his way afoot, and when the truck returned its driver found Mr. Lammon in the store.

Mr. Lammon is married to Mary V. Baker Lammon. They have been married 48 years, and have three sons and seven grandchildren. Daniel Lammon Jr., of Corning, is an executive with the Corning Glass Co. Robert is employed with Western Printing, Poughkeepsie, but lives in Kingston, and Raymond, resides in Troy.

The O'Reillys, who also operate the O'Reilly Stationery Co. Inc., 38 John Street, presented Mr. Lammon with a gift as a token of his years of service with them.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)— When William Nichols, producer of next Sunday night's "The Ziegfield Touch," needed a narrator with glamor he sought out Joan Crawford.

She had never been in a Ziegfield show, she had never met the fabulous Flo. But Joan has that elusive quality, glamor, notably lacking in the current crop of starlets.

"It does seem to have disappeared," Miss Crawford admitted. "Glamor takes preparation and hard work. It has to be started with the starlets, and they can't do it alone. The studios have to help and they just don't bother today.

"In television, they have to work so fast, the hours are so long and the contracts with the players so different, that there just isn't time to prepare the attractive young performers for real stardom. Instead they just shove them into being personalities—and that's very different."

Joan, conceding that ability is certainly an important asset for an actress, insists that equally important is the way in which he—or more likely, she—is presented to the public.

"In the great days at Metro," she reflected, "they carefully developed the great, the glamorous stars, particularly the women. They protected them, they made them remote, belonging to another, more wonderful world. But today there is none of this protective quality. Why, today, there is no chance for any person to be developed like Garbo—who is still a figure of glamor, still aloof and unknown."

Joan, presumably, will treat the subject more comprehensively soon: She and writer Jane Ardmore have just finished the manuscript of a biography, "Portrait of Joan" to be published in the spring.

Recommended Sunday viewing: "The World of Bob Hope," NBC, 7:30-8:30 p.m. (Eastern Daylight Time) — Documentary biography; "The Power and the Glory" CBS, 9-11—Sir Laurence Olivier, Julie Harris and Martin Gabel in an adaptation of the Graham Greene novel.

Niagara Reservoir Has Water First Time

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—the 1,880-acre Niagara Power Project reservoir has water in it for the first time.

The water was pumped in Thursday by the New York State Power Authority through the Lewiston pump-generator station.

A total of 240,000 kilowatts of power will be produced daily when the process is in full operation, probably next year.

Water pumped into the reservoir during the night will be released back through the Lewiston generator during the day and then will flow through a 13-generator main station on the edge of the Niagara gorge.

North Muddles Into Underbid

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

North's pass of his partner's one-spade bid is a splendid example of muddled thinking.

North remembered that South had dealt and passed. He forgot the fact that in spite of the pass it would be very easy for South to have enough for a game opposite North's good 14 points.

When you open in third or fourth seat, you don't have to respond to your partner's nominally forcing response. What's more, you should not respond with a minimum or sub-minimum, but North did not have a minimum hand. He had 14 high card points and while his distribution was flat he did have two honors in his partner's suit.

If North wanted to be conservative, he might have rebid one no-trump, but I would favor an immediate raise to two spades.

The no-trump call might have given South a problem. A spade raise would have made it easy to go on to game.

Of course, four spades is a lay down. All declarer has to do is to draw trumps as soon as he gets the lead. He will wind up losing one diamond and two hearts, but three tricks for the defense will not set the major suit game contract.

Paris Firefighters Trace Lineage Back to Imperial Decree of Napoleon - - -

Paris' "Silver Helmets," the only such military-firefighting unit in Europe, turn out smartly during their annual review.

Latest addition to the Paris Fire Department is this modern fireboat, equipped to fight fires on or from the Seine River.

Men of the "Regiment des Sapeurs-Pompiers" (sappers-firemen) go into action to fight a potentially dangerous Paris fire.

The Paris Fire Brigade is the only one in Europe which is a full-fledged military unit. It was created in 1811 by decree of Emperor Napoleon I after one of the most disastrous fires in the city's history. Ever since then it has been known as the "Regiment des Sapeurs-Pompiers" (sappers-firemen). Parisians usually refer to members as the "Silver Helmets." They are an integral part of the French army, and service in the unit counts the same as the military duty to which all Frenchmen are subject. Recruits must be single, between 18 and 25, and must pass a three-day series of exhaustive tests. Initial hitches are three years in length. Esprit de corps among the 4,000 officers and men of the brigade are high. They were called on to combat 34,000 fires in Paris and its suburbs during 1960.

Special Kittens Are Flown From Germany

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Four kittens with curly coats, crooked whiskers and out-sized ears arrived here after leaping East Berlin's concrete curtain —by airliner.

The rare kittens were ordered by Mrs. William O'Shea, of Vernon, N.Y., from an East Berlin breeder, Dr. Runia Scheuer-Karpin.

Mrs. O'Shea, a cat fancier and wife of a Mohawk Airlines pilot, was told by KLM the Dutch airline, that it doubted the communists would let even a cat leave East Berlin. But KLM said it would try.

Then LOT, the Polish airline, told KLM, "anything you can do, we can do," and flew the cats to Amsterdam, Holland. KLM took over from there to New York, where Mr. O'Shea cleared the two-month old kittens through customs and delivered them to his wife Thursday.

Kennedy Policies Confusing Allies, Says GOP Leader

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Kennedy administration's record in Laos, Cuba and Berlin "is enough to confuse our allies around the world," the Republican national chairman says.

On domestic issues, Democrats have done "nothing" new on agriculture, labor, civil rights or long-term foreign aid financing," said Rep. William E. Miller of Lockport Thursday night.

There will be a Republican House of Representatives and increased GOP senatorial and gubernatorial strength in 1962; and a Republican president in 1964, he told a group of local Republicans.

Robert Fulton, who had a patent on steam navigation and other boat experiments, also painted miniature portraits.

Too Detailed for Ordinary Citizen

New Brawl Building Up Over Battle of Budget

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The budget is like a black balloon. It keeps going up but you can't see through it.

Since it's what the government spends, for everything from missiles to pencils, it affects all our lives.

But no ordinary citizen can understand it. It's too big, too detailed, too complicated.

Yet, a brawl over it is building up between the politicians of both parties. It will get worse in the weeks ahead.

$7 Billion Deficit

Over this weekend the Kennedy administration will make a forecast:

That this year's spending will be near $89 billion, a peacetime record; that government income, or revenue, will be only about $82 billion; and that therefore the budget deficit will be around $7 billion.

Two good reasons make the budget opaque:

1. What goes into it—meaning what the President and his aides, and later Congress, think it is necessary to spend—is after all a matter of judgment.

That alone means disagreement.

2. The budget figures—the list of expenses the President thinks necessary and submits to Congress every year for approval—fill a volume as big as a metropolitan telephone directory.

No unitiated man could understand it all. In fact, just five days ago a congressional committee complained the whole budget procedure is 40 years out of date and should be modernized.

GOP Returns Compliments

When President Eisenhower ran deficits the Democrats quickly gave him whatfor. And he had some beauts, too.

One year it was $12.5 billion. For the fiscal year ending last June 30, President Kennedy announced in July, Eisenhower's deficit was $3.9 billion.

Now that Kennedy is running a deficit, the Republicans are returning the compliment. Eisenhower already has started banging away.

He not only recently criticized Kennedy's spending but added: "The state of confusion I now sense in Washington is like a tornado—on a spring day."

Democrats—but not Kennedy—promptly reminded him of that $12.5 billion deficit of his own. But after Kennedy goes into some detail in this weekend report there will be enough ammunition to keep the politicians shooting for months.

Meanwhile Kennedy has some ready explanations for his deficit: Getting the economy out of a tailspin, building up necessary defenses.

Opposition Skeptical

As if to take some of the edge off the Republican criticism he can expect after this weekend, Kennedy has done things like these:

He urged his Cabinet and agency heads to be frugal in spending and hold down the number of government workers "to the minimum consistent with getting the job done."

But his administration has promised a balanced budget next year. The Republicans will be highly skeptical, and probably will tell him so before he ever tells Congress next January what the next year's budget should be.

Would Give College PapersOwnPersonality

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) —College publications should be given a personality of their own instead of being patterned on the style of daily newspapers, says Paul Miller, president of Gannett Newspapers.

Miller made the remarks Thursday night to about 100 students at a three-day convention of the University of New York Collegiate Press Association.

He said the letters of the word "press", as related to college journalism, could stand for; P-Personality; R-Research, responsibility and readability; E-Enterprise; S-Salesmanship of new ideas, and S-Service to readers and advertisers.

"Finding new ways to present the news is often as important as getting the news," Miller said.

Features of Interest To Food Shoppers

by
LOUISE M. KAKARGO
Asst. Home Demonstration Agent

Anyone who cooks very often realizes the importance of onions for flavor, as well as their convenience and economy.

While shopping the other day, I noticed that fresh onions proved to be the most economical, even though New York State's crop is smaller this year than it has been.

When purchasing the onions, you may notice they are often packed in three pound polyethylene bags.

I find medium size onions to be the most prevalent. Farmers prefer to raise them because they are less susceptible to bacterial damage. We consumers like them because they are used up quickly. Storage of an unused portion of onion is a problem, in the refrigerator, the strong odor of onions will be picked up by other foods unless placed in a tightly sealed container, and a medium onion fits itno our cooking needs better than the jumbo.

To prevent sprouting and decay, store onions in a cool, dark, and dry place in a loosely woven bag or container with good circulation of air.

Onions may be purchased in other forms too. Finely chopped dehydrated or instant minced onion may be used in dishes calling for much liquid or in stuffings, hamburgers, or meat loaf where steam will rehydrate the onion. Instant minced onion is an onion concentrate; use ¼ as much as you would fresh onion.

Instant sliced onion is similar to instant minced onions. They are used for sauteed onion rings. Use 3 tablespoons water to 4 tablespoons of slices.

I find convenience in canned and frozen onion products, but these are generally more expensive than fresh onions. Canned onions are ideal when making kabobs—their shape and texture make them ready to use, no need to quarter and parboil as with fresh onions.

Canned French fried onions are another natural for convenience. They combine well with green beans to make a casserole dish. Alternate layers of cooked green beans and onions in a casserole. Pour a mixture of canned condensed cream of mushroom soup, canned mushrooms, and sliced toasted nuts. Sprinkle grated cheese and bake for 30 minutes.

At the Markets

Meat—Seasonal increases in marketings of livestock are under way. Recent marketings of beef, veal, lamb, and pork have been higher than in August and early September. Larger numbers of livestock are expected in the coming weeks. The consumption pattern also shifts in the fall with shoppers choosing roasts and longer cooking cuts more often than in summer. While there may be some price declines this fall, especially for pork, retail meat prices generally are expected to be quite stable.

Dry Beans—Fall weather has favored dry bean production, and as a result another good crop is in prospect.

Fruits—All apples remain exceptionally plentiful and low in price. Market reporters say color is improving on most varieties with the pale color giving way to rosier hues, as seasonal weather aids quality. Avocadoes are still in season and are available at reasonable prices. The new cranberry crop is a good one and stocks on hand are heavy, so cranberries are a top buy.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Stephen P. Connelly, PR, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony and the nuptial Mass. The Papal Blessing was received.

Mrs. Frank Rafferty was organist and Robert Gallo, soloist. Selections included Ave Maria, Panis Angelicus, O Lord I Am Not Worthy and Mother Beloved.

White chrysanthemums decorated the main altar with baskets of mixed chrysanthemums on the side altars. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of French silk illusion lace over peau de soie styled with a Sabrina neckline and long sleeves tapered to points over the wrists. The bouffant skirt terminated in a chapel train and was trimmed at the back with a garland of silk organza roses. Her illusion veil was secured by a crown of pearls and rhinestones. She carried a lace covered missal with a cascade of white rosebuds, stephanotis and ivy streamers.

Mrs. William Nappi of Huntington, L. I., a cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Her gown of white peau de soie was fashioned with scooped neckline, bell shaped skirt and gold cummerbund. Her pillbox hat was designed with a border of gold leaves and circlet veil. She carried a colonial nosegay of gold rosebuds with clusters of frosted grapes and ivy.

Bridesmaids were the Misses Christene Luczat of Yonkers, cousin of the bride, Kathleen Gibbons of Kingston; Mary Ann and Karen Stenson, sisters of the bridegroom.

They were gowned in gold peau de soie with matching pillbox hats. Their flowers were golden rosebuds arranged with frosted grapes and tied with white satin bows.

Legendary Beauty Is To Sit for Portrait On Halloween Night

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

HENNIKER, N.H. (AP) — Legend has it she was 6 feet tall with red hair and green eyes—a striking Irish beauty who set hearts aflutter in the mid-18th century.

Not many people have seen her lately, and since there are no known pictures Louis Maurice Auguste Roy is having a medium from East Weymouth, Mass. come in Halloween night to try to get a good look.

From the medium's description he'll paint her portrait and, as he slyly puts it: "Who can say she doesn't look like that?"

L. M. A. Roy (he understandably prefers initials) uses the present tense in referring to Ocean Born Mary, an original occupant of the house he has lived in more than 40 years. To him she is not just a colorful legend and sometime ghost, nor merely a source of dimes and quarters that trickle in from tourists now that the old Georgian mansion is a landmark on the New Hampshire map. She is a benign spirit keeping him from injury, because he is taking care of the house she loved.

His mother, who died at 90 in 1949, saw Mary three times, he says, but he never has. Since her death he has lived alone, "never having found the right girl to marry."

Now nearing 79 and deadset on reaching 100, Roy is a small, supple man who can still do handstands. His blue eyes sparkle as he pads about in sneakers plying visitors with tales of pirates, buried treasure, and of course, Ocean Born Mary.

She was born at sea in 1720 to the wife of the sea captain bringing a party of Scotch-Irish immigrants from Ireland to New Hampshire. Not far from Boston Harbor a pirate crew boarded, and threatened all with death. But the pirate chief, a Captain Pedro who turned out to be a sentimental sort, spared their lives when it was promised the newborn baby would be named Mary after his mother. He presented her with a bolt of greenish-blue brocaded silk, which he said he hoped would be made into her wedding gown.

It was, and she wore it at her marriage to Thomas Wallace. When she later became a widow with four sons, Captain Pedro, who had kept track of her through the years, invited her to keep house for him in a magnificent Georgian house he was building near here. She lived in it until she died at 94.

If the medium doesn't see Mary after next week, maybe some passerby will. Several are on record over the years as having seen a tall woman in white drive down the road in the fancy open coach the pirate gave Mary, descend to throw a bundle in a nearby well, and then disappear in the distance. It was probably just coincidence it usually happened on Halloween.

PLANS HAVE BEEN CHANGED

Q: My husband was recently transferred to another part of the country, and we made all preparations to move. The transfer received a front page notice in the local newspaper. My husband went on ahead in order to find a house for us to live in. After a month he found that the climate did not agree with him and he is going to return to his former position and so we will not be moving after all. Now my problem is, what to do with the going-away presents I have received from many of my friends. My daughter also received a going-away present from her scout troop. I am really terribly upset over this and would appreciate your help.

A: I am sure that neither you nor your daughter's friends expect you to return their presents. Your daughter might invite her troop to a party to celebrate the fact that she is not leaving them, and you might also follow her example by giving a party for your friends who gave you going-away presents.

Wishes to Avoid Duplicate Presents

Q: Very soon I will be giving a surprise kitchen shower for a very dear friend of mine. To avoid duplication, would it be proper to write at the bottom of each invitation what each guest should bring? I have seen this done and it has been very successful, but is it proper?

A: I am sorry, but each guest should be allowed to bring whatever she chooses to give. Your friend will be free later to exchange all duplicates for things she did not receive.

First Invitation to Dinner

Is it ever permissable for a girl to take the first step and invite a young man to her house for dinner before she has asked her for a date?

A: Only if he is the son of old friends of your parents and they invite him.

FALL EDUCATION PROGRAM—Attending a dinner prior to the fall education program meeting of District Nurses Association are (seated l-r) Miss Antoinette Mauro, program chairman; Dr. Bernice E. Anderson of Teachers College, Columbia University, guest speaker; and Kathryn Heavey of the program committee. Standing, Mrs. Marie Stewart, president of District 11 and Mrs. Gladys Andersen, secretary. Dr. Anderson spoke at the meeting on the legal aspects of nursing. (Freeman photo)

District Nurse Association Fall Program Features Talk on Legal Aspects of Career

Speaking to an audience of nurses at the auditorium of the Benedictine Nurses Home in Kingston Thursday evening, Dr. Bernice E. Anderson of Teachers College, Columbia University, made a searching examination of the actions or the omission of action which may bring the nurse into a law court.

The fall program meeting of the District Nurses Association was oepned by Mrs. Marie Stewart, president, and the speaker was introduced by Miss Antoinette Mauro, program chairman.

Dr. Anderson stressed that each person is held under law responsible for his own acts and no one can sustitute for him or her. Listing reasons for the expanding area of nurses' responsibility, she mentioned larger hospital units complicated apparatus used for tests and treatments, more workers to be supervised, more potent medicines, doctors prone to delegate more duties to nurses and new scientific knowledge with which she must be familiar.

The nurse must know what she should do and what she should not do in any situation where nursing knowledge is required, she said. Judgment of her act will be based on the legal definition of nursing practice under state law, the official "Functions, Standards and Qualifications" for each section of nursing published by the American Nurses Association, what the nurse was taught, and precedents set by previous legal decisions. Categories under which legal action may be taken include negligence, assault and battery, false imprisonment, slander or libel and breach of contract.

These terms were illustrated by specific instances involving nursing situations.

Dr. Anderson also stressed the value of having insurance protection even when a nurse is not guilty under the law. District Association members may obtain this through the American Nurses Association group plan.

Dr. Anderson was entertained at dinner at Judie's before the meeting. At the close of the program, refreshments were served by Miss Esther Schisa and Mrs. Elizabeth Korzendorfer of the public health section and Mrs. Jeannette Martino and Mrs. Anne Fuller of the Benedictine Alumnae Association.

Working with Miss Mauro on the program committee were Miss Barbara Clark of Kingston Hospital, Miss Kathryn L. Heavey of Kingston, Mrs. Maureen Seche, Benedictine Hospital, and Miss Ursula O'Sullivan, Mrs. Alice Dolan and Mrs. Theresa Notarnicola of Catskill.

'Unicorn' Comes Out Of Garden, In Salon For Spring Fashions

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—The unicorn, that favorite mythical beast of the Middle Ages, was supposed to have looked like a white horse with a long horn on his forehead.

It seems somewhat unlikely therefore that a fashion designer, who knows better than anyone how touchy women are about being equated with equines, would name her choice new silhouette after a horse's relative, however imaginary.

But Pauline Trigere boldly introduced the unicorn at her resort and spring showing Thursday night. Presumably she created no hard feelings.

It was gone at cautiously, of course. First, there was the unicorn hairdo by Michel Kazan. Each model's hair was swirled high on her head, the sides brushed forward and the top down over the forehead.

Soon they began wearing little cone-shaped unicorn hats by Miss Trigere and Mr. John, possibly inspired by the famous movie headgear of the late Chico Marx. The hats were worn precariously far back on the head, remaining secure only by the uncompromising position of the models' S-shaped spines.

Finally came the unicorn silhouette, and it seemed the high-busted, high-waisted empire all over again.

There was one startler: A unisleeve dress. One long sleeve and one bare arm protruded from a pale blue fragonard knit. It seemed just the thing to give a split personality a little chic.

Color was rampant in Miss Trigere's resort collection. Tropical flora and fauna were reproduced either in color or print on slim, easy, wearable dresses. Some had reversible capes or stoles.

Waistlines were mostly at the usual place, and skirt length seems unchanged for the new season.

Girls Enjoy Night At Opera, Soviet Tanks There, Too

BERLIN (AP)— Two attractive young American red-haired sisters breezed into East Berlin in a little red car for a night at the opera. They got out only minutes before Soviet tanks lumbered into position near the Communist opera house.

"What a panic," giggled Mary Barber, 19, surprised at all the border fuss on their return to the U.S. checkpoint Thursday night.

Mary and her sister Nancy, 22, from Joliet, Ill., went into the Communist zone to catch a performance of Handel's "Ezio." They got salutes from the East Berlin police who waved them on after they showed their passports.

"Friendly, not antagonistic at all. Nice and sort of fun," Nancy recalled in describing the Communist police.

And the girls had a wonderful time at the opera, they said. The Soviet tanks didn't pull up until shortly after they left for the Western zone. Newsmen at the border gave them their first word of how close they came to getting caught in a traffic jam.

It was their second sightseeing foray into the Communist zone of the day. The first trip over was to buy tickets.

The sisters are studying French in Paris and came to Germany last weekend in a rented car.

FOAM, SWEET FOAM—Its white walls suggesting the interior of an igloo, this building is made entirely of urethane foam. First, a nylon envelope, held rigid by air pressure, was erected. Then about six inches of foam was sprayed against the inside of the nylon. Extra foam was sprayed to form reinforcing arches. Prefabricated doorway was installed in opening cut in a wall and building was ready.

To See Emperor

TOKYO (AP)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker of Canada rode through the streets of Tokyo in a decorated horse-drawn carriage today for an audience with Japanese Emperor Hirohito.

The Canadian leader delighted his airport welcomers by delivering one sentence of his short arrival address in Japanese. "I have arrived today in Japan and I bring greetings from the people of Canada," he said in halting Japanese. For Japan, it was an almost unprecedented gesture by a foreign dignitary.

Assuming God Is Always With West Termed Idolatry

WASHINGTON (AP)—A prominent Protestant said today that while "we are opposed to communism as a faith and as an ideology and as a political system," it is a "covert idolatry" to assume that God is always on the West's side in the cold war.

The Rev. John C. Bennett, dean of the faculty of the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, made his comments in a speech for the 34th annual conference of the Catholic Association for International Peace.

Speaking of possible success against communism, the seminary dean said: "The fact that the United States is a status quo nation, fearful of radical change and influenced by a large body of opinion that is still committed to an uncritical capitalistic ideology is one of the greatest obstacles to the success of the Free World in upholding its own against communism.

"The utterly self-defeating character of the intransigeant forms of conservative anticommunism in this country is amazing to contemplate."

In stating that it should not be assumed that God is always on the West's side, Dr. Bennett said: "It is our temptation to assume that, because our opponents are atheists, God must be on our side, and to overlook the extent to which communism itself is a judgment upon the sins and failures of the middle class world, upon the Christian world.

"The very atheism of communism is a judgment upon the churches which for so long were unconcerned about the victims of the industrial revolution and early capitalism and which have usually been ornaments of the status quo, no matter how unjust it has been."

Dr. Bennett added: "The temptation to turn the cold war into a holy crusade is ever with us and in so far as we yield to it we make impossible the tolerable and humaneness which must yet come into international relations if there is to be a future for mankind."

Dr. Bennett differed with those who would rule out coexistence with communism. "Their view of the cold war," he said, "will almost certainly lead to hot war and to the nuclear catastrophe which will add to the victims of tyranny scores and perhaps hundreds of millions of new victims."

No Names on Ballot

KEOTA, Iowa (AP) — There won't be any names on the ballot here for the Nov. 7 election of city officers.

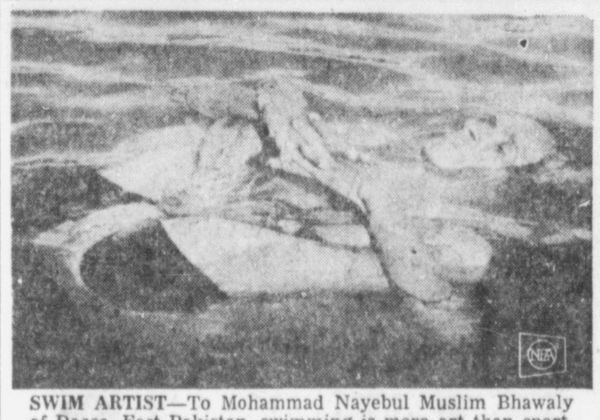

The reason: All the candidates for town offices forgot to have their nomination papers signed and notarized, as required by law.

City Clerk Jack McFadden said the mistake wasn't discovered until too late to remedy the situation. He said the citizens will have to elect a mayor and five councilmen by write-in ballot.

ELECTION CRY: Abraham Lincoln is credited with originally making this statement in 1864 and it has been a popular election cry for many years. It was just a casual remark of Lincoln's and he attributed no importance to it.

5 Get Maximum Terms in Murder Of Postal Worker

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Maximum prison sentences have been given to five young men who were acquitted of first-degree murder charges in the 1958 holdup-killing of a postal worker and pleaded guilty to other charges arising from the slaying.

Sentenced Thursday by Erie County Judge Burke I. Burke were:

Daniel Di Laro, 21; Vincent Zagarrigo, 22; and Vincent A. Cliffa, 21, all to 5-15 years in Attica State Prison for attempted first-degree robbery.

Mario Gugino, 21, and Charles Barone, 26, both 3½-7½ years in Attica for attempted second-degree robbery.

The postal worker, 48-year-old George A. Simon, died a week after he was shot by intruders who entered his home in Dec. 31, 1958.

In the trial concerning Simon's death, the defense claimed he might have died after the shooting because a surgical clamp was left in his body.

A sixth defendant in the murder trial, Vincent Santangelo, 21, was shot to death here last summer. The killing has not been solved.

Onteora-Rondout Contest at Dietz Highlights Grid Slate

Hoople Promises Near Perfect Grid Picks

The Old Boy Himself

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
(Poet, Author, Lover)

What a week. All your learned prognosticator have been receiving are letters, asking me how I'm able to diagnose all the teams throughout the area, even more of them around the country and still manage to come up with some expert selections each week.

Let me assure you dear readers, it's no easy task. Even with Dr. Inorbit and Hannibal Wottaburp aiding my scientific selections, the job is a tremendous challenge to my ability (editor's note: as a pool player) and there have been many times when I've worked throughout the evening, adding, subtracting and digesting figures until I feel the right information is available.

This week my job is a double one. In addition to the weekend slate of games, there are also two listed for Halloween eve, one in the afternoon and one at night and I will endeavor to give you those scores.

Without any further ado, I shall give you Onteora to upset Rondout Valley tonight at Dietz Stadium. Eddie Witko, the genial athletic director of the Boiceville school, is willing to eat a ton of Polish Balogna in the middle of the stadium if the Indians lose. That's good enough for this observer. So, it shall be Onteora 13, Rondout Valley 7. Ahem!

Kingston has been a big stumbling block thus far. Despite many earth shaking calculations, the Maroon boys have left me talking to myself because they have failed by a few inches here and another few inches there. This time they will gain those extra inches and will dump Mont Pleasant, 20-13.

It's been a long time since Saugerties lost a tussle on the gridiron. Alas, dear Sawyer fans. The time has come. Methinks Albany Academy will prevail, 14-7.

Now I must give you the rest of my selections. I have an appointment to ride in a space capsule to see how the men from Mars play football. In fact, many of my readers are hoping the capsule gets lost on the way into orbit. Fear not. It won't happen. Harumph!

The record to date shows 58 right and only 22 wrong. Note the improvement after this week is finished.

Boating Offenses Cost Operators $4,725 in State

Violations of the New York State Navigation Law cost boatmen a total of $4,725 in fines during the first nine months of 1961-an increase of $748.50 over the $3,976.50 paid by boatmen for the entire year of 1960, according to James J. O'Brien, director of the Conservation Department's Division of Motor Boats.

"Reckless or negligent operation of motor boats in New York State can be a costly pastime," O'Brien said.

Nearly half the fines levied this year were for unregistered or improperly registered boats.

The reported 1960-61 fines represent those levied as a result of action by county police and sheriff agencies. They do not include those paid to city, town or village courts for violations of local navigation ordinances, for which records are not available, or those paid as a result of apprehension by the U. S. Coast Guard.

The increase in fines at the county level reflects the stepped-up program of navigation enforcement now in effect throughout the state—a program which has also played a major role in keeping boating deaths to a record low for this year. To date 54 have died in boating accidents in New York State this year, compared with 70 during the 1960 boating season.

The expanding enforcement program—45 counties now have navigation patrols on the waters of the state—and concurrent rise in fine totals should serve as a warning to boat owners who have not as yet complied with the new registration requirements in effect in New York State, O'Brien noted.

Upstate and Long Island boats with old Department of Public Works numbers above NY 150,000 are due for registration under the new system before the beginning of the 1962 boating season.

Boats bearing DPW numbers below NY 150,000 and old Coast Guard numbers were scheduled for registration under the new system in 1960 and 1961. Boat registrations bearing these obsolete numbers are no longer valid and owners of such boats should register with the Division of Motor Boats at once. Boat owners, operating improperly registered boats, are subject to fines up to $50, O'Brien cautioned.

KHS, Sawyers In Albany Area For Top Tussles

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Tonight's UCAL contest between Onteora and Rondout Valley at Dietz Stadium and eight contests on Saturday spice this week's schoolboy gridiron menu. Many of the games won't have a bearing on the league races, but they are still top contests.

The schedule:

Tonight

Onteora vs. Rondout Valley (Dietz).

Saturday

Kingston at Mont Pleasant.
Saugerties at Albany Academy.
Port Jervis at Poughkeepsie.
A. B. Davis at Middletown.
Marlboro at Liberty.
Roosevelt at Cardinal Farley.
Beacon at Newburgh.

A rundown of the key tilts:

ONTEORA VS. RONDOUT—Neither club will win the UCAL title but this one means a lot to both of them. The Ganders have the better defensive team, at least thus far. Onteora has shown flashes of a solid defense but the Indians have been inconsistent. The game is rated a tossup and it should be a crowd pleaser.

KINGSTON AT MONT PLEASANT—What could have been a 3-1 season to date for Bill Burke and company is just the opposite. The locals have not been outclassed by any club they have met. Pleasant is big and is coming off a 32-7 triumph over Troy. The KHS defense can't be faulted. It's the offense that hasn't been up to par. Burke is hoping it will jell against the Raiders.

SAUGERTIES AT ALBANY ACADEMY — A replica of last year's meeting when the Sawyers knocked the upstaters from the unbeaten ranks. Both clubs are without a loss this time. Albany shows a solid defensive record, having permitting only 12 points in four efforts. However they must put a damper on Al Hrdlica and Lou Spada, the go-go boys of the Sawyers. This figures to be an outstanding attraction.

PORT JERVIS AT POUGHKEEPSIE—The Porters are on Cloud Nine after their victory over Kingston. They are favored to beat Sam J. Kalloch's winless Pioneers but anything can happen. Poughkeepsie plays a wide open game and the visitors have to be wary of an upset.

A. B. DAVIS AT MIDDLETOWN—The home side should add another victim to its record. The Mt. Vernon club rapped Newburgh but so did Middletown. Ron Smith is better than anything the Westchester club has to offer.

In other tilts, Newburgh is favored over the deflated Beacon Bulldogs, Liberty rules the choice over Marlboro and Roosevelt and Cardinal Farley are rated even in their battle at the Rhinecliff gridiron.

Florida's 58.3 Sets Point Pace

NEW YORK (AP)—Explosive Florida A&M, aiming for its third consecutive small-college football scoring crown, is setting the point-production pace with a 58.3 per game average.

NCAA Service Bureau statistics show today that the Rattlers have scored 233 points in four games. Florida A&M posted the season's highest score, a 76-0 rout of Bethune-Cookman.

The Floridians have averaged 41.5 points per game in the last nine years over 71 regular-season outings. During that span they have won 67, tied 1 and lost 3 for a .951 winning percentage.

The perennial Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference champions also are the small-college leader in total defense, yielding only 80 yards rushing and passing per game.

Other mid-season leaders include West Chester (Pa.) in total yardage with 423.6 per game, Defiance (Ohio) in passing with 217.8, Grinnell (Iowa) in rushing with 317.8 and New Mexico Highlands in punting with 46.9.

Robinson to Meet Moyer in Rematch

NEW YOR K(AP) —Sugar Ray Robinson will meet Denny Moyer of Portland, Ore., in a rematch, matchmaker Teddy Brenner said today, but not until after he fights Canada's Wilfie Greaves for a second time.

Brenner said Robinson told him he is committed to fight Greaves in Pittsburgh Dec. 8, causing a delay in the Moyer bout at Madison Square Garden until Jan. 6. Robinson outpointed Greaves in Detroit Sept. 25 and Moyer at the Garden last Monday.

Colgate Seeks 4th Straight Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Colgate's football team has a "fresh look" as it gets set to clash with Yale at New Haven Saturday in a bid for its fourth consecutive shutout victory.

Syracuse, meanwhile, will pin its hopes on starting quarterback Dave Sarette, who had been sidelined with a bruised shoulder, when it takes on Holy Cross at Syracuse.

A revamped Cornell lineup will try to break a three-game losing streak at Princeton, but remains the underdog.

Colgate coach Alva Kelley, who dropped scrimmages after an opening-game loss to Cornell, says his Red Raiders are in good shape physically and mentally.

The no-contact rule was responsible for the team's condition, a Colgate spokesman said.

Senior Clint Rappole and junior Art Irwin, both of whom were injured three weeks ago, were ready to replace Jim Deegan and Jim Heilman in the Colgate backfield.

Defense is stressed by both Colgate and Yale. Yale shut out Cornell last week. The Elis have scored 44 points in four games, compared with Colgate's 43. Each has a 3-1 record.

Syracuse coach Ben Schwartzwalder says his club will launch an aerial attack against Holy Cross "if Sarette can stay in there." The senior quarterback suffered the shoulder injury against Nebraska and was out of action for the Penn State contest.

A crowd of 30,000 is expected at the game in Archbold Stadium.

Three Crusaders, Pat McCarthy, Bill Joern and John Wheaton, can fire the ball for holy Cross. Halfback Tom Hennessey, who outgained the entire Dartmouth team last week, is the club's main threat on the ground.

Syracuse has a 3-2 mark and Holy Cross is 3-1.

A third-stringer and three second-team men have been advanced to Cornell's starting team by Coach Tom Harp in an effort to break the Big Red's losing streak. Cornell's only win in four games was over Colgate.

Miami Hosts NC Tonight; Top Contests Set Saturday

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Miami Hurricanes, which have won only two of five games and have lost their last two hope to begin the college football season all over again tonight when they meet a strong University of North Carolina team in Miami's Orange Bowl.

But for teams like Michigan State, ranked first nationally in the current Associated Press poll, Mississippi, Texas and Alabama, the winning habit, cultivated with the opening game, should continue this weekend.

For Miami, off last week, a new start is contemplated. George Mira, the flashy sophomore quarterback who has been hobbled by injuries since the victory over Kentucky, is expected to see action. As Mira goes, so go the Hurricanes for he has not played in the last two games and saw only limited action in a 25-8 victory over Penn State.

George Washington (3-3) takes on Boston University (1-4) in the night's other major activity.

Spartans Play Indiana

Michigan State (4-0), after two clutch wins over Michigan and Notre Dame, takes on Indiana in a Big Ten game. The Spartans, in a four-way tie for the conference lead with fifth-ranked Iowa, sixth-ranked Ohio State and Minnesota, should make it with plenty to spare.

Ohio State (3-0-1) meets Wisconsin (2-2) in the day's national television game (ABC-TV, 2:30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time) while Iowa (4-0) plays Purdue (2-2) and Minnesota (3-1) takes on Michigan (3-1) in the Little Brown Jug game. Each of the four Big Ten leaders has a 2-0 conference mark.

Mississippi, looking to next week's crucial Southeastern Conference clash against Louisiana State (No. 7) has a homecoming date against Vanderbilt (2-3). Ole Miss is 5-0 so far and has not lost in 20 games.

Last Obstacle

Alabama, atop the SEC with 4-0, is out of the conference against Houston (2-2-1) while Texas (5-0) plays what may be its last obstacle for the Southwest Conference title when it meets Rice (2-2-1). The third ranked Longhorns, which easily beat tough Arkansas last week, are 2-0 in the SWC and Rice is 1-0.

Notre Dame, ranked eighth with a 3-1 mark, meets Northwestern (2-2), ninth-ranked Georgia Tech (4-1) plays Tulane (1-4) in another SEC game and Big Eight leader Colorado (40) plays winless Oklahoma (0-4) in a conference tilt.

Tough Schedule Ahead for Knicks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York's revamped Knickerbockers, surprisingly one of the hottest teams in the National Basketball Association, may be heading for a cooling-off period.

First of all, their next game is on the road, always a tough proposition in the NBA. Second, their Saturday match is against the mighty Boston Celtics, three-time league kingpins.

The Knicks, league doormats last season, have come up with a new coach in Eddie Donovan, a revamped lineup and three straight home victories.

The latest was a 120-117 comeback affair over Cincinnati Thursday night in the feature of a New York doubleheader. St. Louis rallied from 13 points behind in the final quarter and edged Syracuse 110-107 in the first game, the Hawks' first victory of the season.

Tonight, Syracuse is at Philadelphia, St. Louis at Chicago and Detroit at Los Angeles.

Richie Guerin struck for 35 points in sparking the Knicks to their third victory against a ingle loss. It gave New York a half-game lead over Boston, though the Celtics remain at the top of the Eastern Division standings with a 1-0 mark.

Bob Pettit, who scored 26 points, climaxed St. Louis' big last period rally with seven straight points. Clyde Lovellette, who scored 28, clinched it with a foul shot with three seconds left.

Carry Back Will Run Saturday At Garden State

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Carry Back mystery may be solved with the running of Saturday's $75,000-added Trenton Handicap at Garden State Park.

Carry Back is the 3-year-old colt who won the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, then missed his chance for the coveted triple crown by finishing up the track in the Belmont Stakes.

After the Belmont, early in June, it was disclosed Carry Back had injured an ankle during the race. He did not race again until Aug. 26 when he won the Neptune Purse at Atlantic City. He won the Jerome Handicap at Belmont on Sept. 2, but since then has lost three straight.

Is Carry Back lame or isn't he? Jack Price, who trains the colt for his wife, Katherine, has not been saying much this week, so it is up to Carry Back to supply the answer himself in the Trenton.

Expected to enter the mile and one-quarter race against older horses is another 3-year-old colt, Ambipoise. Sherluck, who beat Carry Back in the Belmont and Lawrence Realization, is another 3-year-old possibility.

The older horses expected to go include Intentionally and Divine Comedy, co-top weights at 124 pounds, Black Thumper, Mail Order, Nickel Boy, Talent Show and Polylad.

Fish Forecasters Like Weather Men Can't Be Certain

NEW YORK (AP)— Now don't get excited, but fish forecasting has become a science.

It's reliable only to a certain degree, however. Like listening to the weather forecasts before planning a weekend picnic.

"An inexact science," was the way Dr. L. E. Cronin, director of the National Resources Institute of the University of Maryland, described it Thursday.

He likened it to weather forecasting and told delegates of the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission that fish forecasters often will have to do as weather forecasters do—qualify predictions with "probably."

The fish forecasters, seeking to supply commercial and sports fishermen with beforehand knowledge, are scientists who are members of the commission. Dr. Cronin gave the delegates a couple of long-range forecasts for next year.

Lobsters, Maine only: "Good."

Oysters, in the North and mid-Atlantic and Chesapeake Bay: "Extremely poor."

He said the forecasts are built on a number of variable factors, including current, water temperature, water salinity content, spawning rates in known hatching areas, hatching rates, pollution and predator strength.

Still another variable which must be taken into consideration for such fish as cod and haddock, he said, was the presence of a fleet of Soviet trawlers fishing off the New England coast.

After all the variables are weighed and evaluated, he said, they are assessed against the predictions of "wise old heads" in the commercial and sport fishing industries.

Borgmann, Once Kingston Ace In Basketball Hall of Fame

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Andy Phillip, a former college standout, professional star Benny Borgmann and John J. O'Brien, an executive, were named Thursday to the Basketball Hall of Fame.

Phillip, a native of Granite City, Ill., was an outstanding member of the famed Illinois Whiz Kids of 1942 and 1943. He led them to the Big Ten championship in 1943 and later played for Chicago, Philadelphia, Fort Wayne and Boston of the professional National Basketball Association.

Borgmann participated in 2,500 games during a pro career that extended from 1917 to 1938. He played for the original Celtics among other clubs. He is a native of Hawthorne, N.J.

O'Brien for 25 years was president of the American League, retiring in 1953.

Borgmann was a favorite with Kingston basketball fans back in the 20's when he was a member of Frank Morgenwick's Kingston team in the Metropolitan League. A high scoring ace, he was teamed up with such other stars as the Husta brothers, Powers, Artus, Campbell.

Yankees Drop Second Farm Club

AUBURN, N.Y. (AP)—The New York Yankees have dropped their second New York State baseball farm club in two weeks.

A working agreement between the Yankees and Auburn of the Class D New York-Pennsylvania League has ended after four years, it was announced yesterday.

Last week, the Yankees abandoned their Binghamton franchise in the Class A Eastern League.

Dr. Thomas D. Stapleton, president of the Auburn club, said the Yankees chose Auburn instead of St. Petersburg, Fla., when it was decided to drop one of their two Class D farm teams.

The future of baseball in Auburn seemed assured, however, Stapleton said, because several major league clubs were interested in establishing working agreements.

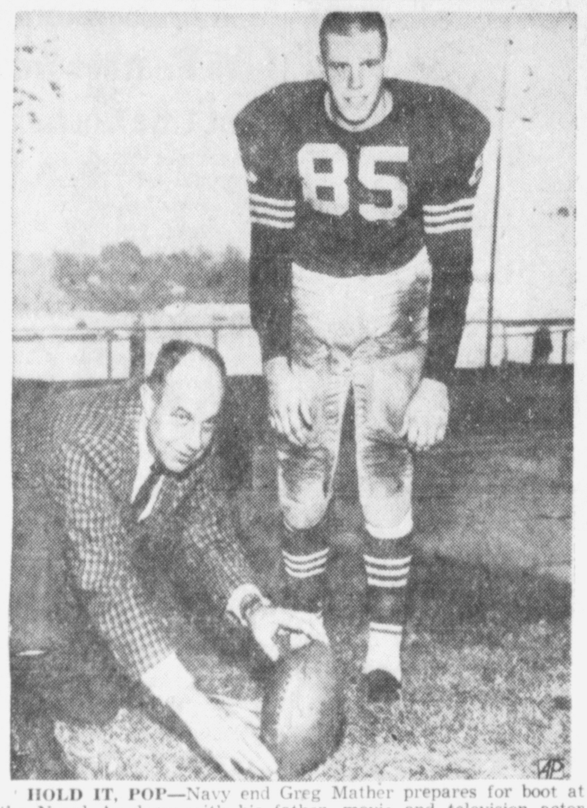

Auburn lost $5,000 this season, Stapleton said, when it finished last in the eight-team league. The club drew 33,000 spectators, 7,000 fewer than last season, when it led the league in attendance.

Owners of Syracuse Chiefs Report Profit

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) —The Syracuse Chiefs of the International Baseball League finished last this season but the community organization that owns the club has reported a profit.

The Community Baseball Club of Central New York said Thursday night it had a net profit of $6,327, which equalled $1.72 for each of the 3,672 shares of stock outstanding. The profit before federal taxes was $9,039.

The Chiefs collected $166,690 at the gate with a total attendance of 126,016.

Second-choice Spectator will be wearing spectacles—actually ambercolored goggles — when he competes for the $85,175 Dexter Cup at Roosevelt Raceway tonight.

An injured right eyeball forces him to wear the specs.

Spectator, an entry with Orbitor, was a 3-1 second choice in the event which could decide the trot championship for 3-year-olds.

Caleb is the 2-1 favorite. Also entered are Harlan Dean, Matastar, Sprite Kid and Mr. Pride.

Speedy Princess sped to a 2½-length upset victory over favored Meadow Farr in the $26,325 feature trot at Roosevelt Raceway Thursday night.

Speedy Princess' time in the Lady Suffolk Trot for 3-year-old fillies was 2:12 2-5 for the mile and 1-16. She was driven by Earle Avery and paid $8.40. Pridey Frisco, a 29-1 shot, finished third.

At Batavia Downs Thursday night, Mil Hanover won the featured $1,200 Class B-3 pace in 2:12 3-5 on a sloppy track. Mil was driven by Levi Harner and returned $16.80.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Flint, posted a fine 62 per cent game to win first place on tthe North-South side as the Glenerie Bridge Club held its regular fractional point game at the Stuyvesant Hotel. A total of 24 boards in a 10 table Mitchell movement were played.

The scoring on the East-West side was the closest ever returned in a game at the club and first place was taken by Mrs. I. H. Wheatcroft and David Ralby of Kingston with a 56 per cent game. New American League Will Open Season Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Los Angeles and San Francisco inaugurate the new American Basketball League's season tonight with some mighty familiar faces in the lineups.

The Jets of Los Angeles have former Boston Celtic star Bill Sharman as their coach and additionally, he plans to start the game at one of the guard positions.

That's brought a threat of suit from the Celtics who didn't object when he quit Boston to coach, but don't want him playing for anybody else.

George Yardley, former all-league player in the National Basketball Association, starts at forward for Los Angeles along with Dan Swartz. Former Kentucky All America Bill Spivey, at 7-feet 1-inch opens at center. Hal Lear will team with Sharman at guard.

Ken Sears and Mike Farmer, the starting forwards for the San Francisco Saints, both are former NBA players who switched affiliations.

Sears and his former club, the New York Knickerbockers, have been embroiled in a law suit over the switch. The New York NBA club sought an injunction to keep Kenny from playing in the ABL.

Joie Ray Still Winning His Race With Father Time

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Joie Ray still is winning his race against father time.

He did a 6:32.6 mile in the Illinois Armory Thursday. He is 67 years old.

The mile run was held under the watchful eye of Dr. Thomas K. Cureton, director of Illinois' Physical Fitness Research Laboratory.

Joie has been running most of his life.

He was the United States distance star of the roaring 20's. He matched a world record 4:12 in 1925, competed in three Olympics, carried the Illinois Athletic Club colors into 950 races and won medals, ribbons or trophies in all but one.

For the last six years, he has been running a birthday mile on April 13. His best was 5:50 in 1959. He was disappointed with his 6:32.6 special mile Thursday.

"I had been training since July," said Joie, retired Gary, Ind. steel mill worker. "I had been running two to four miles a day, rowing a boat, lifting weights, working out at a health club and following a diet made up mostly of wheat germ. I was sure I could do it in six flat or better.

"But I'll stay in training and try again on my 68th birthday."

Cureton said the undergraduates he tests average about 7 minutes for the mile.

Head's Fists Ignite Lowly Boston Bruins

BOSTON (AP) — Rookie Don Head, the fightingest goaltender in professional hockey, has ignited the lowly Boston Bruins—with his fists.

Bruins General Manager Lynn Patrick and Coach Phil Watson agree that Head's first period bout provided the spark to a 4-0 victory over Detroit Thursday night, lone triumph in nine National Hockey League starts.

Unbeaten Montreal took over the league lead by crushing Chicago 7-1.

Head, 28, the former Canadian Olympic goaltender in his second year of pro hockey, made 41 spectacular saves in his initial major league shutout.

With Boston shorthanded, Head had made five stops on the Detroit power play, two of them robbing ex-Bruin Vic Stasiuk. Defenseman Bob Armstrong sent Stasiuk sprawling near the net and moments later the Red Wing forward took a choppping swing with his stick at Head.

The Boston goalie charged out, tore off his gloves, waded in and wrestled Stasiuk to the ice. It took a minute to break up the battle.

The Russian entries bring the United States pair was completed Thursday with the naming of T.V. Lark to join Mrs. Richard du Pont's Kelso.

T.V. Lark is owned by a syndicate of Kentucky breeders. France also has two entries, Match and Misti, while England will be represented by High Perch and Denark by Wonderboy.

El Paso King's Draw Largest Attendance

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —The Sun Kings of El Paso, Tex., won the 1961 grand sweepstakes in minor league baseball's attendance derby.

George M. Trautman, president of the minors, said the Kings drew 79,115 fans, far over the 19,218 league average of a year ago. El Paso, out of baseball since 1956, was assigned the previous year's average as the mark to beat.

Trautman also cited San Diego, Chattanooga, Greenville, S.C., Salem, Ore., Twin Falls, Idaho, and Jamestown, N.Y., as champions of their classifications.

Of the 147 clubs in the minors, 55 showed a boost at the gate.

Jamestown, in the Class D New-York-Pennsylvania League, had an attendance of 65,402.

League of Women Voters Set To Meet Wednesday, Nov. 1

A general meeting of the Woodstock League of Women Voters will be held Wednesday, Nov. 1, at 8 p. m. at Deanie's upstairs.

The program includes a Town Budget report by Gloria Walker and her committee; the National Study Item for 1962-64 by Florence Hubbard and Idea for County Study, by Sara Mulligan.

Members of the League are asked to bring their copies of the town budget to the public hearing. The committee has prepared an interesting report and all members are urged to attend.

November recently welcomed into the League include Mrs. Charlotte Heller, Mrs. Helen Goodrick Butterick, Mrs. Barbara Williams, Mrs. Avis Gebart and Mrs. Judy Chase.

On Nov. 30, the Woodstock League must forward to the national headquarters its suggestions for the National Item Study for 1962-64. Five different topics have been suggested by LVW's Foreign Policy committee as suitable for such a study. Members are asked to be prepared to discuss these at the November general meeting in order that the Board of Directors may be able to reflect the membership at their Nov. 16 meeting.

The five suggested topics are: (1) The physical, political, social and conservation problems of regional planning in the areas of urban suburban expansion (2) conservation of our land, forest, water, minerals and wildlife (3) how to reconcile and absorb minority groups within the larger social, economic and cultural pattern of American society (4) The interrelation of disarmament, an international police force and the rule of the law (5) how to best marshal every physical, human and spiritual resource of our nation and translate it into a concerted national effort to win the struggle against communism.

Woodstock Children to Take Part in 'Trick or Treat'

As in the past two years, more than 250 Woodstock children will take part in the nationwide "Trick or Treat" program. The local committee in cooperation with the Woodstock P-TA, League of Women Voters, American Association for the United Nations and the Overlook Methodist Church has set the night of Oct. 31 as official "Trick or Treat" night.

More than 2,500,000 American children will devote their Halloween fun to save the lives of other children in more than 100 countries around the world which are aided by UNICEF.

Mrs. Gladys Plate, art teacher at the Woodstock elementary school, is working with the children and they are each making a "Trick or Treat" UNICEF container.

President Kennedy in an official statement has pointed out that UNICEF is a direct influence on the lives of young people of all countries and that it has helped enormously to break down the artificial barriers of nationality and ideology which so often impede government-to-government assistance. The problems of hunger, education and child welfare are as widespread as in the past and the best attack on these problems lies precisely in the kind of cooperative effort which characterizes UNICEF.

So when our little Halloweeners knock on your door with the orange "Trick or Treat" tags and containers, give generously to UNICEF, the children's friend around the world.

Reformed Church Lists Program

The Junior Christian Endeavor Halloween party of the Reformed Church, starts Friday at 7 p. m., in the church basement. Children are coming in costume. This society is for all youngsters, boys and girls, in grades four through eight.

Junior choir rehearsal is scheduled Saturday at 10:30 a. m.

Sunday school classes for all ages at 9:30 a. m., on Sunday, Oct. 29. Morning worship is at 11 a. m. As this is Reformation Sunday, the sermon title will be "Operation Reformation." Nursery facilities are provided for the children of worshippers.

There will be Autumn Vespers on Sunday at 4 p. m. For the fourth consecutive year the members of the senior and junior choirs will present a vesper service of music and inspiration. There will be anthems, solos, meditations and prayers. All residents and visitors to the Woodstock area are cordially invited to attend.

Senior Christian Endeavor is at 7:30 p. m. Pastor Olson will begin a six-weeks series of lectures of interest to teen-agers.

The congregational covered dish supper will be held Friday, Nov. 3, at 6:30 p. m., to be followed by a presentation of the 1962 church program. Irving Cousins, chairman, urges every member of the church to be present for this meeting; to have questions answered, sugtions made and criticism offered. Pledge cards for 1962 giving will be distributed at this meeting and will be collected at the morning worship on Sunday, Nov. 5.

Members of the congregation continue to rejoice in the splendid progress toward recovery of one of our members, Alma Simpkins, injured last May in an automobile accident in Albany. She is currently undergoing therapy in the Albany Medical Center and is grateful for the cards, prayers and other remembrances of her many friends in Woodstock and environs.

Miss McBride to Give Discussion On Amendment 1

One of the area's top celebrities, Mary Margaret McBride, will feature a discussion of Amendment No. 1 on Court Reform on her radio program of Nov. 1. Arrangements for this are being made by Mrs. Alvin Moscowitz of the Woodstock League of Women Voters.

This program will be part of the League's efforts to publicize Court Reform Day, Nov. 2, as proclaimed by Gov. Rockefeller. This amendment to modernize the New York State court system has the backing of Gov. Rockefeller and both the Republicans and Democrats in the state legislature, as well as many organizations throughout the state.

Mrs. Moscowitz has also announced that there will be a TV program explaining all the amendments to be voted on this year. This is scheduled for 2 p. m. Saturday, Oct. 29, on WNBC-TV, Channel 4.

Scout Campaign Now in Progress

The 1962 Boy Scout finance campaign was kicked off this week with a rousing drum and bugle corps concert on the Village Green.

This year's campaign is under the direction of Frank Benson of the National Bank of Ulster and Orange counties. In a statement to the press, Benson said he feels certain that the community will come to its calling in the same manner in which this very fine drum and bugle corps came to Woodstock's aid when asked.

The Troop 12 drum and bugle corps which meets in the Old Dutch Church in Kingston under the direction of Ralph Shapiro put on a particularly delightful concert. The group is to be congratulated for its willingness to help a worthy cause. For the Woodstock appearance, the troops was under the direction of their assistant director, Richard Scism.

Other scout officials present were Ed Quednau, present scoutmaster of Woodstock Troop 34 and William Doran, past scoutmaster of the troop. Also in attendance were Vern May, West District chairman and Henry Miller who directed the day's activities.

Woodstock Troop 34 put together a camping demonstration which remained on the Village Green for the rest of the day.

Foundation Slates Third Exhibition At Art Gallery

The Woodstock Foundation will hold its Third Annual Exhibition at the Woodstock Art Gallery, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 4-5. The exhibition will display works by past Foundation Award winners and this year's applicants. Paintings in various mediums, sculpture and literary works will be displayed by many of Woodstock's most talented residents.

The exhibition will be arranged by noted artist Ainslie (Pat) Burke, a Foundation member and executive of the Woodstock Artists Association. Working with him will be Jim Turnbull and Milton Axtel. Works will be received at the Gallery on Thursday, Nov. 2 between the hours of 1 and 4 p. m. and the Gallery will be open during the hours of 1 to 5 p. m. that Saturday and Sunday.

During the Foundation's 13 years of activity, 44 awards have been given to deserving artists, musicians, authors, sculptors and this November two more awards are planned. The only source of funds is the small community of Woodstock whose residents contribute individually or attend the annual production which provides the bulk of the funds, obtained through the allied art of theatricals.

More than $16,000 has been distributed by the Foundation in an effort to encouragge and recognize the deserving and talented.

Exhibition Still Being Continued At Post Office

The current "black and white" exhibition at the Woodstock post office, extending through November, marks the beginning of the second year of this important community innovation. Each trip for your mail can bring you to the artists' presentation for another study of linear beauty and shading in this style of pictorial art, says the Post Office exhibition group.

Robert Angeloch's lithograph, "Clearing," is sensitive and delicate in line. While the artist's subtle, earthy colors in oil painting identify him, his lithographical work is classical and provides another facet to his accomplishment as a fine painter.

Albert Heckman's lithograph, "Marine Basin", portrays stimulating harbor activity and promise of high adventure in its fine use of modified form of pointillism.

"Patterns of Spain," John McClellan's most comprehensible lithograph of the three exhibited, contains mysterious, sensuous, youthful quality with the same classical aura pervading the other two works. These pictures impress the spectator with their elusive intangibility. Perhaps McClellan's artistic value lies in this quality of his work.

Gladys Mitchell's block print, "Willows In the Moonlight," is interesting and well executed.

Other Subjects

Andrea Ruellan's range of subject matter is manifest in her tender ink drawing, "Raccoon," as well as in her lithograph, "La Place de L'Orme." The artist's rare excellence is to be found most completely in her black and white work.

Florence Webster exhibited the large charcoal drawing, "Milkweed Stalks," only upon the insistence of friends. Although Miss Webster is one of Woodstock's finest civic leaders, it can be said that her leadership in community advancement may be at the cost of her considerable art talent. The artist's use of charcoal as an art medium is powerful. One can, without too great an exercise of the imagination, almost see this drawing in color. There is rhythm of line and depth of shading which place Miss Webster's work as one of the best, in a fine show.

Earle B. Winslow's ink-wash, "Barnyard," reveals the artist's deft handling of line and deep regard for natural beauty. This pervades all of Mr. Winslow's work.

"Road To Hi-Hole," by Henry E. Winzenried, as well as his other two works in the exhibition, invite the spectator into the picture. Young or old find this artist's work, so competently presented, persuasively real in its earnestness and depth.

Next week your local papers will give short sketches of the exhibitors in this valuable Post Office exhibition.—M.E.I.

George Shirley Makes Debut at The Metropolitan

George Shirley, leading tenor with the Turnau Opera Players the past three seasons made an unexpected debut with the Metropolitan Opera Company Wednesday night when he played the leading role in "Cosi Fan Tutte," an opera made popular locally by the Turnau Players. Shirley was a replacement for Charles Anthony who was ill. The New York Times said, "Shirley giving little indication of the strain under which he must have been laboring, displayed a flexible light tenor voice of very appealing quality."

Shirley, winner of the 1960-61 Metropolitan Opera auditions is a negro and was the second of his race to take a leading role at the Metropolitan in two successive days. Leontyne Price opened the season Monday in "La Fanciulla del West."

Rosary-Altar Resumes Monthly Meetings

The regular monthly meetings of the Rosary-Altar Society of St. John's parish have been resumed. The first meeting was held recently at the rectory in Woodstock, with Mrs. Daniel Foschi presiding.

After the recitation of the Rosary, the business meeting followed and plans were announced for future activities.

Mrs. Theodore Rose has been named chairman for the Christmas dinner meeting in December. A forthcoming bus trip to New York City has been arranged for Saturday, Nov. 11. Anyone interested in making the trip may call Mrs. Vera Wilkins, Shokan, or Mrs. Daniel Fochi, West Hurley.

Mrs. Norah Donoghue of Woodstock was welcomed into the society as a new member.

The Rev. Richard Stewart, pastor, closed the meeting with a prayer. Refreshments were served by the hostesses: Mrs. Robert Finkle, Mrs. Anthony Pizzarelli, Mrs. Edmund Tomaselli and Mrs. James Smith.

An Educational service will be held on Sunday, Oct. 29, at 11 a. m. in the Willow Wesleyan Methodist Church. Don Johnson, Houghton College graduate, will be the speaker.

Crowds Are Good At Rail Show, Concludes Sunday

"Passenger business is good on the Hudson Valley Lines," said Walter W. Phillips, president of the Kingston Model Railroad Club Inc., in reference to attendance at the annual exhibition now in progress at 541 Broadway, next to the West Shore Freight depot.

The leader of the local model engineers revealed that more people have visited the annual show this year then in previous years, "and they seem to enjoy their visit," he said.

The exhibition of a quarter-inch scale model railroad system in action is open from 7 to 9 p. m. Friday and Saturday and from 2:30 until 9 p. m. Sunday, Oct. 29.

With the advent of the 1961 show, the local model club is beginning the celebration of a quarter of a century of existence. The local club operates the oldest model railroad system in the eastern section of the United States, according to Phillips, who pointed out that continuous progress on the principles followed has been a factor in the success of the club during the past 25 years.

what menace hides in your trash pile?

Destruction—desolation—even death!
Forest fires start often in burning trash piles. Just a light breeze can carry sparks to your neighbor's land—to set fire to woods and brushland.
Don't be a litterbug—don't let trash accumulate. Someone's carelessly flipped match or cigarette may unleash a holocaust.
Don't be a firebug, either! Before YOU burn trash, check local regulations—be sure fire can't spread—don't burn on dry or windy days—never leave a fire unattended.
Remember—only YOU can prevent forest fires!

Keating Desires Balanced Budget, No Tax Increases

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., said today the United States would suffer at home and abroad if President Kennedy were to submit an unbalanced budget in 1963.

"What I would like to see is a clear commitment from...the President that our budget will be balanced and there will thus be no possibility of a request for more taxes," Keating said.

Wants to Cut Taxes

"I want to cut taxes," he said in a speech prepared for the 15th annual meeting of trust officers of the New York State Bankers Association," but right now I think the major battle may be to keep them where they are."

Keating said that Kennedy, in his 1962 budget message, promised "in no uncertain terms" to submit a balanced budget in 1963.

"It is unfortunate that at a press conference earlier this month he seemed to reverse himself by saying that we may have an unbalanced budget in fiscal 1963, depending on military needs," Keating said. He added: "I admit these are times of crisis. Military needs are of critical importance but you can't separate one part of the budget from the rest. We don't spend blue dollars for defense and purple ones for domestic programs.

Concerned About Farms

In a speech at Herkimer last night, Keating called for the creation of a joint congressional study commission to chart "new directions for our nation's farms."

He told members of the Herkimer County Republican organization that the committee should include "representatives from all the major farm groups and commodity interests."

New agriculture programs were necessary, he said, because of what he called "grievous failures" of President Kennedy's administration.

Area P-TA News

Kerhonkson Meets

Kerhonkson P-TA was host to Albert Kurdt, manager of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the Citizen's Committee for the Ulster County Community College.

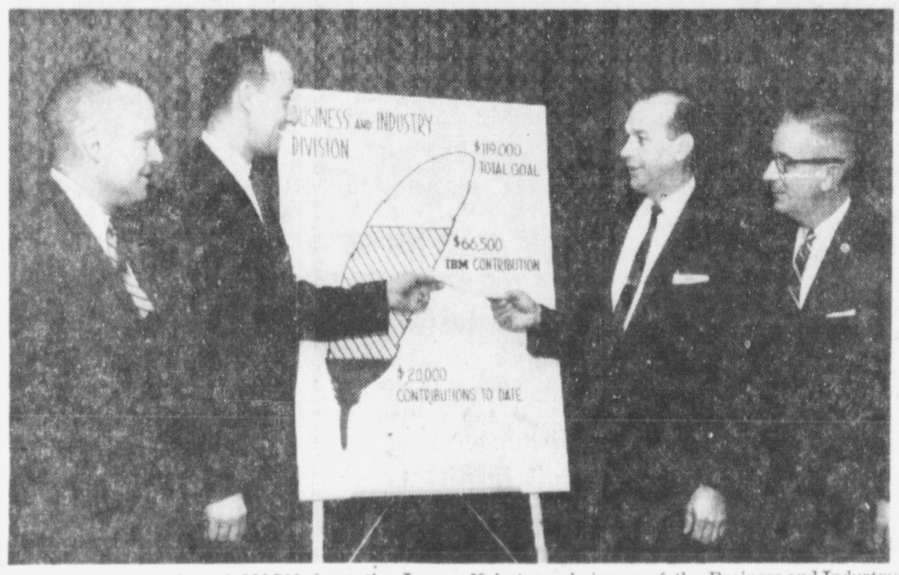

In an information presentation, Mr. Kurdt, explained to the well attended group how a community college is organized, its financing, the advantages it could offer to residents of Ulster County. He showed charts on each phase of his talk. An important point brought out was that although a community college is only a two year college, most four year colleges will accept and give full college credit to graduates of a community college. An example of this was cited by one of the local mothers attending the meeting. Her son is a recent graduate of Orange County Community College. He was accepted at Denver College and is entering his junior year. His two years at a community college were counted as his freshman and sophomore years.

Voters will decide on a community college referendum in the November election.

A short business meeting allowed the guest speaker with Mrs. Robinson presiding. Three new committee chairmen were named at that time: Nominating chairman, Mrs. Mildred Miller; P-TA council chairman, Mrs. Phyllis Jackson; and Youth Commission chairman, Mrs. S. Waruch. One more chairmanship is still to be filled—that of the fund raising chairman.

Mrs. Berlanga's fourth grade won the September attendance count.

Chest Receives $66,500 from IBM

A combined pledge of $66,500 from the International Business Machines Corporation and its Kingston employes to the Ulster County Community Chest was announced today by W. Henry Haltermann, (left) president of the Chest.

The initial payment of the pledge was presented to Chest officials by Alfred Majewski, (second from left) president of the IBM Club, who made the presentation on behalf of the company and its Kingston employes.

William Stall (receiving check) and James Kohut, co-chairman of the Business and Industry Division of this year's campaign, received the contribution.

Stall stated that "the contribution of $66,500 represents approximately 56 per cent of the total Business and Industry Division's goal of $119,000. As in the past, it again points up the civic awareness and responsibility of IBM toward the community of which it is part." Richard E. McNaughton, (right) is general appeal chairman.

Flag Display Is For Honor of TR 103rd Birthday

Flags were displayed today in Kingston by banks and public buildings in honor of the 103rd anniversary of the birth of President Theodore Roosevelt. For years, Oct. 27 was observed as Navy Day. Several years ago the observance was combined with those of Air Force and Army Days into an Armed Forces Day, celebrated the third Saturday of each May.

Theodore Roosevelt, 26th President of the United States, was born in New York City Oct. 27, 1858. He was assistant secretary of Navy under President William McKinley from April 19, 1897 to May 10, 1898. He was governor of New York State in 1899 and 1900, when he was drafted for the vice presidency. He became the United States' youngest president on Sept. 14, 1901, at the age of 42 years, 10 months and 16 days, when President McKinley died from the effects of an assassin's bullet at Buffalo.

Hits Pole Attempting To Miss Deer on Rt. 212

An employe of Lever Brothers, Syracuse was injured early today in a traffic mishap on Route 212 near Woodstock when he struck a utility pole in an attempt to avoid hitting a deer on the highway, Kingston state police reported.

David Russell Gushea, 21, of 620 Madison Avenue, Albany, is in fair condition today at Benedictine Hospital. Troopers said he suffered possible fractured hip and knee, and was taken to the hospital by H&S Ambulance of Saugerties.

Trooper W. Wiedemann said Gushea, driving a 1961 station wagon owned by his employer, Lever Brothers, was proceeding east on Route 212, about a half mile east of Woodstock. He was rounding a slight curve to the right when he swerved to avoid hitting a deer, went off the right shoulder and struck a utility pole, breaking it at the base. Getting out of the car, he crawled nearly 200 feet to the nearest house and awakened Fred Trippico who summoned help, troopers said. Gushea was treated at the scene by Dr. Kenneth Brumer of Woodstock.
